Uncle Sam, Ancient Mariner. One-Man Crime Wave. Mr. Mencken's Plain Talk. Five Million Young Fighters.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THIS DEPRESSION, even with all encouraging news "5,000,000 put to work," etc., reminds you of the voyage of new ancient mariner, who went drifting along, "the first that ever burst" into an unknown sea. Who or what it was that shot our albatross, and brought all these troubles on us, Wall street, technocracy, over-production, the war, or what, nobody knows. But we have them, and can only sail on through the gloomy waters, thankful for occasional encouraging voices.

TODAY'S VOICE, that of Professor Rexford G. Tugwell, certified brain-truster, one of the highest highbrows, brings this joyful news:

"The farmers of the United States are saved."

He assures New York's State Bankers' Association that saving farmers is merely the difference between "talk and action," the President saw that something must be done, and did something. He said: "Plow under your cotton," and it was plowed under. He said: "Stop planting so much wheat," the farmers stopped.

Professor Tugwell did not tell where tax-payers are to get the money to pay for all this, but after all, what is money? And what are taxpayers?

OUR ONE-MAN crime wave rolls along. On that one murderer, whose photograph shows him a rather dull young man with an asymmetrical face, as his photograph desperate and conceited, but not courageous, this government has spent enough money to build a fair-sized canal. Except for our pride and self-respect, we might advertise:

"Mr. Dillinger, come home, all will be forgiven and you will be pensioned. At large you are too expensive."

Uncle Sam once made such an arrangement with the Seminole Indians of Florida when he found he couldn't beat them he bought them. We may have to try that with the one-man crime wave.

BRAIN TRUST heresey comes from H. L. Mencken, known for his habit of saying he thinks; for instance:

"And when I say that Uncle Sam is going broke, it is the same as saying, of course, that the American tax-payer is going broke. Every nickel that the professors at Washington are throwing away will have to come out of his pocket.

"Has all this waste of money done us any good? I doubt it. We have moved toward recovery not because of it, but in spite of it. The English who were much worse off than we were two years ago have gone much further along the road than we have. They have a surplus in their treasury, and are even reducing taxes. Yet they done this without putting a single bright young professor on their payroll, or laying out a cent for economic madstones and bilebeans."

MR. MENCKEN, professing admiration and veneration for the "brain trust," actually says to them:

"Go back to your old job while the going is good. Go back to teaching sophomores to be ashamed of their fathers. If you go on much longer trying a new sure cure every day on poor old Uncle Sam and sending in a bill for $100,000,000 with everyone, you may wake up some morning and find the country howling for your hide."

One tax-paying worm has turned. Others may turn.

FROM RUSSIA comes news to interest Japan, where many believe that it would be as easy to defeat modern Russia under Stalin as it was to defeat old Russia, under a feeble-minded czar, led by a hysterical woman.

Stalin's government orders "Young Communist League" to undergo three months of "intensive training in the rudiments of military and physical culture."

THESE YOUNG Russians are as brave as any men living, not excepting Japanese that go to death as cheerfully as they go to breakfast. No other country could talk of putting FIVE MILLION young men into military training at once. And please note that the five million will be made to study AVIATION.

The safest thing to do with Russia, probably, is to let Russia alone and see what happens.

TELEGRAPHING THE Methodist Episcoal Church South conference at Jackson City, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., acquitted of collecting and using political funds for his own purpose, compares himself with St. Paul, quoting what Paul wrote from Rome:

Loud applause greeted the message.

THE NEWSPAPERS give three to five lines to the Reverend Harmon A. Hodges, killed by an automobile, describing him briefly as a "superannuated Methodist minister, aged 79."

That "superannuated" is rather a cold description of a man who had devoted his life to good work, and at the time of his death had reached the age when a man's experience and knowledge should be most useful.

The world makes little use of older men, although, heaven knows, the younger men have not made such a great success of it.

4 MOVIE THEATER BOMBINGS ROCK CITY

HUNDREDS FLEEHOMES, WINDOWS BROKEN

Hotel Guests Routed; North Side, Oakland Residents in Panic

Four theaters were bombed early today in what police say they believe is a war between rival unions of motion picture operators.

The dynamitings came at a time when the movie houses were unoccupied but residents of adjoining buildings and apartments fled to the streets in terror.

Twenty-five frightened guests of the Atwood Hotel, 214 Atwood street, were among those routed.

Hundreds of windows were shattered by the force of the explosions, heard over a wide area.

Atlas Theater, 2603 Perrysville avenue, North Side.

Colony Theater, 720 Broadway, Stowe Township.

KIN MISSING ON KIDNAPED CHILD HUNT

Grandfather Fails To Return From Ransom Trip

TUCSON, Ariz., April 30.—(AP.)—Two governments sent crack agents on the hunt for little June Robles, kidnap victim, today, and for her 73-year-old grandfather, cattle baron, who has mysterioulsy disappeared.

Bernabe Robles, the grandfather, left last night with two companions for Mexico, presumably to establish contact with the kidnapers and perhaps pay the ransom of $15,000 which has been demanded. Their failure to return early today gave rise to fears for their safety.

Meanwhile, some sources reported Robles as being "somewhere in Mexico." Another report also said that the kidnaped child was seen in a Mexican village and that Mexican troops have been dispatched to the scene.

Agents of the governments of the United States and Mexico began looking for the aged man, reputedly wealthy, and for the child, who was kidnaped last week.

RELATIVES ALARMED

While Robles' destination was not definitely known, his companion, Henry Dalton, Tucson City councilman, said they were going to Santa Ana, and would be back before midnight. The two pioneer cattle men, with Alphonso Aguirre as their chauffeur, were granted expeditious handling of their clearance papers when they crossed the border, immigration records showed.

The already nerve-wracked Robles family had not expected the cattlemen to be away for any length of time, and were unable

NRA BATTLES WEIRTON IN COURT

Decision to Affect Entire Recovery Movement

International News Service.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 30.—In the dignified setting of the United States District Court here, far from the center of the nation's steel industries, the greatest legal battle over National Recovery Act collective bargaining provisions opened today.

Special counsel for the federal government laid before Judge John P. Nields arguments asking that the Weirton Steel Company be restrained from violating the collective bargaining section of the NRA steel code.

The constitutionality of the collective bargaining phase of the National Recovery Act was up for adjudication in a decision that will be of far-reaching importance on the entire recovery movement. The legality and constitutionality of many of the great industrial codes of fair competition and the status of scores of so-called "company unions" will be affected.

REED WEIRTON COUNSEL

Argument of the case opened on a motion by the government to enjoin the steel company from restraining its thousands of employes from voting, without coercion or company influence, at an election to name representatives of their own choice to bargain collectively with the steel firm.

Representing the federal government were Judge F. K. Nebeker, of Washington, special assistant to the Attorney General; United States District Attorney Leonard E. Wales, James L. Fly, and Mileon Handler, of Washing-

Pinchot Flies for U. S. Aid as RWD Layoff Brings Crisis

With 74,000 families to feed, an empty treasury today faced the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board, as fears spread that a relief crisis was impending.

Determined not to let anybody starve, as he put it, Gov. Pinchot flew to Washington today to seek more federal funds for relief work. Just before taking off, he said:

"The $7,632,021 allotment of federal funds for relief in Pennsylvania in May is not enough. It will not feed all those who are properly on relief, let alone continue the work relief which the federal government started and for which it is responsible.

DRAW ON CREDIT

The empty treasury in the local relief office resulted from failure to receive funds from the federal allocation. This transfer was expected hourly and no one was being turned away without relief orders, which were issued on credit.

It was explained that this drawing upon credit can be made since the local office is assured it will receive funds in a very short period of time.

COUNCILS AID PINCHOT

Hoping to aid the Governor in getting more federal funds which would help solve the eviction problem, 42 community councils threw the weight of their influence behind Pinchot.

UNCERTAINTY PREVAILS

Uncertainty prevailed in the local office of the Relief Works Division, from which 18,000 workers were laid off last Friday with startling abruptness. James L. Stuart, director, and his staff, could not tell how many of the men will be re-employed when the RWD starts up this week.

A telephone protest was made to Washington by 152 clerical employes of the administrative office, following their layoff today. They complained that nine days' pay was due them and was being held up merely because someone

JUDGES WEIGH COYNE PLEA

Arguments on a motion for a new trial for Tom Coyne were heard today by Judges W. Heber Dithrich, Elder W. Marshall and Thomas M. Marshall.

Coyne — one of the "Three Toms"—was convicted March 27 on charges of being a common gambler and keeping a gambling house in connection with the operation of the Monaca Club.

His attorney, John Duggan, Jr., in urging for a new trial, charged that testimony given by state troopers in identifying Coyne with the Monaca Club had been contradictory.

Judge Dithrich asked Duggan:

"Who is the boss of the Fourth Ward?"

Duggan replied:

"I'm from the country and I cannot say."

After hearing the arguments, the court withheld decision.

McKeever, highly regarded in the community, had been long active in township affairs, and was an advocate of tax reforms.

DILLINGER GANG ROBS POLICE

CHICAGO, April 30. — (AP.) — Four gunmen climaxed a two-mile chase with a hand-to-hand battle with police in suburban Bellwood early today—and the officers said one of the four, all of whom escaped, "looked like" John Dillinger, the hunted killer.

Another of them, said Police Lieut. Joseph Hagemeister, resembled George (Baby Face) Nelson, the little gunner of the Dillinger gang, and a third bore a likeness to Henry Fox, another Dillinger aide.

The chase ended when the hoodlums disarmed the officers. One of the men hit Policeman Harry Whalen over the head with a machine gun before speeding away in the darkness with his companions.

Whalen, Lieut. Hagemeister and Policeman Gus Mendze began the chase in a police car when the

GABLE IN CLASH OVER CONNIE

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, April 30. — All Hollywood was wondering today why Clark Gable and Gilbert Roland quarreled early Sunday.

It was at the home of Samuel Goldwyn. All the screen luminaries had gathered to celebrate the anniversary of Darryl Zanuck's first year as producer for Twentieth Century Pictures.

Hollywood reports say Gable was talking to Constance Bennett and Roland was sitting at a table nearby, playing bridge. Suddenly Roland challenged Gable. Roland is reported to have said:

"You quit picking on her and pick on me."

Gable was willing. However, other guests separated the pair before a blow was struck.

Mystery Cloaks Garage Death of Tax Collector

Lying on the garage floor, his head close to the exhaust of his automobile, Andrew McKeever, 30, tax collector and treasurer of Wilkins Township, was found dead today. The motor of the car was not running.

McKeever's mother, Mrs. Tillie McKeever, found the body early this morning, she reported to the coroner's office.

She said that McKeever returned to his home at Linhart about midnight Sunday and that after talking with her for a few minutes he went to the garage, saying he left his keys in the car.

Mrs. McKeever then retired, she told investigators, and when she arose this morning learned that her son had not occupied his bed last night.

Going to the garage to see if the car was there, she discovered the body.

McKeever was unmarried.

Commissioner B. H. Goodwin, of Wilkins Township, said today that a recent audit of McKeever's books had shown them to be in good order.

SOCIETY BEAUTY WED SECRETLY

When Elliott Rodgers Coyle went shopping for an engagement ring for his fiancee, pretty Miss Dorothy Gordon Clark, a debutante of the past fall, he bought a wedding ring, too.

Deciding to avoid the fuss of a fashionable wedding, they motored to Wellsburg, W. Va., to be married Wednesday, March 21. They will be at home in 5715 Munhall road after June 1, and the bride's parents are now announcing their daughter's marriage instead of engagement.

The striking, brown-eyed postdeb is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Clark, of 5219 Pembroke place, and the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Coyle, Jr., of 6608 Beacon street.

She is a graduate of the Ellis School, studied music at Pennsylvania College for Women, and made her debut at a tea-dance her parents gave December 26 in the Twentieth Century Club.

Homesick Roxie Gets in Trouble

Rocco Di Pippa, alias Roxie Long, racketeer, back to pay the home town a visit, was seized by government agents today.

Roxies had wandered back to town in violation of his parole from the Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., one of the provisions of which was that he should remain out of Pittsburgh. As a result, he may have to serve the remaining 72 days of a liquor term at the pen. His fate will be decided by the Federal Parole Board.

Students Strike on Ousted Teachers

School Board Split Arouses Neville Township

Demanding the re-election of three of their teachers, scheduled to be dropped at the close of the present term, approximately 100 students of the Neville Township Junior High School went on strike today.

Throughout the morning they spurned all pleas of teachers, township officials and a few of their parents to return to their classes, but after the noon recess about half of them went back to their studies "under protest."

The student walkout followed a split in the school board that also resulted in dividing the community into two sharply opposing factions.

Many residents, however, backed the students in their demands and charged that the majority of the recently reorganized school board, of which William Irvine, Sr., a new member, is president, was using the school for political purposes.

There were no disorders, but practically the entire student body gathered this morning outside the school house and refused to enter the building, demanding assurance from the board that the three teachers, slated for dismissal, and those whose reappointment have not yet been acted upon, would be retained on the faculty.

Cheering the teachers as they arrived on the school grounds, some of the students displayed placards reading:

"No school Monday. We want our regular teachers."

Miss Martha Willard, Miss Twilla Johnston and Mrs. Grace Constantine were notified Friday, according to reports, that their contracts would not be renewed.

Three other appointments were tabled at last Thursday night's meeting of the township, school board, including those of Miss Elizabeth Lackey, principal of the school since 1917; Mrs. Caroline Gallagher, widow supporting two children, who is Miss Lackey's secretary, and Miss Nancy Kirk, school nurse and truant officer.

According to charges of citizens and students, Mrs. Katherine Speer, elected to fill Miss Willard's place, is the wife of an employed township resident and a member of one of the community's wealthiest families.

Richard Fox, a former member, charged the board was playing politics with the school, and engaged in heated debate with the three majority members.

Test-Tube Babies Born To Bachelor Girls

International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Two prominent New York business women, childless until recently, have found the answer to their mother urge through "test tube babies," Dr. Frances Isabelle Seymore, who claims a new technique for synthetic motherhood, declared today.

Both are "bachelor women," the surgeon said, and they came to her each eager for a child of her own, yet unwilling to enter into wedlock to attain that end.

And though test-tube babies may not be exactly new, Dr. Seymore also claimed today that scientific efforts had just been crowned by the birth of a pair of test tube twins.

The twins increased the number of test-tube babies brought about recently by "gravity" methods to 13.

WEIRTON BATTLE WITH NRA ON IN FEDERAL COURT

BIG BUSINESS WAITING FOR OUTCOME

Collective Bargaining Main Issue in Contest

ton, special assistant attorneys general.

Waiting to present the case for the Weirton firm, and to lay before Judge Nields its charge that Section 7-A (the collective bargaining section) of the National Recovery Act, is unconstitutional and illegal, were Robert H. Richards and Caleb S. Layton, of Wilmington, and Earl F. Reed, of Pittsburgh.

FIGHTS AFFIDAVITS

Fly opened the government's case with a brief review of the history of the case, stressing that the action was started to test the right of collective bargaining by workers as provided in the recovery act.

Reed moved that certain affidavits in the already gigantic preliminary record of the suit be stricken from the records. The affidavits were filed by the government Saturday and dealt with alleged attempts by the steel firm to influence workers in selecting representatives in bargaining efforts. The counsel for the steel company sought leave to file counter-affidavits.

Fly charged the steel firm with interference in the workers' election and also alleged breach of agreement with the government by the company in not allowing the National Labor Board to conduct the election last fall.

HITS INJUNCTION

Outlining the position of the company, Reed declared that 80 per cent of Weirton Steel employes favor the present method of collective bargaining—an employes' representation, or "company union" plan—and that issuance of the injunction sought by the government would endanger that plan as well as those operated in other industries.

Reed charged "there is a small group of workers at the Weirton steel mills who want recognition of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers who are behind all this."

He also claimed that there is "even now a dispute between the administrators of NRA and the National Labor Board as to whether the representatives of the majority of the workers in a certain collective bargaining unit represents only the majority of the workers or all the workers, including the minority who may be in favor of another method of collective bargaining."

BANK OPENING FREES CASH

Succeeding the Hazelwood Savings and Trust Company, the Hazelwood Bank, at 4801 Second avenue, was open for business today after undergoing complete reorganization.

Forty per cent of the frozen assets of the old bank were released in cash, and 16 per cent of the frozen deposits were made available as stock in the new bank. All accounts of the Savings and Trust Company of $100 or less were paid in full, as were all Christmas savings and other similar deposits.

The deposit liability of the Hazelwood Savings and Trust Company when it was restricted a year ago was about $1,600,000. The new bank has capital of $200,000, surplus of $100,000, undivided profits of $20,178 and deposits of $720,270.

BRADDOCK RAID STIRS FEUD

A feud over raiding activities in Braddock today resulted in the imposition of a fine of $1 and costs on Constable Michael Mehalik, former chief of police, and a fine of $2 and costs on Constable Joseph Slane.

They were charged with disorderly conduct. Both have appealed the fines, imposed by Burgess Fred Seim.

Previously Mehalik had been fined $10, also on a disorderly conduct charge.

The police opened the raids Friday by swooping on an alleged disorderly house. The constables then raided an alleged gambling house. When they attempted to raid a poolroom, they charge they were warned by a policeman that they would be arrested for breaking and entering.

Meanwhile, Edwin Weisman has filed charges of felonious assault and battery and pointing firearms against Mehalik before Justice of the Peace Charles M. Richards, of North Braddock.

Weisman, arrested by Mehalik on a charge of maintaining gambling devices, will be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace George H. House.

United States Department of Justice agents already have taken a hand in attempts to effect the safe return of the brown-eyed girl who was kidnaped last Wednesday. They were understood to have expressed approval of the mission of the elder Robles, at whose wealth the $15,000 ransom demand was directed. Reliable reports said that his mission was for the purpose of contacting the girl's abductors, perhaps personally.

STEEL MEN SIFT RED PLANS

Rumors that Communists were endeavoring to get a foothold within the conservative Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers have resulted in close scrutiny of all resolutions before the Amalgamated convention here, it was learned yesterday.

After closing the second week of the convention in Elks auditorium, International President M. F. Tighe declared:

"I believe all of our men are loyal to the organization and would not knowingly further anything of a Communistic nature, but in their enthusiasm some of the younger fellows might be victimized."

'Gas' Union Head Denies Strike Plan

Robert Zollinger, president of the recently organized Local No. 19,204, Gasoline Station Employes' Union, was quoted today as saying no strike here was contemplated "for the present at least." Rumors of an impending strike were said to have caused a rush by buyers to stock up on "gas."

Zollinger said negotiations have been undertaken with representatives of several chain distributing gasoline companies for union recognition.

Doctors Order Quiet For 'Oldest Man'

ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 30.—(AP.)—Absolute quiet was ordered today for Zaro Agha, who claims to be the oldest person in the world.

The Turk, who says he is 160, is in the National Children's Hospital. Doctors said his condition was grave. All visitors—save for the patient's 70-year-old grandson—were barred from the room.

PATROL CRASH INJURES 3

While returning from the Allegheny General Hospital with a wounded prisoner, two wagonmen of Central Police station were injured early today when their patrol was wrecked in a collision with an Emsworth street car at Federal and General Robinson streets.

The two policemen, Louis Ebner, of 35 Maytag street, and Thomas Cox, of 4094 Cabinet street, suffered bruises and lacerations. Both were treated at Allegheny General Hospital. Their prisoner, who had been arrested at Tenth street and Liberty avenue, on a drunkenness charge and had been treated at the hospital for an arm laceration, escaped further injury.

RELIEF CRISIS FACING STATE IN RWD LAYOFF

failed to assign a comptroller number for the work they were doing.

Fears that a relief crisis was impending caused the Community Councils to take action two weeks ago, it was learned today. The program was originally launched because the State Treasury was dry of funds to match the federal relief grants, according to Dr. Francis D. Tyson.

MANY FACE EVICTION

A committee of four was appointed to frame a program for concerted action in obtaining more funds for the RWD program and for easing the eviction problem, since thousands are facing eviction tomorrow, the regular moving day.

The committee has quickened its pace since the sudden shutdown of the RWD program last Friday noon, and will today bring to bear as much pressure as possible in Washington to aid the Governor in obtaining more federal funds.

Reports that a curtailment of food relief distribution were imminent were discounted by George P. Mills, director of the Emergency Relief Board. He declared he did not believe the federal government would "let down" any community on distribution of direct relief.

COMMITTEE TO MEET

He added:

"The work program is certainly a secondary consideration to actual direct relief, which prevents starvation. It is inconceivable to me that th' vill be out."

The committee of the Community Councils will meet this week to frame their program, according to Dr. Tyson. The other members are John D. Beatty, of Carnegie Institute of Technology; Joseph Tufts, of the Pittsburgh Housing Association, and the Rev. Henry E. Nicklen, of Beechview.

Police Holding Two In Robbery Attempt

'Sell-Out' by Jailer Hinted as 3 Flee Over Walls

COLUMBUS, April 30.—(AP.)—Three convicts with a smuggled pistol, who slid over the wall of Ohio Penitentiary after disarming a guard, were free today as Warden P. E. Thomas promised "an investigation until we can find out, if possible, where the gun came from."

The three prisoners — Martin Schmidt, a bank robber; Arthur R. Koontz, an auto thief, and Rufus Deeds, robber—worked their way through a guard, which for weeks has been watching for an attempt to free three former members of John Dillinger's outfit.

Warden Thomas, who tomorrow will celebrate his twenty-first anniversary as head of the institution, said the gun either had been smuggled in by an unfaithful guard or was the legendary pistol which prison grapevines rumored has been hidden in the prison for years.

Flourishing the pistol, the men cowed 14 fellow convicts and two civilian officials, climbed a ladder to the top of the wall on the pretext of repairing a searchlight, disarmed the tower guard and slid to the ground on a cable which they had brought along. They took a shotgun from the guard and cut the telephone wires leading to the prison office.

Three more notorious jail breakers in the prison, Harry Pierpont, Charles Makley and Russell Clark, apparently knew nothing of the plot. Former members of Dillinger's bank raiding gang, Pierpont and Makley are awaiting electrocution for the murder of Sheriff Jess L. Sarber in a raid at Lima, O., to free Dillinger. Clark is serving a life sentence.

The three convicts stole an automobile as soon as they reached free ground and reports to Columbus police indicated they changed automobiles twice after that.

Leonard Binford said the convicts forced him and a woman out of his car with a shotgun a short distance from the prison.

Warden Thomas said he heard a rumor several years ago that a gun was hidden "between some two-by-fours," but had been unable to find it. Either this gun was used or a guard "sold out," the warden said.

BROTHER'S BAT INJURES GIRL

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—Victim of her zealous admiration of her olded brother, four-year-old Alberta Macklin lay in St. Mary's Hospital tday on the brink of death.

Despite an emergency operation, doctors were fearful that the little girl may not recover from a fractured skull she suffered when her 14-year-old brother, Bill, swung his bat vigorously during a backyard ball game.

Alberta always was Bill's faithful "fan." Wherever he went, she would go. And so it came to pass that when Bill stepped up to the home plate, bat in hand, Alberta edged closer to her brother to get a better view of him hitting the ball. He swung, and before the umpire could call "strike," the little girl fell unconscious.

HARRIMAN TRIAL CALLS 'STARS'

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Constance Talmadge, one time star of the silent screen, and the much-married Peggy Hopkins Joyce are to be subpenaed as witnesses in the trial of Joseph W. Harriman, Federal Attorney Conboy has disclosed.

Harriman, whose trial is scheduled to open this week, is charged with falsifying books and misusing funds of the bank which he founded, and which bears his name. Miss Talmadge and Miss Joyce both had accounts in the bank, which were among those said to have been manipulated.

Miss Talmadge's balance in the Harriman bank, now closed, amounted to $34,312. Miss Joyce owned a balance of $34,375 under her maiden name, Marguerite Upton.

Fall Down Stairs Fatal, Quiz Ordered

His skull fractured in a fall down stairs, Andrew Hazugo, 60, of Washington boulevard, McKeesport, died today in McKeesport Hospital, according to a report to the Coroner. Chief Deputy Coroner John Aldisert ordered an inquiry. The accident was reported to have occurred yesterday at 1010 Lysle avenue, Port Vue.

POLICEMAN SLUGGED

Two of the gunmen jumped out. One, armed with a machine gun, forced the three officers to give up their weapons and struck Whalen. The other two men, remaining in their car, held machine guns on the officers.

The four then resumed their flight, eluding Forest Park policemen who attempted to intercept them.

The skirmish came as a rumor of Dillinger's death was gaining circulation. This report had it that the desperado may have been mortally wounded when he and his pals blazed their way out of the Little Bohemia resort country near Mercer, Wis., a week ago this morning.

The rumor, heard several times since the greatest manhunt of the decade began, received official notice last night. Melvin H. Purvis, chief of the Chicago office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, made the terse announcement that federal officers have been "unable to verify reports that Dillinger is dead in Wisconsin."

Authorities established definitely the identities of the three young women caught in the Little Bohemia resort and since held in jail at Madison, Wis. They named one of them as the wife of "Baby Face" Nelson and the other two as friends of Tommy Carroll and Homer Van Meter, henchmen of Dillinger.

'Dillinger' Search Brings Arrest of 3

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., April 30.—Reports that John Dillinger and three members of his gang were in Beaver Falls failed to net the outlaw, but resulted in the arrest of three men said to be wanted in Sharon for working a confidence game.

Joe Mascenyik and Charles Sabone, both of Sharon, and W. A. Jackson, of Detroit, were seized after police searched their suite in the Brodhead Hotel. The reported resemblance of one of the men to Dillinger caused the manager of the hotel to notify police, who flocked to the scene and raided the rooms.

Policeman Robbed Of $14,064 in Store

BOSTON, April 30.—(AP.)—Two robbers held up a special policeman in the store of Sears, Roebuck and Company in the Back Bay today, and escaped with $14,064 in cash and $2,860 in checks.

A police patrol in an automobile picked up the trail of the bandits and was pursuing them into the Roxbury district. The chase led through miles of streets through a thickly congested area.

Wage Boost Ends Apollo Steel Strike

APOLLO, Pa., April 30.—Employes of the Pittsburgh Steel Drum Company were granted a 15 per cent raise today and returned to work after a week's strike.

J. D. Moore, representative of the Regional Labor Board, arranged the settlement. Terms of the settlement provided that they be paid $4 a day for each of the seven days they were on strike.

'BOSS' ADMITS HANDLING 'HOT' BREMER CASH

Chicago Politician Says HE Had $53,000 of Ransom Money

CHICAGO, April 30.—(AP.)—John J. (Boss) McLaughlin has confessed handling $53,000 of the ransom collected from Edward Bremer, St. Paul banker, the Federal Bureau of Investigation disclosed today.

McLaughlin was held in $100,000 bond Saturday for removal to St. Paul for trial under the "Lindbergh" kidnaping act.

His arrest followed the recovery of $2,665 in $5 and $10 bills identified as part of the ransom money. The "hot" currency was found on William E. Vidler, a gambler, last Thursday.

Melvin H. Purvis, chief of the Chicago office of the Bureau of Investigation, announced that McLaughlin had made a full confession of his part in the disposition of portions of the $200,000 ransom paid for Bremer's freedom after his capture by kidnapers.

Four men were in Federal custody—McLaughlin and Vidler already arraigned, and two others awaiting the issuance of warrants charging them also with conspiracy.

Purvis said the government had recovered $3,400 of the ransom. They found $85 of it Saturday on young Jack McLaughlin, 17-year-old son of the erstwhile West Side political boss, Purvis said. Still more was found in possession of Phillip Delaney, whose arrest in McLaughlin's home at the same time the "Boss" was seized became known only today.

Delaney, the foruth accused of conspiring in the disposition of the ransom, was alleged to have handled $24,000 of the money that passed through McLaughlin's hands.

The government is hunting two Oklahoma ex-convicts, Arthur Barker and Alvin Karpis, as the actual abductors of the St. Paul Banker.

RFC LOAN AIMED FOR INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP.)—Broad authority for the Reconstruction Corporation to make direct loans to industry was sought today by a powerful group within the Senate Banking Committee.

Headed by Senator Barkley (Dem.), of Kentucky, the group wanted to give the RFC almost unlimited authority to make five years loans to industry as a supplement to the administration bill proposing the extension of such loans through Federal Reserve Banks.

Barkley and others on the committee contend the administration bill, approved by the committee Saturday, is too hedged about by restrictions to meet the situation.

They pointed out that the maximum fund available under the reserve board plan introduced by Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, would be $280,000,000, while estimates to the committee as to the amount needed have run upwards from $300,000,000.

SILVER BLOC TO CONFER

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP.)—The militant congressional silver bloc, determined to pass mandatory silver legislation this session despite presidential disfavor, today planned an early meeting to map a specific program.

The Senate Banking Committee, meanwhile, was to take up today the question of whether to seek an investigation of silver holders.

Some of the white metal advocates have said they considered too much a matter of the future President Roosevelt's compromise suggestions to negotiate an international agreement under which nations would have 30 per cent of their monetary reserves in silver.

New Blue Eagle Emblems Due Here

New Blue Eagles signs—more than 200,000 of them—were expected to arrive from Washington late today. They are to be mailed from the Pittsburgh postoffice to those whose applications have been approved.

The new emblem drops the slogan "We Do Our Part" and substitutes the name of the industry and registration number of each firm. It will be displayed later this week.

Next 'Met' Season To Last 14 Weeks

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—Next year's season of opera will be for 14 weeks and will begin December 24, the Metropolitan Opera Association announced today.

It also announced the beginning of a campaign for season subscribers, so that public appeals for funds, which have been made both this year and last, may be avoided.

World Armed Camp On May-Day Eve

Police will be ready for any May Day demonstrations tomorrow by radicals, Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall said today.

Marshall said he anticipated no trouble, but instructed Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey to have a detail of 50 motorcycle patrolmen prepared to be on hand in any part of the city on 20 minutes notice.

Associated Press.

Police and soldiers of many lands were martialed for extraordinary duty today as authorities girded for battle in outbreaks feared on May Day.

New York laid the most extensive plans in its history to guard against violence as parades were announced in which 200,000 marchers are expected to appear. Communists and their sympathizers will form one parade, while Socialists and affiliated groups have planned the other.

Other American cities made similar drastic precautionary preparations today.

In Paris Tuesday, 18,000 police, 10,000 mobile guards and 3,000 mounted guards will be ready for action if mobs take to the streets during a May Day general strike against recent government economy decrees.

Red flags flew in many parts of Havana, calling upon all classes to join in Communist May Day demonstrations in which 40,000 are expected to participate. Soldiers made ready to meet any uprising.

Austria began its precautionary moves by rounding up known agitators. Men suspected of plotting to dynamite government buildings were arrested Sunday in Vienna's underground sewer system. It was there that many Socialist fighters held forth during the February civil war.

A "state of alarm" already had been declared in Spain. There was fear of violent disorders in connection with a general strike called by Socialists and Extremists in Madrid.

Nine foreign communists and one Belgian were arrested at Brussels and Malines, charged with preparing revolutionary agitation for May Day.

STATE WITNESS REVEALED AS GUEST IN DAVIS HOME

'KIDNAP' VICTIM TESTIFIES FOR YOUTH

Boy's Entire Family Backs Alibi; Case Nearing Jury

The East Peoria (Ill.) machinist who was "kidnaped" and taken for a wild ride by young Tom Davis, now on trial for his life, and brought here as a commonwealth witness, was revealed today as a guest at the Davis home.

W. S. Reybolds had testified for the state against the 19-year-old high school youth, charged with shooting to death State Highway Patrolman Herbert Brantlinger, September 3, 1933 near Bridgeville.

Today Reynolds appeared as a defense witness. He testified that when he had gone to the jail at Pekin, Ill., to identify Davis as his abductor he noticed the youth's lips were swollen and his leg injured. This was to corroborate Davis' testimony that he had been manhandled to force a confession. Davis took Reynolds in an attempt to escape police, the state contends.

STAYING AT DAVIS HOME

On cross-examination by Assistant District Attorney Roy Clunk, Reynolds testified he had been staying at the Davis home since yesterday, following his summons by the defense. He previously had stayed at a hotel, he said.

The entire Davis family took the stand one after another today to support the accused youth's alibi. His mother, Mrs. Thomas A. Davis, his two brothers, Frederick, 17, and George, 14, and his 10-year-old sister, Gracie, in turn testified that Tom had been at home all evening on the date Patrolman Brantlinger was slain.

CASE NEARS JURY

The youth's uncle, Dave Ryan, of Cheswick, further backed up the alibi defense by testifying the rifle alleged to have been used by young Davis in the slaying was night. Davis had taken the rifle and a shotgun to the Ryan rififlle and a shotgun to the Ryan home preparatory to a hunting trip, the uncle testified.

The case was expected to reach the jury tomorrow.

FACE BRUISED, HE SAYS

Davis resumed the stand in his own defense this morning, testifying as to third degree methods use by Pennsylania State Police. He told the jury his face was bruised and his lips swollen by blows of Lieut. C. C. Keller, to force him to confess.

Highlights of young Davis' six and one-half-hours previous testimony were repudiation of his confession to the murder, on charges that state police used third degree methods to obtain the statement, and a long examination by Defense Attorney Robert B. Ivory, Jr., with an eye toward establishment of the alibi—that Tom was at home at the time of the shooting.

CHARGES MALTREATMENT

According to the South Hills High School senior, the state police forced him to hold his hands over a hot stove, slapped and punched him and resorted to threats in order to make him confess during a six-hour quiz in a lonely lodge near Carlyle, Ill., where he had been jailed by authorities.

Declaring the confession was dictated by Lieut. Keller, Davis said he signed it because:

"I knew I hadn't done it and thought when I got back home I could prove it."

Speaking coolly in a low, distinct voice, the boy gave his version of the gun battle with Deputy Sheriff J. C. Donnewald, of Carlyle, after leaving his home September 20 as the result of an argument with his father; of the alleged gun fight near Pekin, Ill., and of his escape from the Clinton County Jail, Carlyle.

FATHER BACKS STORY

The youth's father, a former Justice of the Peace, followed him to the stand to corroborate Tom's story of events leading to his leaving home—an act motivated, the state contends, by the fact that a check of automobiles in an effort to find the death car was drawing tighter.

Mr. Davis, nervous and showing the strain of the trial, said:

"We had an argument. I opened the kitchen door and told him he could get out if he didn't like it—that I was tired of keeping him and having him sass me."

(Fighting for control, the boy's father winced, then burst into tears. Facing him, 20 feet away, his wife also broke down.)

"He tried to apologize, but I wouldn't listen. When I got up the next morning . . . he was gone."

SCOTS IN PERIL OF POLYGAMY

DUNDEE, Scotland, April 30.—(AP.)—Scotland's birthrate fell off so badly in 1933 that, in the opinion of one vital statistics expert, "some form of polygamy" may be necessary.

W. H. Phillips, retiring president of the Association of Registrars, said in a speech that if, in the future, the population should be reduced by one-half, then, "regrettable though it might appear to some," he believed public opinion would, perhaps, insist on more than one wife per Scot.

He said last year's birthrate was the lowest on record.

GIRL BARES GIFT IN MILLEN CASE

International News Service.

DEDHAM, Mass., April 30.—Rose Knellar, sweetheart of Abe Faber, on trial for murder, with Murton and Irving Millen, today testified against her fiancee.

Called as a state witness, Miss Knellar, a slim, dark girl of 21, told of a wedding gift given her by Faber about a week after the robbery of the Needham Trust Company on February 2.

The prosecution aimed to show this "gift" was money stolen from the Needham bank. Testimony was as follows:

"What did Faber say to you when he gave you the package?"

"He said it was a present."

"What kind of a present was it?"

"A wedding present, he told me. I asked him who gave it to us. He said: 'I would rather not tell you.'

"I asked him if he would tell me, if I coaxed him, and he said he would if I coaxed him, but he said he hoped I wouldn't coax him."

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Nila Cram Cook says the thin, sad music of the vina (which sounds like a banjo-uke) mends all tattered hearts and makes one love one's neighbors. And—all reports to the contrary—the vina has kept peace between Nila and Mahatma Gandhi.

The giggling disciple of the Mahatma lectured at Washington Irving High School on Indian music. A melancholy Hindu troubadour delivered a mournful concert on the vina, which has as many strings as a mandolin and looks like a fiddle with a big neck and a stunted body.

Nila's finger waggled at the audience, mostly children, who applauded when she paused, as she explained her "quarrel" with Gandhi and her escapades in India before being shipped back to the United States. She said:

"It was all a lot of ballyhoo. The Mahatma and I are good friends. We never had a fight. He writes to me every week, and I write to him. He writes to me like a father writes to his daughter. My friends, no one ever gets angry in India. The music of the vina prevents that."

Nila sat crossed-legged on a mound of pillows on the stage and told of the vina's charms on Indian married life:

"Now, Gahu will play the song of the hours before sunrise."

Gahu never said a word; went right into his act. Several songs all sounded alike—all resembling "Yankee Doodle" at a funeral pace.

Nila was asked about her steward-husband, Al Hutchins. She replied:

"Which marriage? Oh, that one. That doesn't count. It never was a marriage. I pay no attention to it."

Judge Files Plea For Bankruptcy

Forced into bankruptcy by an involuntary petition, filed in Federal Court a month ago by his creditors, Judge Joseph Orin Waite, of the Erie County Orphans Court, today filed a voluntary petition, asking the court to declare him a bankrupt.

In his petition, Judge Waite listed liabilities aggregating $114,263.45, of which $96,983 are insecured claims. His assets were placed at $57,522.77, including $13,800 in real estate, the balance in stocks and bonds.

SCHOOL LOOT $2, SEEK BOYS

Lawrenceville police today are searching for a band of young robbers who ransacked three schools in the district late Saturday. The loot totaled $2 and three street car tokens.

The schools reported entered were the McCandless School, 5250 Butler street; the Washington Military School, Fortieth and Butler streets, and the Sunnyside School, 5701 McCandless street.

Richard Mulvihill, 10, of 305 Lowell street, reported he and his two companions—Jack Downey, 12, of 226 Carver street, and Philip Chiccarella, 12, of 509 McDonald street—were held up in Highland Park by a youth who stole their roller skates, according to a police report.

Charles Steen, of 1330 Gibbons street, reported to police he was slugged and robbed of $10 by two Negroes at Clark and Crawford streets Saturday night.

John Kuzia, of 3225 Dobson street, reported two Negro women robbed him of $190 in a house at 114 Crawford street Saturday night, police said.

Four men held up Dan Gleason, of 719 Forbes street, in Stevenson street Saturday night and robbed him of $31, according to a police report.

Charles Losey, of 210 Brighton avenue, Bellevue, reported to police that two armed men whom he found in the back of his automobile while it was parked at 1376 River avenue forced him to drive to Thirtieth street, where they robbed him of his watch valued at $15.

Insull, Nearing U. S., Grins at Radio Joke

ABOARD S. S. EXILONA, At Sea, April 30.—(INS.)—Now in radio communication with American stations, the Exilona rapidly approached the United States today as it was favored again with fine weather, bringing Samuel Insull another day nearer his Chicago trial.

Last night when the New York broadcasting stations were contacted for the first time Insull sat up late listening to the radio comedians. He grinned and laughed at the jokes.

Bride Frets as Voronoff Holds Up Honeymoon

Thus the scientist explained his marriage to the beautiful 20-year-old Austrian, Gertrude Swetz, before departing for his Villa Voronoff on the Ligurian coast to spend his honeymoon.

Voronoff and his tall, dark-eyed, brown-haired bride arose early yesterday, prepared to catch a Pullman express to Genoa. The scientist said:

"I am going back to my work, taking my bride, that is all."

The laboratory at the villa, Dr. Voronoff continued, is ready for immediate resumption of experiments. He affirmed reports that a number of monkeys are there ready for treatments.

By this time the bridal group had reached the station platform. The bride fretted:

Voronoff hugged his bride and soothed:

"Never mind, cherie. There are other trains."

Safely on a slower train, Dr. Voronoff replied to the question of whether his marriage was in any way connected with his scientific experiments by saying:

Motorist Stoned By Spurned Hiker

SPOKANE, Wash., May 1.—(AP.)—It's dangerous also not to pick up hitch-hikers, Robert Hughes, 19, learned.

8-IN-1 'BO' WINS IN MUTT SHOW

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—The waifs of Manhattan's cat and dog world convened in full strength yesterday to prove their somewhat proletarian theory that after all blood will tell, provided its mixed. Felines and canines from the stray department of the Ellen Prince Speyer Hospital for animals held their fifth annual show.

In the mongrel and supermongrel class top honors went to a mutt named "Bo," in whom were identified at least eight strains—shepherd, Airedale, black and tan terrier, brindle bull, English setter, Boston bull, collie and wire-haired fox terrier.

Loudest purr medal was bestowed on a red tiger cat named "Susie," who required only slight manipulation behind the left ear to reminisce vocally of the buzzsaw days of her early life in a lumber yard.

But the day's hero was "Chingy," half-chow, who was credited with saving many lives by barking and arousing most of the tenants of a tenement house which burned February 17, killing his former master and mistress and their three children.

Two Downtown Fires Cause Slight Damage

Downtown firemen were called to Wall's drug store, 643 Fifth avenue, yesterday, when the liquid in a vending machine used for filling cigar lighters ignited. No damage was reported.

Fire in the refrigeration plant of E. A. Kimmich's stand in the Diamond Market, Diamond and Market streets, last night, filled the entire building with dense smoke and resulted in a loss estimated by Deputy Chief R. E. Hiller at $400.

MILLIONS ASKED TO IMPROVE MAYVIEW

Hay Explains Plan To Council—Tells Of New Probe

Recommendation for an appropriation of $2,662,000 to be expended in improvements and general bettering of conditions at the city home and hospital at Mayview was made to City Council today by Southard Hay, welfare director.

His plan calls for $1,264,000 for construction of a new mental receiving building, $1,000,000 for a mental tubercular building and $150,000 for an addition to the present general hospital building.

In addition, Hay seeks $76,000 for increased personnel, $28,250 to meet the 10 per cent pay increase voted by Council for low-salaried employes, $64,131 as an increased food allotment and $80,000 for butter, milk and fresh fruits.

NEW INVESTIGATION

At the same time Hay revealed that a new investigation by the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers League is scheduled to get under way tomorrow.

Dr. J. J. Buchanan, representing the league and who will take active part in the investigation, asserted that the recent report of a committee named by Mayor William N. McNair to study Mayview conditions was "too vague."

Referring to the league investigation, Hay said:

"This is a committee to investigate the last investigation."

At the conclusion of his recommendation for the appropriation Hay charged that Council had ignored every recommendation he has made since the first of the year.

BUILDINGS OUTGROWN

Answering, Councilman John J. Kane, Democrat, said:

"I thought the $500,000 bond issue of 1926 took care of that. We were told at that time that the very purpose of that issue was to eliminate conditions of which you now speak."

Councilman William A. Magee, replying for Hay, declared that the requested appropriation was made necessary by the increase of hospital population.

Funds from the $500,000 bond issue were used for building living quarters for nurses and physicians, a new laundry and one general hospital building, known as Kline Infirmary.

The report of the Mayor's committee recommended some of the improvements asked by Hay, with even larger expenditures, better food, an increased staff, elimination of fire hazards and better equipment.

RUSH PRISONER FROM MOB

CRISFIELD, Md., April 30.—(AP.)—Sheriff Luther Daugherty early today captured Harry Flemming, Negro, for whom hundreds of men and boys had searched the woods and swamps since early last night.

Flemming, wanted for seriously wounding Policeman Harry Daugherty with a chisel, was in the hands of a guard of state police and being rushed to Baltimore before the Sheriff let the searching crowd know their man was gone.

The crowd, at times estimated at more than 500 people, had been looking for the Negro since about 9 o'clock last night. It had dwindled to around a hundred early this morning when the town fire siren shrieked out to summon more men to the hunt. It was at that time that the empty swamp, several miles from here, was surrounded.

At the hospital today it was said that the officer had only a fighting chance to live.

'13' GETS COLD IN HEAD IN 2D LIFE

Pup Killed and Revived Also Has Terrible Ether Hangover

BERKELEY, Cal., April 30.—(AP.)—Dr. Robert E. Cornish's death defying dog, now 17 days old in its second life, has contracted a head cold.

The animal, named "Thirteen" by Dr. Cornish because it was put to a clinical death and revived April 13, continues to show increasing animation.

Dr. Cornish said the cold may complicate the dog's condition.

"Thirteen" sleeps curled up, more than ever like a normal dog, Dr. Cornish reported, and seems to be less hazy in responding to sights and sounds when awake. The young scientist doubts if the dog will recover entirely.

Records kept by Dr. Cornish, young research worker, who is conducting the life restoration experiment, show the animal has exhibited steady physical improvement, although still semi-conscious. Dr. Cornish said:

"The animal is not unconscious. He probably has a considerable greater degree of consciousness than a normal dog sleeping. In fact, Friday night, for the first time, he slept much as a normal dog, curled up and resting partly on his forefeet.

Following is the record of "Thirteen's" progress, as kept by Dr. Cornish:

Friday, April 13, 3:58 p. m.—Started giving dog ether.
4:01 p. m.—Dog unconscious.
4:06 p. m.—Breathing stopped.
4:08 p. m.—Heart stopped beating. Death occurred, according to medical standards.
4:11 p. m.—Started resuscitation.
4:12 p. m.—Injected 150 c. c.'s of adrenalin, heparin and defibrinated blood.
4:12½ p. m.—Heart beats and breathing started. Dog restored to life.
4:30 p. m.—Dog barked.
10:35 p. m.—Heart rate increased alarmingly. A solution of gum arabic injected.
Saturday, April 14, 12:40 a. m.—Heart rate normal.
11 a. m.—Heart rate again increased. Dog near death. Three c. c.'s salt solution injected.
6:08 p. m.—Heart rate normal.
Sunday, April 15—Glucose injections given to nourish dog.
Thursday, April 19—Another crisis averted by salt solution injections.
Saturday, April 21—Dog ate liver; started to gain weight.
Friday, April 27—Enjoyed normal night's sleep.

BABY WEIGHING POUND DIES

The father, Joseph Cox, of 827 Phineas street, North Side, took James Clarence to the hospital after his birth last Thursday.

Wrapped in cotton wool, he was placed in an incubator crib and fed with a medicine dropper.

Mrs. Cox, the mother, was in an improved condition today, her physician, Dr. Charles S. Textor, reported.

BRITTEN LINKS STOCK BILL TO 'RED HOUSE'

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—With administration leaders seeking passage by an overwhelming vote as a "warning" to the Senate, the Rayburn stock exchange bill was laid before the House today.

The measure meets the "bill with teeth in it" requirement set down by President Roosevelt, while the Senate Banking Committee drastically changed the administration bill.

An overwhelming vote on passage in the House will strengthen the administration's forces in the bitter fight ahead in the Senate.

ASSAILS MEASURE

While the bill faced violent opposition, Chairman Rayburn (Dem.), of Texas, of the Interstate Commerce Committee, expected the measure to be passed substantially as recommended.

Creation of an independent commission to govern the exchange, as recommended by the Senate committee, and modification of the power of the commission over business appeared to be possible House amendments.

Representative Britten (Rep.), of Illinois, unloosed a barrage against the bill, declaring that it was conceived in "the little red house in Georgetown." This house, Britten says, is the place where the so-called radical legislation of the administration is drafted, Britten said:

"The popular demand for stock exchange regulation has given the Prof. Felix Frankfurter cheer leader a vehicle to control all credit and corporate practices such as not even Russia can boast today."

RAYBURN BACKS BILL

He said that Telford Taylor, "a young and recent graduate from Harvard, now in the Interior Department," was reported to be the father of the original Fletcher-Rayburn bill.

It was "kidnaped" by James M. Landis, federal trade commissioner, and Prof. Frankfurter and they proceede' with the advice of Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the Senate Banking Committee; Thomas Corcoran, RFC counsel, and Benjamin Cohen, PWA lawyer, he asserted.

Denying that the measure provides for regimentation of business, Chairman Rayburn declared that the bill "was conceived in a spirit of truest conservatism."

It is designed, he said, to prevent the abuses that occurred during the boom days up to 1929.

Scolded Boy Hangs Self in Basement

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 30.—(AP.)—Scolded for staying away from Sunday school, 12-year-old Sam Coffman was found hanging lifeless from a basement rafter a short time later by his mother.

The coroner reported the death was accidental—that the youth, attempting to frighten his mother, placed a noose about his neck. The express wagon on which he was standing skidded from beneath him and he was hanged.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Back-Stage Scuffle On Oil Code Waxes Hot and Heavy

WASHINGTON, April 29.—If looks could kill, there would already be about five dead in the back-state scuffle among the New Dealers over the oil code.

The trouble started when the oil code enforcement crowd—the Petroleum Advisory Board—decided to go after three independent producers in Texas for violating the code.

The case was thrown out by a Texas judge who intimated that the NRA was somewhat unconstitutional. The PAB decided the judge was wrong and appealed to the supreme court, which has looked kindly on the New Deal so far.

Trouble immediately developed, not from the defendents, but from other New Dealers who thought it would be a good idea for the government to drop the case and try to forget about it.

HEAT

The matter has been kept extremely confidential, while for the last few days, a half dozen New Dealers have been running around holding conferences to decide what should be done. In those conferences they threw everything at each other except the inkwells.

Everyone admits that the basic constitutional principle of the New Deal is involved, but Donald Richberg, of the NRA, and the Justice Department experts doubted the wisdom of meeting the issue now. The Justice Department apparently did not like the case on legal grounds and Richberg did not like it on any grounds.

"If we lose this case the NRA has nothing to stand on; if we win it, then we will have to go after all code violators and put them in jail."

POSSIBILITIES

The little bird could not believe his ears. NRA officials have said many funny things, but none ever said he doubted the wisdom of going after code violators—not in public, at any rate. The bird must have been wrong, or else Mr. Richberg was.

The case is set for hearing by the Supreme Court May 7. Justice Department legalists have hinted they might insist that the court wash it off the docket.

RESIGNATIONS?

There will be at least two resignations in Interior Secretary Ickes' hands unless the Government goes through with the case.

The PAB crowd, including Solicitor Margold, of the Interior Department, will consider it disheartening to continue trying to enforce an oil code if the Department of Justice lets them down.

Richberg is supposed to have taken the matter to Mr. Roosevelt personally, but the President decided to let the Justice Department handle all such warm spuds.

The D. of J. and Richberg both insist privately that the Interior Department is wrong and that it really is a bad case.

GLITTERING GENERALITIES

Wall street stilll has some secrets and silver is one. The silver list was a joke. Banks shown thereon did not buy for themselves generally, but for customers whose names were not divulged.

Only the insiders knew that the banks had a little trick of making money for themselves out of silver purchases. They are supposed to have bought large blocks early when the price was low, parceling them out later to customers at higher market prices.

Most of the lawyers on the list are supposed to be dummies acting for clients. One silver agitator bought through his secretary and another through his bodyguard.

SOFT PEDAL

The White House Boss has let his international advisers know privately that it will be all right with him if Great Britain assumes the world leadership against Japan.

The British are far deeper in China than we are. Their valuable concessions on the Yangtze River give them a greater interest in Japan's new Monroe Doctrine.

Most of the big boys here are convinced that the latest Japanese maneuver will cause endless unsatisfactory diplomatic negotiations—but nothing more serious

DIVERSION

There have been some suspicions that Agricultural Secretary Henry Wallace's tariff campaign has been serving a useful political purpose as well as an economic one. It has diverted attention somewhat from the AAA.

At least that interpretation was put on it recently by one of the first five New Dealers, who said subtly of the new Wallace campaign:

"I told Henry he ought to stop his hog-killing."

DR. WIRT HURLS ATTACK AT NEW DEAL

CHICAGO, April 30.—(AP.)—Dr. William A. Wirt, Gary (Ind.) educator, charged today there was "frantic struggling to conceal the aims of official Washington."

When he went to Washington to accuse minor and major "New Dealers" of slipping a revolution over on the country, he met, Wirt declared:

"Not only stubborn official resistance, but actual slander, intimidation and other hindrances that do not rest well with free citizens."

In a speech today before an American Legion group, his first public statement since the Congressional committee declared his revolution charges were "unfounded," Dr. Wirt singled out former Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Rexford G. Tugwell and Speaker Henry T. Rainey as having made disturbing statements. He said:

"There are those who have accused me of looking under the bed for Reds and bombs. There is a difference between Red baiting and keeping watch on actual happenings in Washington.

"Only the weight of opinion of the people at large can change the apparent direction of the course now being laid down for them by the authorities in Washington. Public sentiment is at present stupefied by the rosy and vague verbiage used by the Brain Trust to conceal the destination toward which we are being rushed by so called emergency legislation."

Dr. Wirt implied that "government officials" have blocked rather than aided recovery. He declared:

"We actually had recovery in 1933 and destroyed it.

"We lost our recovery during August, 1933, and have not regained it.

"The new dealers stated they did not want that recovery; they wanted to wait for their own type because it would be more substantial.

As for the question of who called President Roosevelt the "Kerensky of the American revolution," a major issue in the Wirt investigation, Dr. Wirt today quoted a magazine writer as having written that the President had "half-jokingly" referred to himself that way.

Dr. Wirt declared flatly:

"We have gone to the left . . . Certainly we are on our way with a revolution by means of evolution and there is no limit to how far we can go."

GEM RINGS

Throughout the centuries Rings have been the symbol of betrothal and marriage, the perfect circle denoting the perfect union which has no end. Grogan Rings, particularly the ones bound up with these most sacred events, sustain the highest tradition of the goldsmith's art. Their designers are heirs to the jeweler's knowledge of the ages.

The perfection of the gems and the craftsmanship on the mountings which hold them, are evidence of their worth.

Celebrating 20 Years of Progress with Pittsburgh

Maybe it's just because these last 20 years have been our twenty years . . . but they seem to be the richest years of Pittsburgh history. We've seen a group of small towns, geographically separate, knit into one great community by magnificent bridges, by wide boulevards, by tunnels that literally cut through mountains. We've watched Pittsburgh become one of the educational centers of the nation with five universities and colleges. We've seen her raise towering buildings to house businesses known all over the world.

How proud we are to be an integral part of such a city. Proud to have done our part in providing for the lives and happiness of her citizens. Proud to have won a recognized place in your households. As a culmination of all our efforts, to celebrate twenty years of progress, we offer our Anniversary Sale . . . an event planned months ahead . . . with values which even we could not duplicate during the rest of the year. You'll find a few such values on this page. You'll want to read every Gimbel advertisement carefully for other values. Then shop each of our twelve selling floors for those we have no room to mention here.

AXMINSTER RUGS

MOHAWK'S REGULAR 32.50 WEAVE

22.50

Every rug perfect . . . fine examples of the superior weaving that has made the Mohawk name stand for unusual beauty and long service. You'll find small Persian patterns, large Chinese effects particularly lovely in dining rooms, a wide selection of Colonial designs. A real Gimbel Anniversary value, this. One you'll want to get in on if you will need a rug in the next six months. Sizes 8.3x10.6 and 9x12.

ROYAL WILTONS . . . 39.50

From the famous Artloom Rug Mills formerly priced at 84.50. Deauvilles, Araks and a big group of other seamless Royal Wiltons. The lowest prilce we can remember for this heavy weave. Some discontinued patterns but such lovely ones, copied from ageless Persian rugs, that they are dateless. 9x12 ft. size.

98.50 BENGAL RUGS . . . 69.50

15th and 16th century masterpieces are reproduced in these rugs. A few years ago we sold them at $185. Even now they are valued close to $100. You can understand how excited we are about having them for May at 69.50. Wait until you feel their silky quality and examine the close weave. 9x12 ft. size.

FATHER SLAIN, SON BATTLES KILLERS

A second suspect is being sought by homicide police today in connection with the gun battle in South Wheeler street last night that resulted in the killing of Daniel Forlastro, 52, an Italian, of 1045 Blackadore street, and the wounding of Edward Marchek, a former constable, of 1009½ Blackadore street.

The dead man's son, Tony Forlastro, 22, who, witnesses say, fought off his father's assassins with his fists in the face of deadly gunfire, was ordered arrested as a material witness today by Inspector Jerry L. Deasy.

At his home at 1035 Blackadore street, shortly after the shooting, police arrested Daniel Ferriero, with whom the elder Forlastro was alleged to have had an argument over a game of cards in a political club in Frankstown avenue prior to the shooting, police reported. Ferriero denied knowing anything of the shooting.

EYE-WITNESS HELD

Later, Inspector Deasy ordered his police to take the officers of the M. A. Z. Political Club, 7632 Frankstown avenue, into custody for questioning. Police also took into custody Orlando Perry, 23, of 8116 Frankstown avenue, an eye-witness to the shooting.

The details of the card game argument were not learned by police. It was said, however, that Forlastro was led by his friends from the club. The group assembled in Conemaugh street, near Wheeler street, and Forlastro was urged by his friends to go home.

He refused, and it was only when his son, Tony, prevailed that he consented to go, police said. Father and son left their friends and walked several yards in Wheeler street when two men, walking on the other side of the street, crossed toward them and opened fire, police were told.

SON BATTLES GUNMEN

The elder Forlastro fell with two bullets in his abdomen. Tony, walking a few feet in front of his father, rushed the foremost of the assailants and struck him in the face, knocking him down. The second man, seeing his companion beset, turned his gun from Frolastro and began firing at Tony.

Tony, in turn, attacked the second gunman, knocking him down, Perry told police:

"I can't understand why the boy wasn't hit. The guns seemed only a few feet away from him. They kept firing and firing—there must have been a dozen shots—and when their guns were empty they turned and ran down Wheeler street and disappeared in Frankstown avenue."

SUSPECT BRUISED

Ferriero, the father of several children, was arrested in his home a few minutes after the shooting. At the time of his arrest, police said, his face was bleeding and bruised.

Marchek, who police said was among those in company with Forlastro just before the shooting, was hit by a stray bullet. It entered his head near the right temple. In the Pittsburgh Hospital his condition was reported fair. He told homicide detectives:

"I was walking in Wheeler street when I heard some shots. I started to run and then I was hit."

Perry said more than 50 persons witnessed the shooting, which occurred shortly before 10 o'clock.

Chain Store Tax Upheld by Court

BOISE, Ida., April 30.—(AP.)—Idaho's Supreme Court has upheld the constitutionality of the Idaho chain store tax, which levies annual charges ranging from $5 for individual establishments to $500 a store for those in groups of 20 or more under one management.

Big Ben Shuts Up For House Cleaning

LONDON, April 30.—(AP.)—Big Ben, world famous bell at Westminster Palace, retired yesterday for a two-month overhauling. While workmen [illegible] Big Ben's vitals, Great Tom, the [illegible] of St. Paul's Cathedral, will pinch hit.

URMY PREACHES 2ND FAREWELL

For the second time in six years the Rev. Dr. Ralph B. Urmy preached a farewell sermon yesterday in the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church.

His first was preached at the end of his initial pastorate of seven years in 1928. He relinquished his charge to become editor of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate. Two years ago he was recalled by the Bellevue church.

Yesterday he preached his second farewell to a large congregation. He leaves to become pastor of the First Church at Westfield, N. J. He exchanges pulpits with the Rev. Dr. Roy E. Manne, who arrives this week to take charge at Bellevue. He will occupy the pulpit Sunday.

Norrises, Married 25 Years, Celebrate

PALO ALTO, Cal., April 30—(AP.)—Charles and Kathleen Norris, novelists, observed their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary with an "open house" for friends at their home here yesterday. The only one present who attended the wedding of the couple at St. Paul's Church in New York City was Mrs. Edward Marks, of San Francisco, an aunt of Mrs. Norris.

EXILE TO SEEK TIBET THRONE

HANGCHOW, China, April 30—(AP.)—The mysterious land of Tibet, which has been without a ruler since the death of the Dalai Lama last September, soon may have a successor—but not the sort of sovereign many of the Buddhists have been hoping for.

For the last half year religious dignitaries in Tibet have been searching the country for a newborn babe in whom they could find signs of the traditional reincarnation of the Dalai Lama. Their efforts thus far are believed to have been in vain.

The Panchen Lama, who was expelled from Tibet by the late Dalai Lama in 1924, plans to return to his native land, and it is freely predicted he will seek to become the spiritual and temporal leader of the country.

At the opening session of the national Buddhist convention yesterday it was revealed the Tibetan exile would start out on the 3,000-mile hazardous trek to the Tibetan capital at Lhasa, at the completion of 50 days of continuous prayer.

MACHADO READY TO SURRENDER

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—Gerardo Machado, who fled the presidency of Cuba last year and who is hunted on charges growing out of deaths that occurred during Cuban riots at the time of his flight, is ready to surrender, Dr. Orestes Ferrara, former Cuban Secretary of State, said today. He declared:

"President Machado feels keenly the humiliation of being hunted like a felon. Yet he cannot surrender without first knowing that the papers containing the charges against him are in this country. If he did, he could be held in jail for two months pending arrival of the papers."

FOUR THEATERS BOMBED HERE

formed that the bombed theaters employed operators belonging to the Independent Motion Picture Operators' Union, Local 131. The larger union here is the Motion Picture Operators' Union No. 171, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Two ace investigators for the county—Peter J. Connors and Walter Monaghan—were assigned by District Attorney Andrew T. Park to lead a bomb and arson squad probe of the dynamitings.

Assistant District Attorney William J. O'Donnell will handle the legal end of the county inquiry Park acted upon an appeal for assistance from Former City Detective Sigmund Gorsky, who is working for the theater owners.

In each blast today, the bombs were set off in the ticket booths of the theaters.

WINDOWS SHATTERED

At 3:25 a. m., the explosion in the New Oakland Theater occurred. Scores of persons in the Iroquois Apartments at Atwood and Forbes streets were roused and 25 guests of the Atwood Hotel fled to the street.

A. D. Cassidy, proprietor of the hotel, said that eight windows in the building had been blown out.

Twenty-four windows in the Iriquois Apartments were shattered.

Windows in other nearby establishments were broken.

Shortly before the bombing, Police Lieut. Arthur Baker and Plainclothesman John Kennedy, of Oakland Station, were standing at Forbes and Atwood streets. They had been notified of depredations at the theater and had been keeping watch on the district.

TIME BOMB!

They rushed to the scene when the blast occurred, but said they saw no trace of any dynamiters. Michael Tortorelli, head of the city bomb and arson squad, was summoned. He said that the bomb probably was a dynamite time bomb.

John Warfield, who had been sleeping in a chair in the barber shop of his brother, Philip Warfield, nearby, was hurled to the floor by the force of the explosion. He was led to the street in a dazed conditoin by Lieut. Baker and Kennedy.

Firemen were called to the scene, but there was no blaze. Battalion Chief William H. Davis placed the loss at $6,000.

HEARD FOR HALF-MILE

The bombing of the Atlas Theater, Perrysville avenue, occurred about 4:10 a. m. The blast was heard over a half-mile area. Windows in business establishments and residence were shattered. Damage was placed at about $5,000.

Scores of persons living in the neighborhood fled to the streets following the bombing of the Arcadia Theater, East Ohio street. The blast let go at 4:27 a. m.

Windows in business establishments and apartments on both sides of the street were blown out.

SHOWERED BY GLASS

Samuel Barron, proprietor of a confectionery store at 833 East Ohio street; his wife, Rebecca, and a maid, Pauline Harlick, 17, who occupied an apartment on the second floor of the building, were showered by broken glass.

Damage to the theater and other buildings in the district was placed at $8,000.

Fire companies were summoned.

The blast at the Colony Theater, Stowe Township, was slight because three sticks of dynamite did not go off. Police recovered the dynamite following the explosion and will use it as a clue in an attempt to find the bombers.

SECOND 'BOMBING'

Two of the theaters bombed today have been the scene of depradations in the past several weeks.

On March 21 more than 300 patrons of the Arcadia Theater were forced to flee when a sulphur "bomb," placed near a radiator, let go. It sent out a large flame and filled the building with smoke.

On April 20 two women were slightly burned when a phosphorous bomb was discharged in the New Oakland Theater.

Phosphorous bombs also were discharged recently in the Regal and Weiland theaters, Wilkinsburg, and the New Carnegie and Liberty theaters, Carnegie.

UNION IN COURT

The motion picture operators' controversy reached the courts on April 27, when three officers of the Independent Motion Picture Operators' Union, Local 131, pleaded guilty to transacting the business of a foreign corporation without a certificate of authority from Pennsylvania.

They were W. G. Littell, Pitt street, Wilkinsburg, president of the local; Martin J. Joyce, Lonergan street, treasurer, and Daniel Gross, Franklin street, Wilkinsburg, secretary.

Visiting Judge William T. Darr suspended sentence upon payment of costs, amounting to almost $1,000.

Oriental Rugs in a big way—the only way that such values ever could be possible! Thirty-three huge bales—at little more than the bare cost of washing and transportation. Persia was still in the throes of depression when this deal was consummated. But in the long, slow interim of bringing them from the interior, washing, and shipping, conditions have changed greatly and the rise in exchange has doubled the values.

There are 1000 of these highly desirable Small Rugs alone.

50 ROOM-SIZE RUGS

$275

Kashans, Kirmans, and Sarouks—the three most popular, modern Oriental types—all approximately 9x12 ft. There is no mistaking the qualities or values. Genuine Orientals of this type are a real investment at this price, and will justify their cost several times over in service and decorative value.

EXTRA AND UNUSUAL RUG SIZES

$295 TO $1950

Unusual Sizes— 6 to 7 ft. wide and from 12 to 24 ft. long. Usually $325 to $450. Now $275 to $295

TOWNS SENDING DELEGATES TO M'LEOD RALLY

Delegations from several Western Pennsylvania communities have made preparations to attend the mass meeting here at noon Wednesday to organize in support of the McLeod bank pay-off plan.

Due to the change to daylight savings time in Pittsburgh, the hour of the meeting will be 11 a. m. to those communities where standard time still is in effect. The time here will be noon, daylight savings time.

Representative Clarence J. McLeod, of Michigan, author of the bill providing that the government take over the assets of closed Federal Reserve banks and pay the depositors in full immediately, will discuss the provisions of his measure at the mass meeting in the Nixon Theater.

Congressman McLeod is scheduled to arrive here tomorrow morning. Besides his speech at noon in the Nixon, he will make a brief radio address at 2:15 p. m. from Station WCAE.

BROADCAST TALK

The latter address will be on a nation-wide broadcast through the facilities of the National Broadcasting Company.

The mass meeting will start promptly at noon. Congressman Clyde Kelly, of Allegheny County, will introduce Congressman McLeod. All of the Allegheny County delegation in the House of Representatives and Senators David A. Reed and James J. Davis have been invited to attend.

The mass meeting is designed to attract supporters of the measure from throughout Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia to consolidate the public support that has swelled daily in behalf of the bank pay-off proposal. A plan for organizing a depositors' league similar to groups functioning in other cities will be presented at the meeting.

BATTLE RESUMES

The battle for the bill resumed in Washington today with all of the Allegheny County delegation except Congressman J. Twing Brooks, of Sewickley, actively supporting the measure. Brooks has said he is for the bank pay-off, but he has given no support to the efforts to bring the bill to a vote in the House.

Congressman Henry Ellenbogen was the fourteenth to sign the petition designed to bring the bill to a vote. The other Allegheny County representatives signing the petition are Matthew A. Dunn, Kelly and M. J. Muldowney.

The Congressional backers of the bill hoped to add more names to the petition today and to obtain the necessary 145 signatures speedily. They were assured that Representative Howard Swick, Beaver Falls, would sign as soon as he returned to Washington from the funeral of his brother.

Delegations from districts whose Congressmen have not signed the petition have signified their intentions of attending the meeting here.

Pay Bank Depositors

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS:

As an important help toward national recovery, the undersigned urge passage of the bill introduced by Representative McLeod, now before Congress, which provides for paying in full depositors of closed banks which belonged to the Federal Reserve System.

Toward this end we urge that the RFC make loan arrangements with the closed banks.

This procedure would give positive stimulus to business by converting frozen, idle and at present useless bank deposits into immediately available purchasing power.

DOLLFUSS WINS IN PARLIAMENT

VIENNA, April 30.—(AP.)—A favorable vote of 74 of the 165 members elected to Austria's Parliament today overwhelmingly approved the new Austrian constitution advocated by Chancellor Dollfuss.

With the constitution was approved 470 other laws decreed by the little Chancellor since he declared Parliament "dead of its own demagogy" more than a year ago.

The only negative votes on the subject were cast by two Pan-Germans. The other Pan-German, as well as the Agrarians and the 72 Socialists elected to Parliament, were absent from the session.

New Diesel Train To Be Exhibited At Station Here

Pittsburgh will have its first view of a Diesel-powered streamline train Saturday when the Burlington Zephyr, of the Burlington & Quincy Railroad will be on exhibition at the Pennsylvania Station.

Built of stainless steel, the new train, christened at Philadelphia, is now on a tour of the country. It will arrive here from Canton, O., and will remain in the Pennsylvania trainshed from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. Its motive power is electricity generated by an oil-burning Diesel engine.

AUDIENCE HIRES STOKOWSKI

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—(AP.)—Basing his decision on the verdict of an audience, Leopold Stokowski has agreed to renew his contract as conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Stokowski's 10-year agreement with the Philadelphia Orchestra Association expired with the final concert of the 1933-34 season Saturday night. As he finished the last number the leader turned to his audience and said:

"You know, my contract ran out tonight. And I have not signed a new one. I am not going to sign a new one—unless I am sure that my audiences want me.'

There was a vigorous burst of applause and the conductor seemed satisfied. He began talking about plans for next year, saying:

"I have asked for a year's sabbatical leave, but the orchestra association wants me to take only a half year. What I want to do is study and conduct researches to find new things to make our orchestra better.

"My new contract will provide that I have the last half of next year's season off. Then I will go away to study.'

6 'Rolling Bones' Grabbed by Police

Six men arrested in a raid by North Braddock police upon a "crap game" in a vacant lot in Bell avenue late yesterday faced hearings today. The raid was made by Police Chief Walter Pennington after a number of complaints. Twenty-five players were "rolling the bones" when the police appeared. All but six escaped.

Flush Poisons and Acid From Kidneys

Stop Getting Up Nights

When kidneys are clogged they become weak—the bladder is irritated—often passage is scanty and smarts and burns—sleep is restless and nightly visits to the bathroom are frequent. The right and inexpensive way to stop this trouble and restore healthy action to kidneys and bladder is to get from any druggist a 35-cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take as directed—you won't be disappointed—but be sure and get GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original and genuine—a grand kidney stimulant and diuretic.

NOTE: Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules assist the kidneys to expel from the system that harmful excess uric acid which is often the aggravation of joint pains, sciatica, neuritis, neuralgia and lumbago.

M'LEOD WARY OF STEAGALL PROPOSAL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Opening a new drive for signatures to the petition to force a vote on the McLeod bank depositors' relief bill, sponsors of the measure today warned members of the House that the petition must be completed to insure action in the present session.

Eighty-two members have signed the petition for a vote on May 14, with 63 more needed to insure consideration.

Rep. McLeod, (Rep.), of Michigan, asserted that "only by continuing the fight can satisfactory results be assured."

WARY OF TRAP

The McLeod bill backers were warily avoiding a possible trap through leadership action on the substitute plan of Representative Steagall (Dem.), of Alabama.

A cessation of activity in behalf of the McLeod bill might result in a sudden drive by leaders to halt action on the Steagall substitute, with the result that both efforts would be lost.

With Steagall announcing determination to push his plan of aid through a "rider" on the administration bill postponing for a year the full bank insurance guaranty plan, congressional consideration of bank depositors' relief appeared assured.

MYSTERY MOVE

Considerable mystery enveloped the Steagall substitute. It was regarded in some quarters as an administration bid for a compromise.

But Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, Democratic leader, said he knew nothing of the origin of Steagall's plan and said the administration had not, so far as he knew, withdrawn its objection to bank depositors' relief legislation.

M'Leod's Name Pronounced 'M'Cloud'

For those who have had difficulty determining how the name of the author of the bank pay off bill is pronounced:

Congressman McLeod himself pronounces it as though it were spelled "McCloud." Pronounciations among those unfamiliar with the name have ranged from "McLid" to "McLoyd."

POLICE SLASH BOOSTS THEFTS

Theft of automobiles has increased 20 per cent and recovery of stolen cars has decreased 20 per cent since the police motor division was reduced to a skeleton organization by the economy move, records of the division disclosed today.

On April 1 nine men of the division were transferred to beats or other duties and three furloughed, leaving only three men to check thefts of cars and contents.

Since then 10 to 12 automobiles have been robbed of contents each day, the report shows. Many of the cars belonged to physicians who lost instruments.

Formerly a garage detail checked on all cars in garages each day. Since the force was reduced no such investigation is possible, it is said.

RIVERMEN TOLD RAILS SEEK TO SHUT PANAMA

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 30. — American railroads are "making an effort to close the Panama Cana" because it competes to a small extent with their transcontinental traffic, Senator Key Pittman (Dem.), of Nevada, charged today in a speech before the twenty-fifth annual Rivers and Harbors Congress, which opened today.

Pittman also declared that the big private owned electric utility companies have joined hands with the railroads to stifle inland waterway development.

Before the meeting ends tomorrow night with its usual banquet, the delegates will have heard speeches by other members of of Congress, all members of committees interested in waterway development, and by the German and Russian ambassadors, Hans Luther and Alexander Troyanovsky. They will deliver their talks at the banquet table.

Frank R. Reid, president of the congress, is also a Republican Representative from Illinois, while Clarence B. Douglas, of Tulsa, Okla., is vice president.

Subjects under discussions included problems of navigation, irrigation, flood control, reforestation and power developoment. The aim of the Congress is to co-ordinate its program with that of the administration for the control and use of the nation's waterways.

The list of speakers includes Senator Clark (Dem.), Missouri; Representatives Wilson, Louisiana; Mansfield, Texas; Rayburn, Texas; Driver, Arkansas; Whittington, Mississippi, and Maj. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, president of the government's inland waterway corporation.

The delegates awaited the addresses of the ambassadors with unusual interest. Each is expected to explain in detail the development of the waterways in his country.

PRIEST SLAIN SAVING WOMAN

International News Service.

JERSEY CITY, April 30.—Jersey City's "Little Italy" was plunged into sorrow today as wailing groups mourned for Father Julius Moscati, kindly silver-haired pastor, who sacrificed his life yesterday to protect his widowed sister-in-law from death at the hands of a crazed carpenter.

Feeling ran high against the carpenter, Dominick Marra, 49, father of six children. Marra, enraged because he was unable to collect a bill of $45 from Mrs. Christina Moscati, the priest's sister-in-law, was shooting at her with a revolver when Father Moscati returned to the parish house after celebrating mass at the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel.

Leaping in front of Mrs. Moscati to shield her, the little priest was shot through the heart. His sacrifice may have been vain, as Mrs. Moscati, struck by three bullets, was in critical condition today.

Physicians said Marra, for years a beneficiary of the priest's charity, had been mentally unbalanced as a result of an accident. He was jailed on a charge of murder.

Carpatho-Russians Protest to League

Representatives of Carpatho-Russian organizations joined the National Carpatho-Russian Union in framing a protest to the League of Nations and the United States government, as a signatory of the Versailles treaty, claiming they are not granted full autonomous government in their province from Czecho-Slovakia, as guaranteed by the World War pact, at a banquet in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. last night. Among those who spoke were Dr. A. Gerovsky, representative of the union at the League of Nations; Prince S. A. Gagarin, and union national officers: Rev. Michael Staurovsky, president; Dr. A. M. Smor, executive secretary; Rev. John Yanchiskin, financial secretary, and Dr. P. I. Zeedick, treasurer, and Nicholas Pachuta, editor of the Russian Messenger.

'Army Starts Drive For $108,500 Saturday

Leaders in civic, business and professional lines today gave assurance to the Salvation Army that they would serve as committee members in the drive for $108,500, which opens next Saturday and continues through May 26. Headquarters for the campaign have been opened in the Army Building, 425 Boulevard of the Allies. The $108,500 asked by the army will be used to carry on the work of 20 various activities in Allegheny County.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Good news for the dependents of deceased veterans awaiting their questionnaires! The forms with questions are being mailed out to all those who applied for compensation as a dependent of a veteran, now deceased.

Lieut. Griffith explained the questionnaire and the response that the Military Department are seeking and from his explanation and from the form itself it will be a very simple matter to answer the questions.

I can promise you that all questions can be answered from your own knowledge with the exception, perhaps, of questions 9 and 10. I will post you now to what questions 9 and 10 are.

9—Did the veteran have an executor or administrator? If so, when was the estate settled?

That would be answered in the affirmative only when the veteran's estate was probated through the Orphans Court of Pennsylvania.

If there was an estate the papers are on file in the Register of Wills office of the county wherein the decedent resided.

10—If the estate is unsettled, name the executor or administrator and give address.

The Register's office has the necessary information here also if you haven't personal knowledge.

The names on the checks are MIKE KLISAVAGE, TONY ETHRIDGE, HARLEY L. HUPP.

The above mentioned can present themselves to Lieut. Griffith at his office in the Nixon Building, Pittsburgh, bringing with them necessary identifying credentials.

McLeod, on Network, Will Urge Bank Openings

By AIRCASTER

Pittsburgh has put several important radio programs on the networks the past several years, but none of more importance and general interest than one to be broadcast over the NBC Red chain from the studios of WCAE Wednesday evening at 6:15.

The Sun-Telegraph, one of the chief instigators in the general movement to have the federal government reopen closed banks and release millions of dollars to unfortunate depositors throughout the country, has arranged to bring Congressman Clarence J. McLeod, of Michigan, author of the Pay-off Bill, to the air at that time on WCAE.

Manager Frederick A. Weston, of WCAE, has arranged with NBC to have McLeod's speech carried to the listeners of the nation.

"X" MARKS SPOT

If you happen into the downtown restaurant where a group of handsome young bucks—John Gihon, Roy Hasenbalg and other important Pittsburgh radio personalities gather to laze away the noonday hour—and hear them at an adjoining table spouting weird and strange names at each other, don't judge them too severely.

They're just playing their favorite geographical game.

The fellow at the left names a city—"Omsk". And the next one has to name a town beginning with "k" (the last letter in Omsk).

And for the usual radio lunch hour of two, three, four, five hours, you'll hear them reeling off remote (and sometimes doubtful) names such as Kokomo, Oberamergau, Ungava, Athabaska and Atilla.

The fellow who can name the most cities ending in "x" usually wins.

GIVOT A CHANCE

The fact that George Givot has shown up in New York inspires a notion that he would be a natural for the job, if not required to "solo."

Graham McNamee as stooge, and Givot, many other besides myself believe, would make up a team fit to go to town for.

Givot's previous troubles have revolved about the listeners' unfamiliarity with the Greek dialect, but the Rubinoff show have pretty well enabled the public to understand 'most anything.

REED MANAGER GRILLS PINCHOT ON PLEDGES

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, April 30.—The Republican senatorial battle between Gov. Gifford Pinchot and Senator David A. Reed has developed for the moment into a battle of questionnaires.

To the five questions hurled at Pinchot on two separate occasions by Reed, four more were added today by Judge Claude T. Reno, Reed's campaign manager. He demanded answers to the following queries:

"1—What became of the Pinchot pledge 'to prevent by law political assessments on public servants and punish those who solicit them?' In 1932 Pinchot assessed state employes two per cent of their pay, for use in the Smedley Butler campaign for the senatorial nomination. He collected $217,314. That was two years after he promised to punish those who maced public servants.

"2—What became of the great cuts in utility rates promised by Pinchot when he was trying to get control of the Public Service Commission?

"3—What became of Pinchot's 1930 promise that he would cut automobile registration fees to $5 and the driver's license fee to $1?

"4—Why doesn't Gov. Pinchot tell the farmers how much it costs to maintain the so-called 'Pinchot roads?'"

In retaliation, Pinchot headquarters in Philadelphia, through its veterans' committee, fired six questions concerning the soldiers' bonus at Reed.

In Philadelphia, Joseph F. Guffey, who heads the Democratic organization slate as candidate for United States Senator, predicted victory by a majority of 400,000.

The "New Deal" independent Democratic ticket, headed by Roland S. Morris for Senator and Judge Charles D. Copeland for Governor, swung into the eastern and central sections for the first extended trip of the present campaign.

Representatives of the Pennsylvania lodges of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, meeting here yesterday, indorsed Pinchot and Charles J. Margiotti, for Senator and Governor on the Republican ticket, and Morris and Copeland, on the Democratic ticket.

TWO GOVERNOR ENTRANTS TOUR

Lieut.-Gov. Edward C. Shannon, Republican, and Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, of Philadelphia, Democrat, candidates for the gubernatorial nomination in their respective parties, today used Pittsburgh as a base for campaigning in Western Pennsylvania.

Gen. Shannon flew from Harrisburg in a National Guard plane, escorted by two other planes from the National Guard squadron. After circling over Pittsburgh, the planes landed at County Airport, where the doughty general immediate began his campaigning.

Gen. Shannon spoke at a noonday meeting in his headquarters on Fourth avenue after arriving from Harrisburg by plane. Following his speech he set out on a visit to Butler, Kittanning, Ford City, Leechburg, New Kensington and Natrona. This evening he will speak in Wilkinsburg at 9:30. Tomorrow Shannon will tour Beaver Valley cities, returning for an evening meeting in McKeesport.

Bonniwell attacked the state liquor stores as "the greatest incentive to bootlegging since repeal," and promised that if elected Governor he would work for repeal of the state liquor store law, to be replaced by a modified Brooks high license law.

Bonniwell attacked George H. Earle, one of his opponents, for endeavoring to attach himself to the Roosevelt movement, and presented an indorsement of his candidacy from E. J. McMillan, vice chairman of the speakers' committee of the Democratic National Committee.

SYMPHONY FUND HEADS NAMED

Preparing to launch a campaign for $100,000 for the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, the organization committee today announced the appointment of Paul Mellon as campaign treasurer and Samuel Harden Church as head of the men's division of the fund drive.

Mrs. Franklin C. Irish, general chairman of the campaign, announced the active drive would be launched on Tuesday, May 15, the day before the final concert of the season. It will last until May 31.

The campaign is designed to place the symphony on a firmer foundation for the next season.

Others on the campaign committees are Mrs. E. V. Babcock, Mrs. David R. Craig, Mrs. J. Frank Drake, Mrs. Leon Falk, Jr., Mrs. W. Edgar Reed and Mrs. Edwin Rund, representing the women's group, and Leo Griffith, David I. McCahill, Richard S. Rauh, Charles J. Rosenbloom and Frederick Schaefer for the men.

Candidate Favored By McNair Gets Help

Harry A. Eigenrauch, Jr., Mayor McNair's candidate for State Senate in the Forty-fourth district, has announced his indorsement by the Democratic clubs of the Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth wards. Eigenrauch's platform supports the Mayors' tax theories.

Lottery to Fight 'Rigged' Games Urged by Pastor

RICHMOND, Va., April 30.—AP.)—Establishment of a state lottery as a means of combatting "rigged" games of chance "on the same basis that the state is establishing liquor stores" was urged today by the Rev. Addison Moore, of the First Unitarian Church, here.

Asserting that slot machines which are fixed against the player are "as evil as loaded dice," he added:

"Men and women who amount to anything dare to take a chance. The new morality does not frown on games of chance. But it asserts that only fools play for money in games that are rigged against them.

"Slot machines, when used to distribute some commodity, are legitimate, but when they are used to breed gamblers they are pernicious and ought to be smashed.

"The policy game is a different matter. Its numbers cannot be manipulated and the evil about it is to be found in two facts: First, the profits are shared only by an out-of-town syndicate which controls it; and second, children are allured by the game."

AIR MAIL BILL GOES TO HOUSE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The Senate today sent to the House the McKellar-Black air mail bill, which passed the upper house after more than a week of debate.

The measure, considered to have administration backing, was adopted under the pressure of Democratic leaders who demanded the Republican and compromise amendments be defeated.

One year of competitive bidding for air mail routes is provided by the bill. Those who held contracts when they were cancelled will be restricted in future bidding. It also would create a commission of seven members to investigate the air mail situation and report its findings to the next Congress.

HERRON URGED TO AID PHILLIPS

Headquarters for Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, opened today in the Hotel Pittsburgher. Phillips' supporters are endeavoring to win the aid of former Mayor John S. Herron, who has been importuned both by Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon and Attorney General William A. Schnader, leading gubernatorial candidates.

The former Mayor has been holding off, interested in the Schnader movement, but fearful that an alliance there will show him still hooked up with Senator James J. Coyne.

Protest Cancels Kelly Speech In Church

Acceding to protests, elders of the Second Presbyterian Church, Wilkinsburg, canceled the scheduled address of Congressman Clyde Kelly, before the One Hundred Bible Class in the church next Sunday afternoon.

The objectors contended that the Congressman's appearance only a week or two before an election would look like an election rally in disguise.

CANDIDATE ASKS U. S. LOTTERY TO CUT TAX

A national lottery to relieve the burden of taxation was proposed today by Mrs. Martha E. Carson, candidate for Congress in the Thirty-third District.

Displacement of the "numbers" racket would be one of the benefits of her plan, Mrs. Carson believes. She said:

"Why shouldn't our government kill two birds with one stone—that is, relieve the property owner and other taxpayers of the tremendous tax burden by collecting a percentage from each lottery pool; and help restore the people's respect for law by removing the temptation to gamble in secret?"

Mrs. Carson said she believed gambling would always exist. She cited instances of other governments using lotteries as tax agencies. She pointed out that horse race gambling was legal in many states with a percentage going to the state government.

Mrs. Carson advocated a permanent federal relief system which would move excess unemployed population from industrial centers and establish them in communities under federal supervision with materials to make them self supporting.

1 HELD, 2 FLEE IN ROBBERY

With one suspect under arrest, Elizabeth and state police today were searching for two others in connection with the theft of a truck used for carrying the mails and the looting of the West Penn Appliances office, Second street, Elizabeth, early yesterday.

According to Chief of Police J. A. Nunes, of Elizabeth, the trio was surprised while they were loading loot into the truck which was stolen earlier in Duquesne. E. J. Neuland, 32, of Duquesne, was arrested, police said.

Chief Nunes and two state officers were cruising in their automobile when they noticed the trio loading the truck with radios, mangles and other electrical equipment, according to the report.

Two men, one armed with a revolver, last night forced Francis Hays, 28, of 304 Arctic avenue, McKeesport, night attendant at the Sun Oil Company bulk station, McKeesport, in a rear room, bound him hand and foot and forced open the safe, containing $900. While they were working Ray Beatty, a truck driver, of Wilkinsburg, entered the place. The men forced him into the rear room, also bound him and continued their work. They escaped in an automobile.

Hays told police that he was unable to say if the robbers succeeded in reaching the money, which was in an envelope in one of the compartments of the safe.

NEW HUNDREDS ASK RUSHMORE PARTICULARS

Widespread interest in the extension of the closing date for the Mount Rushmore national memorial inscription competition today was reflected in the hundreds of new inquiries being received for particulars and rules.

The closing date when entries are to be received by the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee, care of the Sun-Telegraph, and the special committees of organizations taking active part in the historical project, was extended to May 30. Announcement of the change from May 12 was made yesterday.

Hundreds of new entrants have started to prepare a 600-word text of the nation's history as based upon nine specific episodes because of the extension of time. They had hesitated to prepare their entries at the last moment but with more than 15 days extra for their preparation efforts are now being directed towards winning the honor of writing America's epic.

Remember—every man, woman and child is invited to participate. The 600 word history is sought for the final inscription to be carved on the national monument being created in the Black Hills of South Dakota. If you did not read the rules in yesterday's Sun-Telegraph, get a special free folder giving all details at the downtown office, Fifth avenue and Market street. The folder will be mailed to you provided a stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies a request to the Pittsburgh Rushmore Editor, care The Sun-Telegraph.

MORGAN AIDS BEACHCOMBER

Universal Service.

BALBOA, C. Z., April 30.—A tale of J. P. Morgan giving a Cocos Island treasure hunter a handout was brought into port today by the skipper of the sailing vessel Franklin Barnett, which was towed into Balboa by a naval vessel after it had drifted 48 days.

On Cocos Island, said the captain of the Franklin Barnett, he found an Englishman from London unclothed and living close to nature. The captain continued:

"The man claims to be a professional metal diviner and says he is close to discovery of millions of dollars in buried treasure on the island, which he expects to uncover at any moment. He is penniless and subsists on handouts from visiting yachts.

"When J. P. Morgan's yacht, the Corsair, touched at Cocos Island, Morgan ordered the man left a quantity of food."

Junior Patrol

A boy we know has a set of building blocks. With them he has built hundreds of buildings in his attic playroom. When he has built the building the way he wants it, he doesn't have many blocks left. After he has looked at it a while he tears it down, and starts a different kind of a building.

The first buildings he tried were crude and didn't look very good. But he is getting to be a better builder every day, and the buildings he makes now are really fine. Sometimes his sister helps him to paste little pieces of silk and wool to make carpets and window curtains and draperies.

One day, he builds a palace, with pillars holding up the porch and roof and with a great doorway where soldiers can stand at attention, on guard. Inside, there are great open courts, and a throne room with a dome. Then maybe, the next day, he puts up a beautiful church with tall steeple and high windows and a high roof, with many curious decorations.

Now here is a letter from Edna Love, of Box 177, Tarr, Pa. She writes:

"I like your comic in the Sun-Telegraph paper. I am going to try to start a Junior Patrol Club. I have two kittens at home and one is almost 6 years old.

"It is a very nice cat. It don't eat birds or small chickens. The other one is 3 years old. I like to go out in the woods and watch the birds sing and build their nests. There are four red birds at my place which stay there all summer.

"There are also other kinds too. When I start my club we will feed and watch the little birds. Will you send me two membership cards and pins for my little nephew and niece. My little niece is named Joan and she is 1 year old. My nephew's name is Tommy. He is 3 years old. I am 13 years old and in the eighth grade."

We will be glad to send you the membership cards, Edna, but we would like to have the Junior Patrol membership blanks sent in first.

JAPAN AGREES ON 'OPEN DOOR' FOR CHINA

LONDON, April 30.—(AP.)—Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, told the House of Commons today that Japan has fully accepted the policy of the "open door" for all nations in China.

The foreign secretary's statement was made before a house packed with members and spectators anxious to hear the government's attitude on the Japanese "hands off China" doctrine, unofficially stated April 17.

BRITISH VIEWS TOLD

Sir John said that Sir Francis Lindley, British ambassador in Tokio, had pointed out to Koki Hirota, the Japanese foreign minister, that the principle of equal rights in China was very explicitly guaranteed by the Nine-Power Treaty signed at Washington in 1922, to which Japan was a signatory.

The British Ambassador had explained that the British government must continue to enjoy all rights under that treaty in common with other signatories, the Foreign Secretary said.

TO RESPECT RIGHTS

He told his hearers that Japan had informed the British government it has no intention of interfering with "the common rights" of other powers in China and has reaffirmed its policy of the maintenance of the open door.

He said Japan had given assurance that she will observe the Nine-Power Treaty. (The treaty, signed by Japan, China, Great Britain, France, Holland and other nations, certifies the right of the signatories to carry on legitimate business in China and guarantees the intergrity of that nation.)

U. S. Defers Statement On Jap Explanation

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(INS.)—A decision will be made in the next few days as to whether the United States will make a statement in connection with Japan's explanation of its "hands off" China declaration.

The State Department decided to await public announcement of Great Britain's reaction to the Japanese declaration before making any decision.

VETERANS HAIL POLISH HERO

Several hundred persons yesterday jammed Memorial Hall to welcome Gen. Josef Haller, World War commander of the Polish volunteer army, who arrived in Pittsburgh Saturday. Contributions of $1,200 for support of disabled Polish army veterans were given at the meeting. The noted leader will remain in Pittsburgh until Friday.

Among speakers were Gen. Churchill B. Mehard, of the Federation of American War Veterans' Associations of Allegheny County; Lieut. Frank Dziob, national commander of the Polish Army Veterans' Association; Col. T. A. Starzynski, one of the founders of the Polish Volunteer Army; J. Matusinski Polish consul; County Judge Frank A. Piekarski and County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern. Col. Robert G. Woodside was chairman.

Following the meeting here Gen. Haller, accompanied by many of the speakers, went to Ambridge, where he was honor guest at a reception which ollowed a parade through the principal section of that town.

Secret Rendezvous In U. S. War Game

COLON, C. Z., April 30.—(INS.)—When the American fleet starts in its next movement to Guantanamo, Cuba, the tankers Salinas, Cuyama and Neches will move out to meet it at a secret rendezvous in the Caribbean Sea, refuelling the destroyers for an intensive war game, it was announced today.

The re-modernized battleships Mississippi and New Mexico have put to sea to test anti-aircraft 5-inch guns. The Lexington will depart Wednesday; to be followed Thursday by the cruisers and Friday by the remainder of the fleet.

Candidate Assails High Property Tax

Tax on real estate is now so high as to be confiscatory, C. C. Hamilton, candidate for Congress in the Thirty-third District, told the Twelfth Ward League of Women Voters today.

As an immediate remedy, Hamilton suggested that the state take over school taxes. He also advocated consolidation of local governments to avoid duplication.

Irish Comedy Listed For Guild Players

The Sacred Heart Players will present "Danny Boy," an Irish comedy, in the Guild Hall, Center avenue, on Wednesday and Thursday evenings. The cast will include Miss Mary Spellman, Miss Mary Agnes White, Donald Drass, Philip Land and Charles Hunter.

RABBI, PASTOR URGE UNITY IN RELIGION

The difficulty of religion today is that it has lost its influence because it is divided, Rabbi B. B. Glazer of the Rodef Shalom Congregation declared last night in an address in observance of National Brotherhood Day in the First Baptist Church.

Catholics, Jews and Protestants must stand together to confront the economic and social problems of the present day or see their influence swept aside and disregarded by the rulers of the world, he said.

The rabbi spoke from the same pulpit with the Rev. Dr. Bernard C. Clausen, pastor of the First Baptist Church. Both urged the need of practical co-operation among churches.

Rabbi Glazer said:

"We live in the shadow of catastrophic events. All people are filled with a sense of economic insecurity. There is a constant threat of war hanging over the entire world. What shall be the place of religion in all this? To quibble and quarrel among ourselves?"

Good-will expressions are only "a travesty" unless "crystallized in action," according to Dr. Clausen, who added:

"We must find the things we can do together and then do them. It is only by living and thinking and sacrificing together that we can come to grasp the true meaning of goodwill."

PLUNGES TO DIE BENEATH TRAIN

TAORMINA, Sicily, April 30.—(AP.)—Plunging 100 feet from a hotel window to fall beneath the wheels of a speeding train, Miss Elizabeth Beoerton Forman, 25, daughter of Horace Forman, of Haverford, Pa., was killed Saturday night, police disclosed today.

Authorities said Miss Forman came here 10 days ago with her mother and that the young woman was seriously ill when they took rooms at a hotel on a cliff facing the Ionian Sea and overlooking a stretch of railroad line from Catania to Messina.

Miss Forman, investigators said, had been in bed ever since her arrival and Saturday night was suffering from high fever and in a semi-delirious condition.

Her mother was at her side when, police said, the whistle of a train was heard and the girl dashed from her bed to a window and jumped before her mother could do anything to prevent her.

BANQUET POISON PROBED BY U. S.

DENVER, April 30.—(AP.)—Federal officers are ready to investigate the poisoning of 45 prominent Denver men at a banquet at a hotel here Tuesday night, according to the Denver Post.

The Post said the Justice Department's interest in the case centers about the presence at the banquet of Pietro Gerbore, Italian Consul for Colorado and seven other western states, who was one of those made ill following the dinner. The Post said:

"The federal government's activity in the case threw an aspect on the mystery even more serious than the discovery that chemical poison might have caused the wholesale illness.

"It immediately suggested that Gerbore might have been chosen as the victim of a political plot, which sought to make the poisoning of all the guests a demonstration against him."

Baby Bandit Pair Robs Verona Man

Two "baby" bandits, both armed, held up William Summerville, of 660 Verona boulevard, Verona, in Washington boulevard early today and escaped with $30, Summerville reported to police. He described the bandit pair as about 14.

A Pennsylvania Railroad pass and $18 was the loot of two Negroes who held up Ira McCormick, of Altoona, at Station street and Larimer avenue.

Camden Theater Destroyed by Fire

CAMDEN, N. J., April 30.—(INS.)—Only the outer walls remained today as a memento of a huge fire which destroyed Camden's newest and second largest motion picture playhouse, the Broadway Theater.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Home weddings are more popular than ever this year. Among those favoring a home ceremony instead of a church wedding is petite, black-eyed Elizabeth Irwin Liggett, daughter of the Sidney S. Liggetts, of Sewickley.

Vivacious young Betsy has chosen June 11 as the date for her marriage to Harlow Wheeler Culbertson, son of the John D. Culbertsons, of Grove street, Sewickley. And the ceremony will take place in her parents' Sewickley Heights home.

Betsy was presented to society in the fall at a tea-dance in the Allegheny Country Club. And on her debut day she received some of the most exquisite bouquets I've ever seen. The clubhouse looked more like a conservatory than a country club.

Art Society Reception Tomorrow

The Art Society has sent out invitations to its members for a reception tomorrow night in the Theater of Fine Arts, Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Before the reception, Art Society members will be entertained by a recently finished ballet, "Persephone," by the advanced students of the departments of music and drama at Tech.

The orchestra music for the ballet was written by Earl Wild and George Youngling, with orchestration arranged by Chauncey V. Kelly.

Tomorrow night Art Society members will hear, moreover, the first performances of the Martin B. Leisser and Mu Phi Epsilon prize winning compositions of 1934.

Dr. Thomas S. Arbuthnot is president of the Art Society, and Mrs. Daniel M. Clemson is vice president.

Many Children Attend Junior League Plays

Did you notice how many grownups—without any children for an excuse—attended the Junior League's "Children's Music Box" Saturday afternoon in the Frick Training School?

Of course, there were children galore, who enjoyed the plays enormously. The program included a group of plays designed to appeal to little boys and girls, songs by the Junior League Glee Club and dances. And the Junior Leaguers were the actors, too, and the stage managers and the costume designers.

It was a splendid performance. And I, for one, wouldn't mind a bit seeing it over again.

Sarah E. Conner Bride Of Dr. Asa D. Young

Pink hydrangeas and spring-like feathery cibotium ferns formed the background for the marriage of young Sarah Elizabeth Conner, Mrs. Davis Conner's daughter, and Dr. Asa D. Young, son of Dr. Eugene Yetman Young, of Champaigne, Ill., which took place Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock in the Conner home, Tennyson avenue.

For the ceremony, attended only by members of the two families and close friends, the home was decorated with a variety of flowers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Clifford B. Ferree, was charming in a gown of ivory satin having a yoke embroidered with seed pearls, and a long, sweeping train of the satin. Her veil of tulle was arranged with a cap of the same material, decked with orange blossoms. She carried a shower boquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Bride's Sister Only Attendant

Her sister, Virginia Louise Conner, as her maid of honor and only attendant, was in pastel blue chiffon, fashioned with a train. She carried talisman roses and white lilacs.

The mother of the bride wore black chiffon and chantilly lace with a train of the chantilly, and had a corsage of orchids.

Dr. Douglas A. Decker, of Pine Grove, Pa., was best man, and George H. Lysle, of McKeesport, was an usher. Officiating was the Rev. Dr. Bernard C. Clausen, of the First Baptist Church, Bayard street.

Dr. Young and his bride have left for an Eastern wedding trip.

Institute Plans Are Made

The club institute to be held Monday, May 7, in the Hotel Schenley, will provide opportunity for studying and solving difficult problems that arise in the various activities of women's clubs. Mrs. H. D. Stark, Southwest District Institutes chairman, has arranged this Pittsburgh Conference, one of four to be held in the week of May 7. She will be assisted in the conduct of these sessions by the state institutes chairman, Mrs. Alfred A. Crooks.

One of the interesting themes to be discussed at the morning session which will open at 10 o'clock will be "Why I am a Club Woman," by Mrs. John Caughey.

Luncheon will be served at 12:30 and reservations may be sent to Mrs. Stark, Beechwood boulevard, or to Mrs. J. R. Bradley, Knox avenue, Carrick.

Mrs. Crooks will open the afternoon session with her address on "Woman's Obligation to her Club, County and State." The day will close with Mrs. Richard B. Perry's resume of the entire program.

Little Flower Activities Listed

The Little Flower Club will hold a card party Wednesday evening at the club, in Arch street. The hostesses are Miss Ann Barrett and Miss Mollie Costello.

Cards will be played at tomorrow evening's club social. Miss Jessie Sauers and Miss Mercedes Watson will prepare the supper at the hostess suggestion class under Mrs. James B. Phillips' direction.

West View Forum To Meet Tonight

The West View Forum will meet this evening at the home of Mrs. Elmer Thompson in Center avenue, the theme for the evening being "The Art of Pennsylvania." Mrs. F. M. Alexander will speak on "The Art of St. Gaudens," Mrs. Harry Smith on "An Artistic Structure in Pittsburgh" and Mrs. Ralph Hoagland on "The International Art Exhibit of 1933." Mrs. Fred Brown will serve as assistant hostess.

Sacred Heart Party Tomorrow

The faculty and students of Sacred Heart High School are arranging a card party to be held in the guild hall, Center avenue, tomorrow evening.

* * *

Guy H. Baskerville, headmaster of the University School, will be guest speaker for the hour of the Congress of Women's Club at 4:15 o'clock tomorrow. He will speak over KDKA on "Human Engineering."

Wells Club Election Held

The Wells College Club members were entertained Thursday in the home of Mrs. J. I. Andrews, of Crafton. Mrs. T. F. Walter and Mrs. J. F McGhee were joint hostesses.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected. Mrs. Karl Fulton was chosen president; Mrs. I. W. Wilson, vice president; Mrs. Olaf Zwadski, secretary, and Mrs. J. F McGhee, treasurer. Mrs. Phillip C. Seaman is chairman of the program committee. The next meeting will be held in the Edgeworth Club on May 25 with Mrs. W. T. Shannon as hostess.

Miss McGirr Summarizes New Books

The new books of travel, biography, fiction and poetry were summarized by Miss Alice Thurston McGirr at the meeting of the Epoch Club in the home of Mrs. William S. Elliott, Woodland road, Friday afternoon.

In charge of the tea was the entertainment committee, including Mrs. Clark Hammond, Mrs. A. T. Morgan and Mrs. H. B. Parke, and aides were Mrs. E. J. Searles, Mrs. Jonathan Green, Mrs. Frank H. Rea and Mrs. Howard K. Jones. Presiding at the tea table, which was decorated with spring flowers, was Mrs. H. B. Ayers.

Crafton Women Arrange Luncheon

The drama department of the Crafton Woman's Club has arranged its annual covered dish luncheon at the home of Mrs. T. S. Weaver, Haldane street, for tomorrow. After luncheon a play entitled "The Rescue" will be given.

Those in the cast are Mrs. Howard Graham, Mrs. Ira Lawrence and Mrs. R. W. Turney; and Mrs. L. P. Myers is directing. Aides to the hostess include Mrs. John M. Reed, Mrs. D. S. Taylor and Mrs. C. Braden Foster.

Mrs. Abe Caplan Will Be Delegate

Mrs. Abe Caplan, president of the Beth Shalom Sisterhood, has been elected to represent the Women's League of the United Synagogues at the annual convention in Washington May 6, 7 and 8. Other delegates are Mrs. M. L. Avner, Mrs. G. A. Rose and Mrs. A. B. Weinberger. Mrs. Caplan is a member of the executive council of the league.

McHughs Entertain Foreign Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. McHugh have had as their guests for the past week Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Lee, and their son David, of Melbourne, Australia, and Miss Mary Davis, of Bradford, England. Their guests will take a world cruise before returning home.

Mrs. Milligan Is Appointed By Council

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

From the headquarters of the National Council of Women comes word that Mrs. Harold Vincent Milligan, of New York City, assistant director of the National Music League and daughter of the well-known writer, Anna Steese Richardson, has been made recording secretary of the council. She succeeds Mrs. Marion Miller, who has resigned.

Mrs. Milligan has been prominent in various capacities for council and concluded a biennial term as corresponding secretary last November. Four chairmen have just been appointed, too. They are Mrs. Elmer James Ottaway, of Port Huron, Mich., chairman of music; Mrs. Grace Thompson-Seton, of Greenwich, Conn., chairman of letters; Dr. Valeria H. Parker, New York City, chairman of social hygiene, and Miss Mary Anderson, of Washington, chairman of industrial relations.

A nation-wide campaign to encourage higher standards of radio entertainment through fan ma.' is being organized by the music committe, whose members feel that clubwomen have no right to hold radio program directors responsible for inferior offerings unless they (the clubwomen) make their voices heard.

The committee is also sponsoring, through local organizations, a project for supporting young American artists by giving them paid engagements at club functions instead of asking them to appear without remuneration.

Mrs. Crittenden Will Be Honored

To honor its retiring regent, Mrs. William Jackson Crittenden, the Pittsburgh Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will plant a tree at the main entrance to Highland Park tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Miss Eleanor McCallam, chairman of conservation, will be in charge of the exercises, which will include an address by the Rev. Dr. E. J. Van Etten, prayer by the Rev. Drury L. Patchell, and music.

Hospital Society Plans Guest Day

The annual musical tea and guest day of the Presbyterian Hospital Aid Society will be held tomorrow afternoon from 2:30 until 5 o'clock in the Fifth avenue home of Mrs. D. M. Clemson.

Ingomar P. T. A. Set for 'Round-Up'

The Ingomar P. T. A. will hold its "spring round-up" at the school tomorrow morning. Mrs. E. C. Vierling is committee chairman.

Kissing Games Are Still Popular With Young

By MARION BRUNOT

Kissing games . . . They're still in vogue . . . And here am I, imagining they were gone the way of a pleasant limbo . . .

Kiss the Pillow, That was one of them; postoffice, another. Remember the thrill, sisters, of being selected by the one young fellow whom you were secretly admiring. Tall he was, and perhaps with curly hair, the sort that had a way of falling down back of his ears in such a cute fashion. Or maybe he was dark and had dreamy eyes and wore clothes more in style than were those of the other young men.

Anyway, those kissing games were there with us. And the memory of them still remains. Kiss the pillow. How silly! And yet was it? How many of the people now getting gray about the temples, remember, how many of the dads and moms, now sitting seriously in judgment upon the youngsters, knew all about them in the early century in which we live?

Miss Brunot

Dear Miss Brunot:

I go to a very nice school, and when we have parties, we play a few kissing games. My school teacher objects and says she blames the girls more than the boys for doing these things. I agree that it is wrong to carry these games too far, but our parents are always nearby and do not object. Will you please register your opinion?

TROUBLED.

I can't have an opinion on this, Troubled. Your parents do not object. So what is there for me to say?

Dear Miss Brunot:

This is a letter in answer to "Thank You." She said she often was grouchy, and because she was not popular. Well, Thank You, I'll wager that you don't go in for the sports. I mean tennis, swimming, dancing and golf. If you did, you never would have any time for grouches.

SHOULD PLAY GAMES

A tennis racquet in your hand, a golf stick handy, and how can one be cross! I am a chap of 30 and I have found many a girl who could tear a grouch apart in a jiffy when in the out-of-doors. Fellows like a girl who can take a licking and like it. I mean in a game. So here's to you, "Thank You," and may you find your happiness.

TOMMY, THE BEE.

You're O. K. Tommy, the Bee. Your advice is excellent, and I hope "Thank You" reads it and benefits.

Dear Miss Brunot:

You have said "Let a man do the courting." But does that work in all cases? In my case there is a boy I like a lot, but it doesn't seem to be mutual. Would it be best, to pay no attention to him. We have spoken on many occasions, yet he seems to avoid me. I have a girl friend who goes with a fellow of 28. She is 25. Is she too young to marry?

I remain,
H. F.

Your friend is not too young to marry. Maybe you imagine that the man you like avoids you. You and your girl friend might plan a date together with these two fellows. He may be bashful, and does not like to ask to call on a girl whom he is not sure likes him.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a girl of 17, and very much in love. I went steady with the boy for a year and a half. Finally I thought I would like to go out with other fellows, and told him so. We made the agreement to separate for a month. But when the month was up, he did not come back. Well, to make a long story short, the last month, he has been coming around about twice a week, but never makes dates ahead. Please tell me how to win him back? For I have found out I do love him.

Sincerely,
BETTY BUSH.

I do think the young man cares for you. But you put him on trial once, and he does not intend that it shall happen again.

BOTH MUST BE SPORTS

No doubt, he fears making dates ahead for the reason that you may again say you want a time to try out other fellows and see whom you like the best. Be patient, see him every time he wants to come to your home, and I feel sure all will be well. You see, Betty Bush, when two people make a bargain, each must remember to be a sport.

Dear Miss Brunot:

We are three girls, each about 16. In our very limited acquaintanceship, there are three young men about 20 years of age. They go evrywhere we are invited. And always are attentive. But often we have to ask them to go places. Why do you suppose they do not ask for dates with us? Of course the money problem may have something to do with it. Yet we are not high-flyers, and do not expect great expenditure.

We are tired of sitting at home, and hearing others talk of good times. We are fond of these young men, so what is your advice?

Yours,
N. Y. and A.

Unless you can throw out neat suggestions for which these three young men fall gracefully, I am afraid you had better look elsewhere for men who will show you a good time. Three girls should be able to think up ways and means to meet desirable young men. There are the schools to which you go, the offices where you work, or your home neighborhoods. Also the fellows you have always known through home friendships. I do not blame you for wanting to go to interesting places once in a while.

Panning "Higher Ups" Popular Pastime at Dinners---Fay King

By FAY KING

The Wirt dinner party investigation has been very amusing. Of course all the persons at the dinner party have denied that they ever said a single word of what Dr. Wirt said they said.

But we can't help smiling to think of thousands and thousands of dinner parties where much is said (but not actually meant perhaps) which would be emphatically denied if the talk was suddenly made public and investigated.

It is hard to imagine any gathering of satellites where not one single word is said against those higher up.

Panning the boss, the star, and the current success in most every line is one of the most popular diversions of almost any gathering of satellites.

Given in Marriage :-: A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Hugh Guards Madge's Husband

Katherine was the first to speak after Dicky's petulent outburst that we would better all "beat it and get some sleep." The young surgean was nowhere in evidence, and I conjectured that he discretly had vanished as soon as he had given Dicky unwelcome information that nothing more could be done about his arm until morning.

"There's no one with real authority here now," she said, "and besides, it really isn't the wisest thing to loosen those bandages before morning. As for 'beating it,' Dicky-bird, I beg to inform you that, whether you like it or not, I perch right upon this roost with you until you go back home."

"What about the children?" Dicky asked, a bit uneasily.

Her reply was prompt.

"Lillian has 'em, and that's answer enough for anybody. Besides, unless Madge wants to charter a separate room, she might as well go home to them. She'd have to sit up all night here."

"Nothing doing on that," Dicky said, so emphatically that my heart warmed deliciously to his care of me. "Hugh will take you and the chief home, won't you, old chap?"

He had managed to get the words out in friendly fashion, but I, who know his every inflection, read his distaste for his own proposal in his voice.

"But I have planned to stay here with you," Hugh said.

"Why, in heaven's name?" Dicky countered, staring.

My father stepped into the breach.

REASON FOR STAYING

"There is a very good reason for his staying here, Richard; one which I haven't time to tell to you now. I am sure, however, that you will take my word that it's a necessary proceeding. I also think it best, as you have suggested, that Margaret go home to the children. I will drive her back in your car, Hugh, if you will trust me with it."

We all smiled, for my father's penchant for "demon driving" is well known to all of us.

"I'll turn it over to you with trust and faith—and prayers," Hugh told him, and we all laughed as people will in relief from nervous tension.

"I haven't the slightest idea 'what all the shootin's fer,'" Dicky said a bit petulantly, "any more than I have why that beggar should have endeavored to pot me tonight. But as there's nothing else to do now except to sit on a tack until morning, I'd better proceed to that pastime, I suppose."

"You'll go to sleep pretty soon," Katherine prophesied, "and the night will be gone before you know it."

"You've mistaken your vocation," Dicky gibed. "You ought to be bedtime story teller over the radio. You have just the right touch. And, of course, knowing your little ways, I'm next to the reason why I'm going to sleep until morning doth appear. Nice, pretty little knockout drops in my glass of bedtime hot milk—that's how the Dicky-bird will stick his head under his wing."

O'ERED TO SLEEP

"Well! Why not?" Katherine asked unabashed. "My particular brand of knockout drops never hurt anybody, and the one resolution before this house which is not going to be tabled is the one about getting you to sleep. So chirp good night to your mate prettily, Dicky-bird, for I'm going to shoo everybody out of here, pronto."

"Good night, Richard," my father said quickly, and left the room, instanttly followed by Hugh Grantland, who murmured something about seeing him later. Katherine walked to the window, and Dicky gathered me close with his uninjured arm.

"I'm the most jealous jackass in captivity," Dicky said, with his lips close to my ear, "but I can't help being glad you're going home with dad all by yourself."

I turned my face and put my lips to his ear.

"Shall I tell you a secret?" I whispered.

"Please."

"I'm glad, too," I told him truthfully, and promptly received full payment for the assurance in the fervent kiss and embrace he gave me.

Household Hints

Lace curtains are best washed in borax water, and lightly starched. If they are torn, match up the pattern, dip the patch in starch and iron it into place. When lace curtains need repairing tack tissue paper over the hole and, after decreasing the tension of the sewing machine, cover the paper with rows of stitching a little way apart, working down and across like a darn. This forms a strong mesh. Then tear the paper away and iron as usual.

The old-fashioned plan of testing linen by wetting a finger is not to be taken as infallible, since a tight cotton may respond in similar manner. It is better to pour a spot of olive oil on to an odd piece and lay this between white blotting paper before pressing with a hot iron. Linen, if it is not starched, becomes transparent.

When stewing apples add a teaspoon of golden syrup instead of sugar. This makes the juice sweet and thick.

Puff pastry will be lighter if a little lemon juice is mixed with the paste.

Neglect of a Finger Infection Is Dangerous

I recently visited a friend who was convalescing in a hospital. I had understood he was recovering from a simple infection of the finger. To my regret, I learned that in order to save his hand, the finger was amputated.

Dr. Copeland

My friend told me he had infected his finger several days before he entered the hospital. Believing it to be of no consequence, he ignored the trouble. When the throbbing and pain became severe he picked the infection, hoping to get immediate relief. But there followed increased pain and throbbing which extended up the arm. He felt feverish and, becoming alarmed, consulted a physician.

I repeat this story, for I think it recites the common practice of persons who are unaware of the dangers of innocent looking infections of the hand. Usually the trouble runs its course and the tissues heal. But one may suffer the experience of my friend. After all, he was fortunate, because at times the infection is so bad that the entire hand or arm must be sacrificed to prevent perhaps fatal blood poisoning.

Never disregard an infection of the hand. Bear in mind, that a simple pin prick may be the cause of a serious infection. The original injury may have been so slight as to be entirely forgotten.

The first signs of trouble may be trobbing and redness of the finger. The finger swells and the pain becomes so severe as to make sleep and rest impossible.

When this occurs, it is imperative that you consult with a physician. If pus is present, relief can be obtained only by incising the tissues. This is a simple operation and need cause no alarm. It permits the pus to escape and allows healing to take place.

If the pus is not removed, the inflammation travels up the finger to the palm of the hand and wrist. If this is further neglected, an extensive operation is necessary to save the hand. In many cases, the germs of the infection become absorbed into the system and serious general blood poisoning results.

Our hands are constantly in contact with different varieties of germs. Protect against disease by guarding your hands against infection. Pin pricks, scratches and lacerations of the hands demand immediate first-aid treatment. Do not neglect or delay this important protection.

Most cases of amputated fingers and hands, scarred fingers, and loss of power in the fingers and hands, can be traced to neglect of a simple pin prick or infection. It is better to be too careful rather than careless.

Answers to Health Queries

T. H. Q.—My 9-month-old baby prefers tomato juice to orange juice. Would it be advisable to substitute the tomato juice in this case and is it as healthful and beneficial for a baby of this age, as orange juice?

A.—Tomato juice is very healthful and may be substituted for the orange juice. Give the baby the pure cod liver oil as a part of the daily regime.

V. H. Q.—What should a girl weigh who is 16 years old and 5 feet 3 inches tall?

A.—Considering your height and age you should weight about 120 pounds.

Mrs. C. A. B. Q.—For the past few weeks I have been using powdered milk with good results but a friend who also has been using this milk has had stomach trouble. Is this as nourishing as ordinary bottled milk or is it harmful in any way?

A.—Powdered milk is wholesome and nourishing.

R. A. L. Q.—What causes perspiring hands? This condition is always worse when I get excited.

A.—This condition is frequently due to nervousness. Overcome the underlying cause first of all. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Introductions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Do you think the form which is commonly used in an introduction, "Mrs. Brown, this is Miss Black" is correct, or should we say, "Mrs. Brown, may I present Miss Black?"

Reader.

Either form is correct under circumstances. The first form of introduction, Mrs. Brown, this is Miss Black," is quite all right to use for an informal introduction, an introduction that obviously we wish to make causal. The form of "this is" used in an introduction, is of an intimate type, the form used in family introductions and in other informal introductions.

The form, "Mrs. Brown, may I present Miss Black" would be an excellent form to use when we wish to make the introduction a very important one, for instance when Mrs. Brown is a woman much older than Miss Black or is a women of special distinction. This would, for instance, be the perfect form to use if we were presenting a debutante (Miss Black) to Mrs. Brown.

We show ourselves as an especially accustomed and knowing persons if we pay special attention to the nuances of introduction forms appropriate to the occasion at hand. Added to these forms that you mention is one in which it seems appropriate to mention only the names of the women whom we are introducing. This is the usual form, of course, "Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Black."

Who Goes First

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Upon entering a theater, who, should go first, the man or the woman?

B.

After the man has given his tickets to the usher, he may follow the usher first, if he believes that this makes the procedure easier (and many men think that it does, since it means that he can see that the usher gives the correct seats, and that he can stand at the head of the row to help his guest take her place in the row); or, if he prefers, he may have the woman go first. Most men prefer the latter, although there is, to my way of thinking, much to be said for the convenience of the former.

Acceptance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please advise me how to write a note of acceptance to a bridge party?

S.

If the invitation is in the form of a note, your acceptance would read something like this:

Dear Mrs. Warren:

I am very happy to accept your kind invitation to your home to play bridge on Friday afternoon, June the first at 3 o'clock. Thank you so much for asking me.

Very sincerely yours,
MARY ALLEN BURLINGTON.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

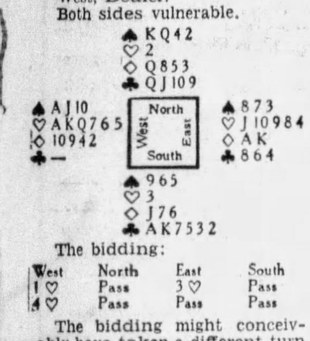
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Strip Play

Not every makable Slam is biddable, as often the cards are distributed in such a manner that an unusually satisfactory result will be attained in the play which could not have been predicted in the bidding which preceded it.

Such a hand is the one below, in which six-odd are made by a very pretty strip play by which the Declarer voids his own hand and the Dummy of both clubs and diamonds before putting North in for the final end-play.

West, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♡	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding might conceivably have taken a different turn had South had an opportunity to bid his clubs and been supported by North, but by the time the auction reached South it was entirely too expensive a proposition for him to make a bid.

The Opening lead by North was the club Queen, which was ruffed with the five by the Declarer, who then laid down the Ace of hearts. On this the two adverse trumps dropped. The next play was a small diamond to the honor in Dummy, and a second round of clubs was led and ruffed in the closed hand. Another round of diamonds was won in Dummy, and the last club in Dummy ruffed in the closed hand. The Declarer then led the diamond 9, ruffing in Dummy. He returned to his own hand by leading a trump in order to lead the last diamond for a ruff in Dummy. Here was the point at which many players would have gone wrong. The inclination to take the double spade finesse would probably have influenced their play. However, this offers nothing like as good a chance of making six tricks as the line of play actually followed. West led the diamond Ten, which he ruffed in Dummy. The stage was now set for the final throw-in. A small spade was led, and the Ten played from the closed hand. Regardless of North's return, six-odd must be made.

TOMORROW'S HAND

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Experiment with braids on your evening coiffure. Braids are now obtainable in many shops and can be bought by the 12-inch length, so that you can get a long braid and see for yourself just now to arrange it. But if your hair is clipped short at the nape of the length, please forego braid. It is for clusters of curls.

Dress up now that formal clothes are again the thing. A glorious new ensemble has a dress of black satin, with fan-shaped pleated insets in the train, and a yoke of silver sequins. Over this is a pleated cape of the black satin.

Tinned salmon supplies the inspiration for the color of a new hostess negligee. It is of tripe chiffon in that shade of rich pink, and is trimmed with pleated ruffles of the chiffon. It has a long train that is lined with silver tissue, the silver fabric being used to line the wide sleeves.

A nice friendship is that between bright yellow and dark brown. A blouse in yellow crepe has a neckline edged with tiny gardenias in brown patent leather. A brown blouse has a decoration of a cluster of yellow linen daisies.

SILK AND COTTON MINGLE FORMALLY

By PRUNELLA WOOD

LOTS OF COTTON will be used for the spring and summer dancing frocks, but that does not mean that elegance is being snubbed. Some of our new cotton formal gowns are delicate as can be; others are so stunningly tailored that only a man would have thought them up. Side by side with them, however, some women will wear lace, and tulle, satin and crepe, as ever was.

Girls who have a well-tended tan will naturally gravitate to the cotton models, with a full view of much tanned shoulders. Girls who adopt Garbo and Hepburn hair effects will find social weapons in the billowy organzas. Girls who romp out daily after a pay envelop will probably get more kick out of chiffon flatteries or daringly draped nets, which will hold their own in any hotel scene during dinner and dancing hours.

Romantic in the sophisticated tradition, this evening frock of coin dotted black cire net. Note the box pleated sleeves which may be worn tight about the wrists or nearer the elbow, and the flounce which is pleated in the same manner. The big straw hat has a forward tilt, shown in the mirror reflection.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Coin dots give zip to this model, too, but they are white embroidery on black linen, for the tailored lingerie evening frock is back with a vengeance. The cape collar is white pique; the tie through it, which becomes a belt, is paddy green velvet.

Springlike as a zephyr, this candy pink mousseline de soie dance frock. The deep V neck, back and front, is flattering; the girlish flounces and velvet sash caught with apple blossoms just too wide eyed and come hit

Memos on a Columnist's Desk

Dear W.: Virginia Pine flew here from Hollywood without the West Coast or Chicago busybodies finding out . . . She's on her way to Europe with an MGM official (Selznick) and his frau . . . She says George Raft is a chomming lad but she's had enough of marriage—for a looooooong time . . . In the party were some others includins Jock Whitney.

I went to Night Court last night—nothing exciting, but diverting. Judge Adolph Stern was on the bench—the most polite judge, too. He addresses any defendant with "Sir" whether he is white, yellow or black . . . Add predictions: The new ditty "A Hut in Old Havana" will click—it's very Cariocish . . . Diane of Dario and Diane, the dancer, was married on March 31 to Charles Dewey, of the Nautilus Beach Club. His pop owns the Edgewater Beach Club in Chicago . . . Stella Mayhew, the one-time star (she helped make the song "Hallelujah" such a hit in "Hit the Deck") is very ill and in want at the Flushing Hosp. . . . The Morrie (Of Thee I Sing) Ryskinds will multiply shortly . . . George S. Kaufman, by the way, has hit on what to do when you don't feel like having parties in your home . . . One half hour after he greets the guests (his wife invited), George goes upstairs and straight to bed.

I hear Grace Moore and her leading man, Tullio Carminati, have the most interesting tiffs on the studio set . . . Talk about embarrassing moments. Gypsy Rose Lee, the new mistress of ceremonies at the Paree introduced Jimmy Savo this way: "And now in Jimmy Savo's opinion, the world's greatest pantomimist, Jimmy Savo!" . . . She was supposed to say: "In Chaplin's opinion, etc." . . . Nice girl, though . . . Sylvia Hahlo, the booking agent, and what is left of the Erlanger interests are very much ahem! . . . In the "Rothschild" flicker the old gent's daughter is called Julie . . . There was no such name in the tribe—the daughter's name is Hannah! . . . June 15th is when the John La Gattas expect their heir . . . I explained to Elsa Maxwell that all that coin for her benefit came from "the boys," not you.

Cobina Wright (who is being countersued for divorce by her husband) smokes big, black cigars in public! . . . You can't throw enough orchids (white ones) at those responsible for The Radio City Music Hall stage show: "Impresario Spring," the loveliest presentation I've seen there . . . The Paradise has six new beautiful girls—and soooooh young! . . . George White is thinking of doing a theater-with-tables affair—seating only 300—at $5 a couvert—catering to only class trade . . . I'm insane about Lew Brown's lyric in "Foolin' Round the Other Woman's Man' song—the part that goes: "Shiver, shiver—you're without a friend. River — river—that's the cheater's end." . . . A little melodramatic—but it goose-pimples you.

Can't remember his name—but he was Phyllis Potter's ex-husband before she married Fred Astaire. Anyhow, he and his new wife are threeing . . . At the Dugout at the Mayfair Yacht Club on May 1, Harpo Marx will be master of ceremonies . . The first silent m c on record, and a good thing, too.

The Palais Royal folds for the season in about a week—and they will concentrate on their ace spot, the Riviera, across the Washington Bridge . . . Most romantic of the rendezvous anywhere, I think . . . I hear Mack Gordon is ill. His best song (and of course, Revel's) in "We're Not Dressing" is "Blue Moon" . . . Heard that William Wilkerson was operated on for a serious ailment . . . I think "Red" Gallagher's book on Dillinger is very exciting . . . Dillinger gave him plenty of "inside" when they met after his Tucson capture . . . It came out April 15 and even had the Warsaw jail robbery which happened two days before! . . . You can't find any bitterness against Dillinger in the underworld, of course . . . They liked him and argue: "He only robs banks!" . . . Well, mebbeso . . . But his wanton murdering makes me hate him. He's certainly living on "borrowed time," isn't he?

Mrs. Christian Holmes is succeeding the late Otto Kahn as a backer of music—and she has what-it-takes, too . . . But the Metropolitan Opera has not contracted any of its singers for next season! . . . Jeritza, by the way, and the Viennese librettist of the operetta she's playing in, admire each other's talents . . . He's traveling with the show . . . Maybe you'd like champagne better if you had it half champagne-half stout in a pitcher . . . Here's a line for some of the lads by Josh Billings: "It's better not to know so much than to know so many things that ain't so!"

Why don't you crow a little on the "Machado-will-be-arrested-for-murder" item which you ran so long ago? Considering how one sneered and considered it an "impossibility!" . . . There have been 19 cases of the disease (where people die from turning into stone) in New York.

I give up trying to think of an ending to that gag . . . Why not offer a leadless pencil as a prize to any one who can think up a funny answer to it? . . . "Where do columnists go after they die?" . . . Ted Fiorito's crew is now on the air playing "April In Paris"—but lovely . . . And here am I dying to dance—but no, I gotta stay caged in this office . . . I have on a new dress too. Besides, its cocktail time practically everywhere in town right now, except here.

Dog Alters Name For Shearer Film

Norma Shearer's newly adopted cocker spaniel has forgotten his old name and now answers only to "Flush." The dog is a principle character of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," Miss Shearer's new starring vehicle at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. He was chosen from a state-wide search for a dog who would respond intelligently to direction. "Flush" has lived with Miss Shearer a month, becoming accustomed to her presence, and learning the changed name. To famaliarize him with film paraphernalia, he often accompanied the star to the studio during production of "Riptide," her latest picture. Elizabeth Barrett, convalescent heroine of Rudolf Besier's play, depends upon "Flush" for companionship—at least until Robert Browning, the poet, comes into her life. Katharine Cornell's dog in the stage play was named "Flush."

Voice Wins Role for Laborer

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, April 30.—Hello! The whirligig of cinemaland spurts forth all manner of newsy things. Albert Joyce's Carusa-like singing voice was discovered while he dug ditches at the M-G-M studio. He was "captured" by the film plant and sent into warble training. His vocal chords will receive their "official" breaking-in when he does personal appearances in Long Beach this week. Then he gallops back to M-G-M to hit high notes for a tiny role in "The Merry Widow." Ah, that's Hollywood.

Betty Furness had a narrow escape when a horse ran away with her for a scene in "The Life of Vergie Winters." Later she climbed back upon the nag to prove she wasn't a-scared and was TOSSED for a nasty spill. Result: Lotsa bruises and black-and-blue marks.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Little Theater activities tonight include "The Devil's Disciple," to be presented in the Y Playhouse, Bellefield avenue, by the players of that institution, the cast including Arthur Dimling, Ida London, Ruth Olbum, Hannah Golding, Herbe Hoffman, Elma Lieblich. Marjorie Eshelman, Ruth Adams, Bernard Schachter, Sanford Bickart, David Cornman, Walter Framer, Louis Alber, Sam Schwartz and Stanford Maizlech. The play, by Bernard Shaw, with an American Revolution setting, will be repeated Wednesday night. Another offering tonight will be "The Second Man," by the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse, in the Frick School. A third presentation will be four one-act plays by the Avon Players of Ben Avon in Ben Avon Presbyterian Church tonight. The plays will be "Evening Dress Indispensable," "Demitasse," "Good Medicine" and the sturdy and true "The Valiant." Jane Ellen Ball is the director of this group. The Westinghouse Players are rehearsing "The Whole Town's Talking," comedy by John Emerson and Anita Loos, for presentation Saturday, May 5. Harold H. Langsdorf will play the male lead.

* * *

A matter of local interest in connection with the first American presentation of Bernard Shaw's "A Village Wooing," is that it was directed by Charles Meredith, who graduated from Tech drama school several years ago, and who later appeared in pictures. The play was staged in Dallas, Tex. Another Tech graduate who has been busy in Texas is John Ford Sollers, who directed "The Taming of the Shrew" in modern dress in Waco. He is a member of the Ford family that owned historic theaters in Washington and Baltimore. He was a member of the 1933 class. In Texas also, Max [illegible]holes, Tech Drama '25, directed a production of "Porgy" that had a run of two weeks in the Oak Cliff Theater.

The next legitimate attraction in the Nixon will be a Yiddish production next Monday night, May 7, by Misha and Lucy Gehrman in their new play, "A Little Happiness ("Abisella Mazel").

* * *

David O. Selznick, Pittsburgh boy who produced "Dinner at Eight" and "Viva Villa!" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and who is now at work on a film version of "David Copperfield," has plans for a short trip abroad, in search of English talent for the Dickens picture. Up to the present time Elizabeth Allan is the only player selected for the production.

George Jaffe, manager of the Variety, which closed its season Saturday night, expects to depart tomorrow for New York to engage players for the reopening of his theater early in August. He also will try to book some road shows for next season.

Outlaw Hunt In Hearst News

President Roosevelt is seen as he throws out the ball for the Washington Senators' first game at home while 25,000 cheer.

Uncle Sam's queen of the sky, the Macon, reaches Miami, Fla., from California in the record time of 54 hours, the fastest hop ever made by a dirigible for this distance. The giant airship later soars off to join the fleet in the Caribbean.

T. O. M. Sopwith's yacht, Endeavor, challenger for the America's Cup, slides down the ways at Gosport, England. The owner says he has high hopes of lifting the trophy.

Note—Because of necessity upon theater managers to arrange programs in time schedules, it is possible that some of the subjects in above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

TECH STUDENTS GIVE BALLET

"Persephone," a modernistic ballet, will be presented by the members of the Carnegie Tech music and drama departments in the Little Theater of the College of Fine Arts tonight and tomorrow night.

The music, composed by Earl Wild and George Youngling and arranged by Chauncey Kelley, depicts the ancient myth of Persephone's conquest of Pluto.

The character dancers wil lbe William Bales, as Pluto; Patti Littell as Persephone, Jean Dahl as Ceres and David Preston as Mercury. They will be assisted by a group of 18 choral dancers. The production is being directed by James McNaughton.

15-Word Will Gives Estate to Sister

Fifteen words today gave Margaret Bohn the $5,000 estate of her brother, Thomas Gray, of West Deer Township. Gray's will was filed for probate this morning.

Three children of Mrs. Sadie R. Wefing, of North Braddock, were named beneficiaries to equal shares of her $20,000 estate, in her will filed today. They are Lillian May Williams, Edward J. Wefing and Rose Viola Wolff.

Kennywood Dance Next Saturday

Kennywood Park has plans for the busiest season in its history. More picnics have been booked by far than ever before. New amusements and Nirella's Band greeted visitors at Kennywood's "preliminary opening" yesterday. The park will operate Sundays only until the picnic season begins on May 18 and the daily season starts. The Saturday evening dances will begin Saturday, May 5, when Burt Wydener's Orchestra will play.

West View Dancing To Begin May 12

West View Park will inaugurate its twenty-eighth season May 12 with a series of Saturday night dances in the park ballroom. The roller skating which has held forth there during the winter, closed its season Saturday night and workmen will be busy for the next two weeks resurfacing the big floor and making other necessary preparations for the opening dance. The park will also be open Sunday, May 13, and every Sunday thereafter with special attractions on these days. The regular season will get under way May 25, with 61 outings booked.

IS dishwashing making your hands look red, rough—old? It needn't . . . it won't, if you change from harsh soaps to Lux.

So many ordinary soaps contain harmful alkali that dries the beauty oils of the skin. Gentle Lux protects these oils. Those foamy, bubbling suds leave your hands endearingly soft, white, young.

Lux speeds up dishwashing, too. Its beauty care costs you less than 1¢ a day.

LUX EVERY DAY KEEPS OLD HANDS AWAY!

"Drop by Monday"

SLOWLY, wearily, Anna climbed the steps. She had climbed them many times before. The door was before her. She knew it would creak slightly when she opened it. It did. She knew the same people would be sitting in the outside office; the same people with the same hopeless smiles. Yes, there they were.

Anna stepped to the reception clerk's desk.

"Is there——?" she began half-heartedly.

Anna nodded. She hadn't expected anything different. "Thanks," she said. And she went out.

"Drop by Monday." The old, familiar phrase she had heard so often during the past two years. "There's nothing today. But maybe, if you drop by Monday——"

And when Monday arrived, it was always the same story. There was never anything for her. Not the tiniest role; not the most unimportant bit. It was two years since she had had a part—and three years since she had arrived in New York with the naive belief that she would soon see her name in the blazing lights.

Three years. To Anna, it now seemed much longer—and yet nothing much had happened during that time. Nothing except the endless trips to the offices of agents and producers. There had been one or two small roles in unsuccessful plays, a few try-outs, and the regular interviews with the reception clerks.

There was nothing else this girl could do. All her dreams and ambitions had centered on the stage. There had been a little money once, a legacy from an aunt. That had gone to pay for her studies and her living expenses during the past three years.

Now the money was gone. And there was nothing left but a vague phrase that she heard on all sides. "Drop by Monday." . . .

Anna turned off Broadway and walked slowly toward Eighth avenue. She dreaded going back to her boarding house. This was Friday, and another week's rent was due. That made six altogether. And the landlady had said— The girl closed her eyes and shivered slightly. She didn't like to remember what the landlady had said.

There was some change in her purse. Less than a dollar, and it was every cent she owned. The things she had been pushing from her mind now hammered into her brain.

No money. No job. Nowhere to turn for help. If she sent a telegram to Mom and Pop, they'd gladly wire her the fare home. She knew that. But she didn't want it that way.

She would never find happiness anywhere but on the stage. Yet there was no way of going on without money. And if she hadn't been able to get a job in two years, what could she hope for now? Her thoughts whirled about in endless circles.

She went quietly to her room and retired.

Before the next day had ended, she had settled everything in her mind. A day and a half without eating made her feel giddy and lightheaded. Words were drumming into her brain. "Drop by Monday. Nothing today. Drop by Monday."

Anna laughed crazily. She had considered things very carefully, and she knew now that there would never be another Monday. She'd never hear those hated words again. Now there would be only peace and rest and quiet.

She picked up the purse with the change in it, and went out. She drifted into the Saturday night crowd that thronged Broadway. There were lights and noise and laughter all around her, but Anna didn't know it.

She had an errand to do. Something to get in a drug store. After she got it, she went back to her rooming house, carefully avoiding the landlady. She closed the door of her small room. A clock struck somewhere in the house. It was 8 o'clock.

There were some letters to be written. She would have to try to explain to Mom. Perhaps when she wrote about the endless trips to agents' offices and the eternal, meaningless "Drop by Monday" — perhaps then Mom would understand.

The whole thing wouldn't take long. No more than half an hour. Anna's hand clasped convulsively over the bottle in its white paper wrapper. The peace, the rest, and the quiet. She was very anxious for them now . . .

At a bar in a midtown hotel stood a successful man. Two or three other men stood with him. They slapped his back, told him what a swell guy he was, and insisted on buying more drinks.

"I'll have to be running along, boys," he said. "There's somebody I want to see. She lives right around the corner here somewhere, and I can be back in 15 minutes.

"Her mother and my old man were friends," he explained. "I got a letter from the woman this week asking me to look up the kid and see if she needs anything. I guess this little girl has the stage bug—and her mother thinks I can help her. Maybe I can. Anyhow, I'll run along and see her."

There was a series of protests. He couldn't leave now, his friends said. Not when the party was just starting. Someone pressed another drink into his hand. He turned back to the bar with a smile.

"Okay, boys," he said. "I'll stick with you. After all, I don't have to see that kid tonight. It can wait. I'll drop by Monday". . .

MENUS ARRANGED FOR JADED TASTES

Worry of Planning Ended by List of Week's Meals

"What would you like for dinner tonight?"

That is mother's ever hopeful query which invariably rates in return:

"Oh! I don't know. Any old thing suits me. Really."

So the time-repeated business of thinking up daily menus begins again. If, as was the case with the primitive people, there were only a half dozen on so foods from which to choose, life would be very simple for the planner of meals.

In the present age, though, we have such a wealth of foods with which to work that most of us are bewildered. We must constantly try to tempt the appetites of those who are rarely very hungry. And a plenty hard job, it is, too, we've found out.

To give you you a week's rest from menu worry Prudence Penny has arranged a week's meals for you, in addition to ner usual prize recipe suggestions, In the next few day she will offer you a few special-occasion benus, and beginning Friday will print daily menus for family use.

You'll want to try all of these menus, and after reading them you may have further suggestions for appealing dishes. If sent in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, your ideas may net you either a $5 or a $1 prize. No recipes, remember, are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. E. L. GOUCHER,
49 Belvidere Street, Crafton.
LAMB TERRAPIN.

Two cups cold lamb diced.
Two tablespoons butter.
One tablespoon flour.
One tablespoon Worcestershire sauce.
One teaspoon powdered mustard.
1 cup stock from bones and trimmings.
One-fourth cup cream or milk.
Two hard boiled eggs.
One small cup gravy.

Method: Make sauce by blending butter, flour and mustard, adding stock, cream, Worcestershire sauce and gravy. Cook five minutes after it starts to boil. Put in meat, yolks of eggs rubbed through a sieve. Then add egg whites cut in small pieces. Season and serve on toast.

Five $1 Prize Winners

MRS. HARRY W. HALLSTEIN,
111 North Third street, Apollo.
ORANGE AND MACAROON PUDDING

One-third pound almond macaroons.
One pint milk.
Four eggs.
One-half cup sugar.
Two oranges.

Soak the almond macaroons in the milk until soft. Beat the eggs and add them to the sugar and the grated rind of one orange. (Do not grate in any of the white pith as it spoils the flavor.) Stir the mixture carefully into the macaroons and add the juice of two oranges. Pour into an oiled mold and set on a stand or ring in a kettle of boiling water. Simmer steadily for an hour. Serve hot with orange sauce.

ORANGE SAUCE

One-half cup sugar.
One tablespoon cornstarch.
Two tablespoons lemon juice.
Four tablespoons orange juice.
Two tablespoons butter.
One cup water.

Dissolve cornstarch in small amount of cold water. Place sugar, water and dissolved cornstarch in pan and cook slowly until thick and clear. Beat in butter, fruit juices and serve hot or cold as desired. A pinch of nutmeg may be added if desired.

MISS KATHERINE HACK,
133 Roosevelt Road, Emsworth.
CHICKEN AND TOMATO AU GRATIN

Toast—two slices for each guest.
Sliced cooked chicken.
Tomatoes.
Salt.
Pepper.
American cheese.

Over a flat baking pan toast two slices for each guest. On these place sliced chicken, topped with slices of tomatoes, sprinkled with salt and pepper, and over all a thin slice of American cheese.

Just before serving time, place the pan under the broiler to melt and brown the cheese. Arrange the toast on a platter and have a good hot mushroom sauce—pour it around platter to be served with hot slices.

Mushroom Sauce—Serves Four.

Three tablespoons butter.
Two tablespoons flour.
One cup chicken stock.
One-third cup cream.
Seasoning.

Slice mushrooms and saute in butter. When brown add flour, chicken stock and cream. Stir mixture well, season to taste, and bring to boiling point.

MISS MARY GEIER,
228 S. Birmingham avenue, Avalon.
ASPARAGUS OMELET

Three eggs.
Three tablespoons cold water.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon paprika.
One and one-half tablespoons butter.
One cup asparagus tips.

Beat the eggs lightly, yokes and whites together, add to them the water and seasonings. Melt the butter in a medium-sized frying pan and when hot pour in the eggs. Cook until just beginning to set, then spread over the surface the asparagus tips, cut into inch lengths. When the omelet is almost set, double the omelet over itself and turn over onto a hot platter.

If preferred, a plain omelet may be made and the asparagus tips, heated in a little white sauce or in melted butter, may be poured around it as a garnish.

MRS. CLARA SCHMIECH,
510 Geranium Street,
GERMAN HASH.

Make a well seasoned soup stock of the bones and trimmings of roast beef, veal, ham, or chicken; strain, and in two cups of this, cook one-half cup rice until tender and liquid is absorbed. Brown a little butter in frying pan, turn in the rice and about one pint of cold meat that has been chopped fine. Mix thoroughly, adding salt, pepper, and a little nutmeg. Cook until very hot. Serve with apple sauce.

MRS. JOHN E. STREETT,
184 North avenue, Emsworth.
MARASCHINO CHARLOTTE RUSSE

One-half package lemon gelatin (four tablespoons).
One cup warm water.
Two tablespoons juice from maraschino cherries.
One-half cup powdered sugar.
Dash of salt.
One-eighth teaspoon almond extract.
One cup heavy cream.
Eight maraschino cherries, finely cut.
Three tablespoons macaroon crumbs, dried and rolled.
Lady fingers.

METHOD

Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Add cherry juice, sugar and salt. Chill until cold and syrupy. Add almond extract and cream. Place in bowl of cracked ice or ice water and whip with rotary egg beater until fluffy and thick, like whipped cream. Fold in cherries and macaroon crumbs. Turn into mold lined with lady fingers. Chill until firm; Unmold. Cut into wedges. Garnish with sections of additional maraschino cherries. Serves eight.

River Yields Body Of School Official

TUNKHANNOCK, April 30.—(AP.)—The Susquehanna River has given up the body of John E. Morgan, former superintendent of Wyoming County schools.

The body was found yesterday lying in bushes along the river bank near Ransom, about six miles from where Morgan leaped into the stream April 6.

Thieves 'Walk Off' With Pair of Tombstones

CHICAGO, April 30.—(INS.)—Tombstone Maker Pacquale Fucome told police:

"I've been robbed by strong-arm men."

He was asked by a desk sergeant:

"What was taken?"

The sergeant told Pacquale:

Strange things happening these days and the latest that we kinda got left at the church with some of our wedding party the other day. And WE MUST have our flower girl and her boy-friend . . . so here they are . . . better late than never (ha!).

* * *

Betsy-Ann . . . the 4-year-old flower girl, can have a sweet creation of matelasse cotton fabric, as flowerlike and young as she is. It is hand smocked, edged with Val lace and puff sleeves. Blue or pink, sizes 3 to 6. At $6.95.

Some people prefer the ring to be entrusted to some less nervous hands than those of the groom . . . and for this you have a ring-bearer. Clad in fine white pique, if a 3 to 6-er . . . with a tailored lawn ruffle making a collar and going down the front with pearl buttons. Button-on style. $4.95.

And the slightly older boy looks well in a coat and trouser (shorts) outfit. Of rajah-like fabric in cream color . . . double-breasted effect . . . and mannish finishing like the pinch-back and pleats on the patch pockets. Sizes 5 upward. Price $2.95 only.

And now, you're going to think that we've gone mad again like we do sometimes . . . but we just couldn't resist this! Ozone, no less, in your face cream and cosmetics.

You know that it's the ozone in the air that keeps one going . . . refreshes the whole system. Now a company has developed a scheme by which machines manufacture ozone, electrically, and it is blended right then and there into fine creams and tissue builders. Best of it all is, that you can benefit by this "mountain air" in your toiletries for a very little price. $1. And be sure to ask about the stick form that it comes in. Easily dabbed over the skin, and oh, so handy!

* * *

We're galloping away on one of our favorite hobbies today—polo shirts. Grand new ones of synthetic crepe in pastel shades with an emblem monogram put on the front free. They're washable, of course. AND . . . best news for last . . . they have matching skirts. Which, when offered for the sum of $1.95 for the complete outfit, is something worth crowing over!

* * *

The "May flowers" that are due tomorrow have already sprouted on the fronts of little hand-sewed sweaters in one of the stores. Darling little sweaters . . . 100 per cent all wool . . . and the biggest values for their little price of $1.95 that we've seen in many a moon. Pastel shades . . . and some with square necks and yokes! Pull-overs . . . and others buttoning at the throat or shoulder. Embroidered, plain, ribbed, in a wide variety of every conceivable style. For your youngsters 3-4-5-6 years.

* * *

A new way of getting "lit up" . . . from a cocktail shaker, too. And yet "his one is in reality a cigaret lighter that, when you take off the cap, lights your "weed" with the first flicker. Pewter and bronze-finish metal . . . and about 6 inches high. $1.

* * *

The song of the golfer is heard in the land (personally we've found few in singing moods whilst sand-trapping 'round) . . . and the flannel jackets we have ogled of late are MADE for a merry golf maiden.

Navy, red, or brown ones with large pearl buttons bigger than dollars, going rich-man-poor-man-beggar-man-thief down the front from throat to edge! And a little round neck . . . and patch pockets on your frontage. Sizes 12, 14 and 16. At $12.95, if you please. Unbeatable to wear with a plaid or check skirt.

Scaffold Death Held Accident

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a Coroner's jury today at an inquest into the death of William Sewell, 22, of 122 Wilburt street, an employes of the Robert N. Johnson Company, who fell from the tenth floor of Kaufmann's department store a week ago. Sewell was at work cleaning the building for the Johnson company at the time.

Evidence indicated that acid used in cleaning the building ate through the ropes which held the scaffold on which men were working.

"Yes, madam, Climax has been on the market 33 years, so I guess the makers know how to make as good a cleaner as can be made."

SINCE Climax Cleaner came on the market more than a generation ago, dozens of other wall paper cleaners have sprung up, died and been forgotten. Women who were brides when they first used Climax are now grandmothers.

If you clean your wall paper and window shades yourself, take a tip from the professional decorator and use Climax, as he does. The saving in labor and the thorough cleaning are far more important than saving a cent or two a can on a brand you know nothing about.

All hardware, paint and drug stores sell Climax. So do all grocers. It will pay you to insist on Climax (in the blue-labeled can). Climax cleans all types of wall paper, burlap, sanitas, flat-tone, tinted and textured plaster walls—and window shades too.

GRIMM SEES PIRATES AS STRONG FLAG CONTENDER

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Pilot Draws First Fine. Net Team Has Balance.

Pittsburgh's first Sunday baseball game must be voted a complete success. It had everything needed to make it a perfect picture—ideal spring weather, a crowd of 20,000 handled and conducting itself without a trace of disorder, four home runs and a series of sparkling fielding feats to give the fans an afternoon of thrills, and the whole topped off with a Pirate victory. That the batting and fielding on the Pittsburgh side was so markedly above the average was a rather fortunate break for Red Lucas, as the new slab ace did not pitch up to his best standards, and the Sunday inaugural might not have ended so happily but for the unusual offensive and defensive support he received, with Gus Suhr starring on the attack by pounding in four of the nine runs, and Arky Vaughan, Cookie Lavagetto and Tommy Thevenow contributing brilliant bits of fielding. Suhr's hitting continues to be a pleasing feature of Corsair operations. He was batting .382 up to today, and had hit safely in every game except the opener.

Gus Suhr

There is no reason to fear that Lucas, who means everything to the Pirates' chances in the pennant race, will not deliver a greatly improved brand of pitching later. It must be remembered that it was his first start of the year, the first time he has gone the distance this spring, and that he has not yet fully recovered from the hip injury that delayed his debut as a Buccaneer. The fact that Red gave four bases on balls is evidence that he is not yet in his right form. It is most unusual for Lucas to give so many walks. In 10 years of pitching in the majors he has averaged only one base on balls to every six innings. With a game under his belt and control regained he ought to be much better next time out.

COCHRANE FIRST TO VIOLATE OWN RULE

When the season opened, Manager Mickey Cochrane notified his Tigers that loafiing was one thing for which he would not stand, and that any player caught napping off a base, or thrown out because he loafed going to a base, would be fined $10, the money to be put into a fund and turned over to the clubhouse boy at the end of the pennant race.

In a game against Cleveland, with Gehringer on first base, Cochrane hit a low line drive to short. Knickerbocker trapped the ball, and Cochrane, because he stopped running was doubled up.

Later Spokesman Fred Marberry informed the manager that the players had adjudged him guilty of violating the rule against loafing and expected him to pay the fine, as well as any other offender. Cochrane admitted his guilt and paid the fine. He is the first man on the Detroit roster fined for loafing, and the first victim of a rule instituted by himself.

BUCS FACE STRONGEST PENNANT THREAT

The coming of the Cubs for their first Pittsburgh series of the season puts the Pirates up against the most powerful opposition they have faced to date and the strongest pennant threat in the National League. The acquisition of Chuck Klein gives the Bruins not only another siege gun on attack, but a great all-around ball player and a hustling influence that strengthens the club in every department. There is another helpful addition in Outfielder George Stainback, Los Angeles recruit, who hit .335 in the Coast League last season, and who has already proved himself one of the best new players of the big year in the majors.

Chuck Klein

The changes make the Chicago team look like the best pennant prospect in the race, particularly since the Giants were weakened by the loss of Leroy Parmelee. Manager Charley Grimm's outfit packs more power than any other club in the league, Lonnie Warneke seems headed for a season in which he may rival Hubbell as the best pitcher of the year, and with the remainder of the regular slab staff off to a good start, there is hardly a doubt that Chicago is the club to be beaten out for the flag.

POLO OFFERS SOLUTION OF GRID PROBLEM

As the reason for their refusal to yield to the popular clamor for the return of the goal posts to their former position on the goal lines, in order to revive field-goal kicking, as the pro league has done, the collegiate football powers have explained that they fear the possibility of collision with steel or wooden posts would endanger the safety of the players. A critic who has been giving some attention to polo suggests a feature of the latter game might solve the gridiron problem.

Goal posts used in polo are made of papier mache and stuck into the ground on wooden pegs, the idea being that if a player or pony collides with a post there will be no danger of injury. It is suggested that college football could safely put the posts back on the goal lines by adopting the same material. How often the posts would have to be replaced after the players surged into them is another question, not to mention such a weighty problem as the consequent interference with the fun of the boys who uproot enemy posts and carry them off after a victory. They might find it rather difficult to saw up a papier mache goal post for souvenirs.

NET TEAM STRONG BECAUSE OF BALANCE

Two years ago the omission of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody from the United States women's tennis team selected to meet the British team for the Wightman Cup would have caused a mild panic. Now, the fact that the American women, with Miss Helen Jacobs as their captain, will go into the international struggle without the services of Mrs. Moody, appears not to be causing the slightest alarm. The general feeling is that the absence of Mrs. Moody need not lead to the loss of the cup. Anyhow, it didn't last year, when the only thing that the convalescent Mrs. Moody did about it was gracefully to accept the trophy after somebody else had won it.

Helen Jacobs

As a matter of fact, the popular view is that the American team as a whole is stronger than it was in Mrs. Moody's prime. It is stronger because it is better balanced. Capt. Jacobs, Alice Marble, Sarah Palfrey, Carolin Babcock and Josephine Cruickshank, while none of them may be as good as Mrs. Moody was at her best, all are much better than the teammates whom Mrs. Moody used to lead around in the days when it was said we had a one-woman team, based on Helen's two sure points in the singles. That group has experience and class. Miss Jacobs is on her eighth quest of the cup. Miss Palfrey was on the team in 1930 32-33. Misses Marble and Babcock both were on the team last year, and Miss Cruickshank is an accomplished doubles player. Women's tennis in this country has improved so tremendously it is no longer necessary to depend on one outstanding player.

MANOS VICTOR IN HANDBALL STRUGGLE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Theos Manos, whose local handball victories are more numerous than one would have time to relate or space to set out, branched into inter-city competition again yesterday to score brilliantly as Pittsburgh and Cleveland stars split even in a special program in celebration of the dedication of the new Keystone Athletic Club board floor court. Sporting the colors of the home organization, Manos gained singles vengeance over Johnny Endzewick, Buckeye ace, for a setback admnistered here two years ago and in doubles paired with Lou Alman, brilliant Y. M. H. A. southpaw, to tally over Endzewick and his clever partner, Carl Walters. The man-to-man verdict read 21-6, 21-15, while the dual affair went the limit to terminate at 21-20, 9-21, 21-15.

Walters registered the Cleveland singles win by clicking off Dave Olbum, husky Y. M. H. A. contender, 21-18, 21-18, in a fast tussle that saw the visitor handle successfully just about enough of the Bellefielder's speedy wallops. The invaders' two-man triumph went to Ed Goodrau and Pat Young, who nosed out the brand new Keystone-P. A. A. combination of Dick Koubek and Bill Kern, 21-20, 21-18.

Following the competition, a general handball dinner was staged for officials, players and fans of the district. A. M. A. medals were awarded to Manos for his recent singles success and to Alman and Frank Altmar for their annexation of the doubles crown. Chairman Curtis Clark, of the K. A. C. glove committee, directed the bill.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: ONE OF THE SAFEST PLACES IN THE WORLD—Next to bed, a railroad train is the safest place in the world. According to the annual report to the Congress of the Interstate Commerce Commission: "Steam railroads carried 480,717,777 passengers 16,997,426,362 miles with but 23 fatalities, or 1 for each 739,018,537 miles traveled." In other words, if a person boards a railway passenger train and travels continuously night and day at an average speed of 40 miles per hour it would take more than 2100 years to have traveled 739,018,537 miles. His chances of being killed in a railway accident would be once in every 2100 years, as the average span of life is about 50 years.

LEFTY ELATED OVER BRUINS' SHOWING

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Charley Grimm, in Pittsburgh with his first-place Cubs for three clashes with the Pirates, has a higher opinion of the Buccaneers than that expressed by hundreds of fans who have studied the Oaklanders in their early home games. Grimm reached the city in a happy frame of mind this morning; he is entirely satisfied with his revamped Bruins, who have set the fastest clip in major circles since the curtain went up.

Touching on the Buccos, Lefty said:

"The club that beats out the Pirates should win the National League pennant. I feel that George Gibson has a fine ball team when it gets straightened around. The hot weather is bound to bring out the best stuff possessed by the Pirates. We are not underestimating them one bit. We threw everything we had at the Bucs in Los Angeles, but they were able to split even with us in eight games."

STAINBACK INJURED

Pittsburgh fans will not get the opportunity to see Outfielder Tut Stainback, new Chicago sensation. Grimm disclosed that he had to leave the young phenom at home owing to an inju... ankle. Stainback played for week... the ailment, but he eventually ... to leave the lineup. So Haze Cuyler, recovered from his recei sickness, is back in centerfield.

Of his own club, Grimm w... enthusiastic. He remarked:

"I dislike the continual tal... of winning flags. I think w... have a fine chance to cop an... I repeat that I believe th... Pirates are the team the flag... winner will have to nose out a... the finish. Stainback an...

Canadian Wins Walking Title

CINCINNATI, April 30.—(AP.)—Harry Ceiman, of Toronto, Canada, won the National A. A. U. 50,000-meter championship walk here yesterday, covering 31 miles and 125 yards in 4 hours, 58 minutes, 55 1-5 seconds. He crossed the finish line almost two miles ahead of the field.

Ernest Crosbie, of East Lansing, Mich., came in second; Ernest Koehler, of New York, was third, and Bill Chrisholm, of Los Angeles, finished fourth.

Bezdek Out to Form Coaches' Association

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., April 30.—Invitation to participate in a conference looking toward the organization of all athletic coaches in the state has been sent to nearly 1,000 men engaged in this work in Pennsylvania schools and colleges by Hugo Bezdek, director of the School of Physical Education of the Pennsylvania State College. While no definite date has been set for the conference, May 10 was suggested as a convenient time.

CRONIN'S SHAKEUP OF SENATOR LINEUP BRINGS RESULTS

NATS CAPTURE THIRD WIN IN ROW

Associated Press.

Although only Ossie Bluege, of the three veterans lifted from the lineup, still remains on the bench, the scare Cronin tossed into his squad has shaken the Senators out of their lethargy and produced three successive victories. Their second 7-6 triumph in a row over the Philadelphia Athletics hoisted them above the .500 mark and into fourth place yesterday.

JOE'S HIT WINS

Cronin drove in the deciding runs with a single in the ninth after Jimmy Foxx had clouted his fourth homer with two on in the third and the A's had thumped General Al Crowder from the hill.

Despite their victory the Senators couldn't gain much ground, as the Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees, who rank just above them, also won. Cleveland trimmed the league-leading Tigers, 7 to 1, before Detroit's largest Sunday baseball gathering in two years, 30,500. Oral Hildebrand and Lloyd Brown gave the Indians a six-hit mound performance and the club backed them with heavy hitting. The Ruth-Gehrig-Gomez combination carried the Yanks to a 3 2 triumph over the Red Sox before 50,000 fans. Gomez hurled six-hit ball. Ruth tied the score in the eighth with his third homer and Gehrig singled in the winning run in the ninth.

Big Jim Weaver, of St. Louis, held Chicago's White Sox to four hits, one a homer by Al Simmons, to win, 6 to 2.

Both National League pace setters, the Cubs and the Giants, were thoroughly beaten. A pair of homers by Gabby Hartnett failed to save Chicago from a 9-4 beating by the St. Louis Cardinals as Jim Collins and Buster Mills also clouted homers.

OTT HITS FIFTH

Mel Ott's fifth circuit drive featured the Giant-Boston struggle, but the Braves won, 6 to 4, by smacking Hal Schumacher for four runs in the fifth. Gus Suhr and Paul Waner, of Pittsburgh, and Ivy Shiver and Sylvester Johnson, of Cincinnati, propelled homers as the Pirates won a 9-4 triumph behind Red Lucas in their first Sunday home game.

Brooklyn won out, 8-7, over the Phillies in another give-and-take struggle which saw nine pitchers go in and take it for a total of 22 hits.

BAZZONE BOXES RANDALL AGAIN

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Tiger Joe Randall vs. Joey Bazzone, 10 rounds; Max Elling vs. Jimmy Columbo, 6 rounds, and Irish Jimmy Terry vs. Paddy Gray, Teddy Mayan vs. Ray Eberle, Floyd Walcot vs. Mike Mitchell and Farmer Bill Schwerin vs. Dick Ambrose, 4 rounds each, McKeesport.

Young Corbett vs. Young Terry, 10 rounds, San Francisco.

Henry Firpo vs. Roscoe Manning and Eddie Durino vs. Stanislaus Loayza, 10 rounds each, Newark, N. J.

Young Manuel Quintero vs. Billy Hood, Tony Cancella vs. George Neron and Spike Webb vs. Otto Kushmer, 10 rounds each, and Popper Stopper vs. Young Willie Cobb, 8 rounds, Tampa, Fla.

Angie Vaglio vs. Roy Calamari, 10 rounds, New Orleans.

McKeesport will play to its biggest boxing crowd in a couple of years tonight, when Joey Bazzone, of that city, and Tiger Joe Randall, Negro welterweight puncher, of Elizabeth, clash in a return bout over the 10-round route. Randall recently won a referee's decision over Bazzone there in a battle replete with knockdowns. The return pairing is by popular request.

In their first meeting, Randall almost knocked out Bazzone at the start, but Joey came back to wage a thrilling fight, and the fans were divided in their opinions as to the victor at the finish.

Max Elling, of the Hill, and Jimmy Columbo, of Clarksburg, W. Va., box the six-round semi-final, and there will be four four-rounders. The show gets under way at 8:30 daylight saving time.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Ben Jeby, victor over Anson Green here last Friday night, boxes Ken Overlin in one of four 10-round bouts in Philadelphia tonight. Benny Bass and Cleto Locatelli box the windup, a return bout. Overlin has been undefeated in his last 30 starts.

Ten bouts make up an amateur card in the Columbia Theater, Kittanning, Thursday night.

Jack Perry, former local welterweight boxer, has been confined in a hospital in California for some six weeks and is due for a longer stay. Friends who want to communicate with him may do so by addressing him at Ward 8, Veterans' Hospital, Sawtelle, Cal. Perry's boxer, Guy Salerno, who appeared around here, is doing a comeback as a light-heavyweight on the Coast.

Carmen Barth, Cleveland boxer, now is a stablemate of Eddie and Fritzie Zivic and may come here with them when they return the latter part of May.

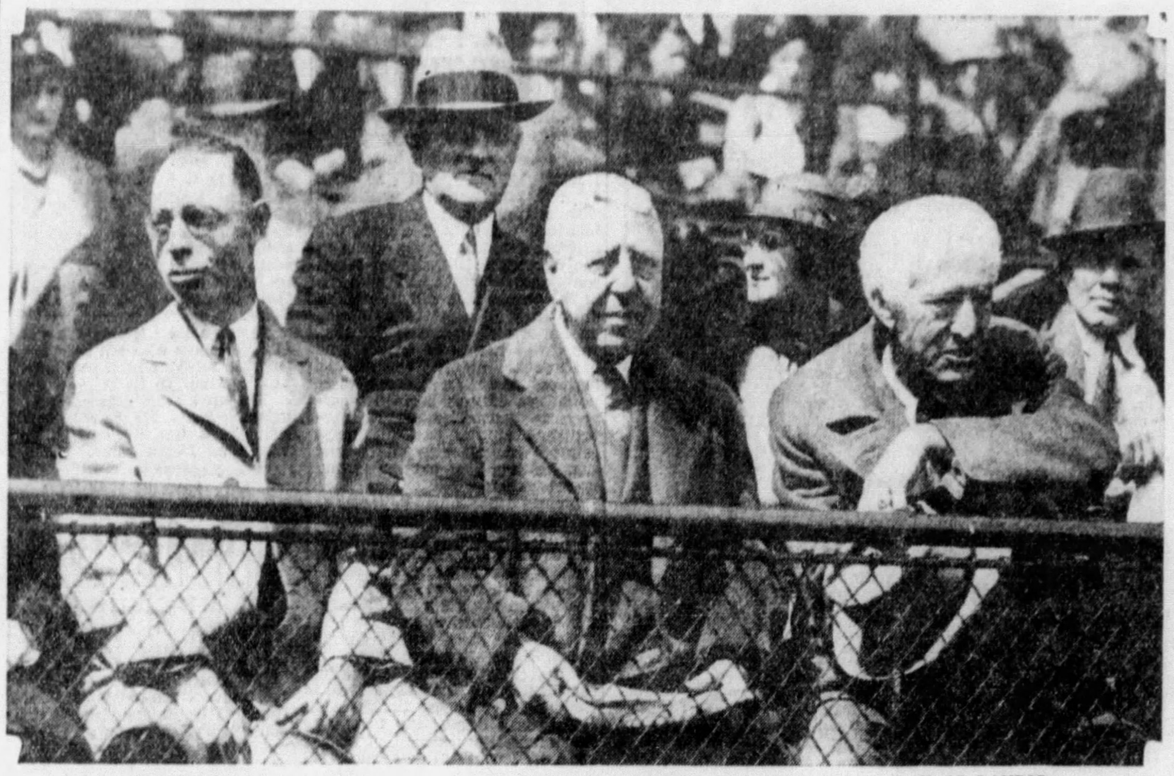
Landis Among Notables at Sunday Opener

HON. JOHN K. TENER — MRS. BENSWANGER



W. E. BENSWANGER — C. J. HEAD — K. M. LANDIS

A crowd of 20,000 enjoyed Pittsburgh's first legalized Sunday baseball game at Forbes Field yesterday afternoon. Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture shows a group of the notables who attended. Landis is the High Commissioner of baseball and Tener is a former president of the National League as well as fomer Governor of Pennsylvania and former major league pitcher. Benswanger is president of the Pirates. Head is a friend of Commissioner Landis from Greensburg. Four home runs thrilled the large turnout.

THE GAME OF SOFTBALL

—What It's All About—

This is the ninth installment of a series on the rules of softball being published in connection with a district amateur tournament which the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will conduct this summer, the winner of which will represent Pittsburgh in the national tournament in Chicago in September. Players are urged to clip and preserve the series.

RULE 16—WHEN THE BATTER IS OUT

The batter shall be declared out:

1—If he bats out of turn, unless the error is discovered in time for the regular batter to take his place before he becomes a base runner, in which case the called balls and strikes shall be charged against the proper batsman; but only the proper batsman (the man whose turn has been missed) shall be called out. No runs shall be scored or bases run because of any act of the wrong batter. If the improper batsman reaches base and the error is discovered, he must bat again and all runners return and the man whose turn has been missed is called out. If, however, the player batting out of turn has finished his time at bat and the ball has been delivered to the succeeding batter, this rule shall not apply. Should the out under this section be the third of the inning, the proper batsman in the next inning shall be the player who would have come to bat if the players had been retired in their regular order in the previous inning.

2—If he bats illegally.

3—If he bunts or attempts to bunt. (A bunt is a ball not swung at, but met with the bat and tapped slowly within the infield by the batter.)

4—After a caught foul tip which is the third strike.

5—On a third strike, whether the ball is caught or not.

6—If he makes a foul or fair hit, and the ball is caught by a fielder before it touches the ground.

7—If he delays the game unnecessarily.

8—If he attempts to hinder the catcher from fielding or throwing the ball by stepping outside the lines of the batsman's box, or in any way obstructing or interfering with the catcher. If the batsman, however, interferes with a play at home plate, the runner shall be called out, unless such out be the third out, in which case the batsman shall be called out.

9—If he intentionally interferes with a legally pitched ball by permitting himself to be hit.

10—If he hits an infield fly as provided in Rule 17.

Tomorrow—Infield fly and legal order of bases.

ST. LOUIS LOSES FRANCHISE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 30.—(AP.)—The St. Louis Gunners football team was denied a place in the American Professional League at a meeting of directors here yesterday.

It was explained Capt. Bob Sampson's request that the majority of the St. Louis games be played at home was the reason for rejecting the Gunner's application.

Rules, player and game contracts similar to those in the National Professional league were adopted.

EASTERN HORSE SHOWS SPEED IN VICTORY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 30.—(AP.)—Actual racing is the best training for the Kentucky Derby, so until tomorrow, at least, the East must be conceded the edge in next Saturday's Derby because of Cavalcade's record-breaking triumph in the Chesapeake stakes at Havre de Grace.

Cavalcade ran the mile and sixteenth in 1:43 3-5, breaking the track record by two-fifths of a second. Mrs. I. D. Sloane's Eligible previously had equaled the track record of 1:41 4-5 for the mile and 70 yards at Havre.

AGRARIAN TRAILS

Other Eastern eligibles which raced well Saturday were Mrs. Frank J. Heller's Agrarian and Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Discovery, which finished second and third respectively behind Cavalcade, and J. H. Louchheim's Speedmore and Mrs. Payne Whitney's Spy Hill, which finished second and third behind Mrs. Sloane's High Quest, not eligible for the Derby, in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica.

Only the lesser grade Derby eligibles raced at Churchill Downs Saturday and a mediocre card was programmed today, but tomorrow some of the leading western hopefuls may be entered in the Preparation purse at one mile, better known as the "Derby trial." The leading western contenders are the fillies Mata Hari and Bazaar and the maiden colt Sir Thomas.

WAR PLEDGE IN FORM

War Pledge, son of Crusader, worked out yesterday over the full Derby route at the Downs, and was timed in 2:10 4-5. The time for the mile was 1:41 4-5.

Riskulus, Northway stable colt, son of Stimulus, did a mile and one-eighth in 1:56, breezing, with a mile of the distance going in 1:43. Another son of Stimulus, Sergt. Byrne, owned by John Simonetti, worked out over a half mile in :48 3-5, breezing.

Sun-Telegraph Newsies Form Team

CHARLES STERBENAE — JOSEPH CARR — LEWIS LaROCK (Mascot) — MORRIS SIGEMAN — MIKE LaROCK

These nine Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph carrier boys have formed a softball team in the Manchester district and named it the Secret Agents X9 outfit, after the famous comic strip. They raised the money for the uniforms by getting subscription starts and pooling their funds. Their team is entered in the North Side League. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

LOCAL CYCLIST WINS CLIMB

CLEVELAND, April 30.—(AP.)—Al Dilliott, Pittsburgh, won the Class A professional event in the motorcycle hill climbing contests sponsored by the Cleveland Motorcycle Club yesterday. A crowd of 3,000 saw the contests, in which 40 riders participated. Dilliott's motorcycle climbed the 180-foot hill in 5:78 seconds.

Joe Ubelacher, Rochester, N. Y., was second in the class A event and Louis Ketzel, Dayton, O., finished third.

Paul Geltch, Youngstown, O., won the class B amateur climb in 5:90 seconds. Clarence Eickner, Columbus, O., was second and A. W. French, Westernville, O., third. Ubelacher won the 80-cubic inch displacement contest in 5:52 seconds. Joe Feyas, Erie, Pa., was second; Eilliott, Third and Darrell Bryan, Grovesport, O., fourth.

Americans Opposed In British Amateur

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, April 30.—(AP.)—Members of the American Walker Cup team who arrived here last night and the usual contingent of American tourist amateurs are among the 225 entries announced today for the British amateur championship at Prestwick, Scotland, starting May 21.

Capt. Francis Ouimet, of the Walker Cup men, and his teammate Gus Moreland will clash in the very first match, meaning that one American will be eliminated from the title chase. In the other first round matches, members of the team and their opponents are:

Chandler Egan and James Wallace, of Troon.

George Dunlap, American amateur champion, and G. A. F. Walsh, of Calcutta.

Johnny Fischer and Graham Patrick Stirling.

Trio of Three-Sport Stars at Penn State

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., April 30.—Versatility in athletics seems to be coming back at Penn State. Three men now engaged in spring sports for the Lions have achieved unusual prominence in two other sports, something of a rarity in recent years. The three three-sport men are Jack Fletcher, lacrosse; Al Mikelonia, baseball, and Don Masters, golf.

SPARTAS AHEAD

CHICAGO, April 30.—(AP.)—The Chicago Spartas scored three goals in the second half yesterday to defeat the Cleveland Slavias, 4 to 3, in an inter-city soccer match. Jackson scored for Cleveland in the first period and Vlacek tied it up late in the second. Novak, Wolff and Greenlees counted for Sparta in the last half.

KNIGHTS SCORE WIN

Barto's Ring Career Dates From Dance Hall Fight

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Because a slim-built Italian youngster refused to let a former boxer who outweighed him many pounds jerk his necktie out of place at a dance and get away with it we now have Mike Barto, the hard-hitting southpaw lightweight, of New Kensington, thrilling the local fans with his knockout punch.

The youngster is Bernard Bertone. When the big fellow insisted upon tormenting him, Bernard "offered him out," was warned by friends against the bully's reputation for prowess with his fists, nevertheless went on to meet him outside and dropped him with a left. The big fellow decided he had enough for the night, but asked for a return meeting and Mike went into training with his older brother, Tee, for a revenge battle which never came off.

SPURRED BY BROTHER

The brother, however, did not wish to see the conditioning work go for naught and entered Bernard in an amateur tournament in McKeesport. That was more than two years ago. Under the name of Mike Barto, the kid went through to the final round, knocking out his first foe in the first round. In the process of the elimination he broke a hand and was unable to box Marty Gornick in the final.

Recently he met Gornick, who had gone far, in a bout on the Ben Jeby-Ted Yarosz card at Duquesne Garden, and, after trailing for four rounds, floored Marty three times in a whirlwind finish in the final round and won the decision. Now he is looking for more worlds to conquer.

LONG, HARD TRAIL

It has been a long, hard trail that the still frail-appearing Barto has traveled since that McKeesport tournament. He had 46 amateur bouts, of which he won 30 with knockouts. He floored Eddie Zivic twice in the first round of a bout at Hickey Park and lost the decision when the officials disagreed and called for an extra round in which Mike became sick from cucumbers he had eaten that afternoon.

Among the men he defeated as an amateur were Johnny Birek and Elmer Wilson. He lost to Johnny Durso and then became a big card up around Farrell, Pa., where he stowed away one district champion after another, scoring 10 knockouts in 11 bouts. He won a tournament at the Twenty-seventh Ward Club here and a Northwestern Pennsylvania tournament at Farrell, and then went to the final round of an international tournament in Boston, where he lost to Nate Bor, who made the 1932 Olympic team. The day after this tournament he defeated Elmer Wilson at Motor Square Garden, where, as a professional, he later scored a technical knockout over the hard-hitting Negro.

TURNS PROFESSIONAL

Along about this time he decided to quit fighting and confine himself to his job, but his brother wouldn't have it, and, in February of last year, induced him to turn professional under the management of Bunny Buntach. Bouts came few and far between at the start, and he has had only nine professional battles all told, of which he lost only the first one, to Durso, whom he later defeated. He has scored five knockouts, over Charley Blozevich, Elmer Wilson, Billy McCale, Kid Murphy and Birek, and won decisions over Birek and Gornick, in addition to Durso. He is only 21 years old.

The remarkable thing about Barto's success is the fact that he seldom is able to work out properly. He has no big sparring partners who can take his punches and does most of his sparring with his brother. Right now he wants to box Dominic Mancini and then go on to bigger game. One of the fellows he has his mind fighting is Tony Herrera, whom he has seen box several times and thinks he can defeat. He is a modest, soft-spoken youth, but confidence personified insofar as his fighting is concerned. Of his bout with Gornick, he says:

"I purposely laid back and fought a counter fight in the first four rounds under instructions from my corner. Going up for the last round I was told to cut loose, and I did. I find that any time I shoot the works I hurt the other fellow."

NATURAL SOUTHPAW

Mike adds that he can fight as a righthander successfully against slow-moving opponents, but finds he is at his best against all types boxing as a southpaw and he intends to keep fighting that way.

Charleston Dogs Win in Trials

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 30.—(AP.)—Blondie Willing, a pointer, owned by Curtis R. Dawley, of Charleston, won first prize in the puppy stakes of the seventh annual West Virginia Field Trials Association held yesterday.

Second prize went to Sonny Boy, owned by A. M. Hill, of Charleston. Flaming Gold, another Dawley entry, took third prize. The junior all-age event was captured by Hawk Specter Image, a setter, owned by D. H. Webb, of St. Marys.

DUKES' STAR IN RACE

The George Tenney who is a candidate for the Legislature from the Third District is none other than the baseball outfielder of the Duquesne University teams of 1922, '23 and '24, who later played on the local sandlots, being known as Neat Tenney.

Homestead Grays Lose to Pirates

SPRINGFIELD, O., April 30.—(AP.)—Apparently recovered from stage fright, the Springfield Pirates of the Mid-Atlantic League defeated the Homestead Grays, 4-3, here yesterday to break even in an exhibition series.

Frank Madure, rookie second baseman from Chicago, hit a homer in the seventh. The Pirates will play Ohio State in an exhibition here Wednesday. The score by innings:

Homestead ...	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	1	0	3	7	2
Springfield ...	0	0	2	0	0	1	1	0	*	4	7	2

HANNON RACE VICTOR

POTTSVILLE, April 30.—(AP.)—Driving a Miller special, Johnny Hannon, of Conshohocken, yesterday captured the feature 15-mile automobile race on the Pottsville half-mile dirt track in 15 minutes 9 2-5 seconds.

DENTISTS PLAY TODAY

The Pennsylvania Dental Association is holding a tourney at the Edgewood Country Club today. About 100 players are expected to tee off for the various prizes.

GARDEN'S SALE LIKELY TO BE MADE TODAY

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Col. John S. Hammond, a gentleman with silvery hair and golden backing, has until 2 o'clock this afternoon to take up an option on the controlling interest in Madison Square Garden. That's one of the things that will be decided down in Wall street today during an important business meeting, the exact nature of which I do not know. However, the average business meeting down there nowadays extends certain assurances to the individual. No matter what happens, one can always comfort himself with the feeling that he has been pushed around by aristocrats.

Among other things supposed to be passed upon is the proposed hurling of James J. Johnston and Col. John R. Kilpatrick out upon their countenances and the establishing of a new set up for the Baer-Carnera fight, although this is strictly surmise.

So is the story that George Blake, Jimmy Bronson, Jack Curley and Tom McArdle are being considered as the New Deal's candidate for boxing promoter.

This is a transaction involving the immediate payment of $800,000 and I dont' think anybody is impressed right now with the importance of hiring or firing an employe who makes $15,000 a year.

GRIMM RATES BUCS HIGH

Stephensen are both out with injuries, but we have such a fine outfield in Klein, Cuyler and Babe Herman that we are able to go along. Our pitchers have been coming through and Leo Hartnett seems to be set for another big season behind the plate."

BUCS WIN SUNDAY GAME

Pirate fans and players today were happy over the inauguration of Sunday baseball, the event of yesterday being a big topic of comment in the camp of the Pittsburg club as well as among the rooters. The Buccaneer victory over the Cincinnati Reds in the inaugural made the day a perfect one, especially when the ideal weather is considered. About 20,000 fans saw the epochal contest.

The holiday throng was thrilled by the home-run harvest that developed in the first Sunday attraction. No less than four fourbaggers were driven out of the park. Gus Suhr and Paul Waner smacked the rocket into the right-field stands to aid the Pirate cause, while Ivy Shiver and Syl Johnson hit homers for the visitors. These blows carried over the leftfield wall.

Red Lucas made his Pirate debut and finished the game, although he was in much trouble on account of bad pitches. Shaute started for the Reds, but made way for Syl Johnson in the fourth. Dazzy Vance worked one inning against the Buccos.

Gus Suhr was the hero of the big event. Suhr cracked out a homer, a triple and a single, his bat driving in four of the Pirates' nine runs.

Chillysauce

One of Scout Bill Hinchman's three fine sons will be married soon. The nappy young man is well known to the sports-loving public of Pittsburgh, for Lewis George Hinchman, as captain of the Ohio State football team, played a big part in trimming the Panthers at Columbus in 1930.

The gridiron star will wed Miss Emily Jane Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Adrian Kelly, of Columbus, the marriage to take place at Sacred Heart Church, of Columbus, in June. The father of the bride-to-be is a prominent banker of the Ohio city. Lewis is a member of the Phi Gamma Beta fraternity.

There is only one fly in the ointment so far as the groom's father is concerned. They are talking seriously of getting Scout Bill into one of those trick morning suits —you know the kind where the pants don't match the coat. Well, so far they have not been able to convince Bill that he would feel comfortable in one of these makeups. A compromise probably will be effected in time to have the wedding run off smoothly.

Red Lucas was not altogether satisfied with his maiden effort in Pirate regalia. The Nashville hurler had quite a lot of stuff and was close to his old self, but one or two things happened which were not according to Hoyle. He said:

One of these was that "alley" ball to Sylvester Johnson, which the pitcher smacked into the playground sector of Schenley Park.

The size of the throng was a bit disappointing to Pirate officials, but the gathering was very enthusiastic. Any shortage of customers doubtless was due to the fact that many a baseball lover does not have the wherewithal to pass through the turnstiles.

Cookie Lavagetto could not hit one for the holiday throng, but the Italian kid played a fine game around second. Cookie has captured the imagination of Pittsburgh fans, the latter particularly being wild over the youngster. Lavagetto was almost mobbed by boys around the Pirate dugout after the game was over.

The Pittsburgh players were all glad to see Gus Suhr have such a field day. Gus is ever in a good humor and he is a great teamworker. He has only to hit well to be an outstanding performer, for he is a keen baserunner and his fielding is hard to match.

RIDER SETS MARK

READING, April 30.—(AP.)—Lewis Balinski, Kalamazoo, Mich., established a new record for three miles yesterday to defeat Joe Petrali, national champion, in the feature event of the Reading Motorcycle Club's annual spring congress on the Reading Fair track. Balinski's time, 3:01 2-5, eclipses the former mark of 3:07 hung up by Petrali at Reading two years ago.

WATER POLOISTS CLASH

The Allegheny Mountain Association water polo championships are to be staged in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association pool Saturday night. An added feature will be an attempt by the girls' team of the Homestead Carnegie Library to break the world 400-yard relay record.

PLAYERS RELEASED

WILLIAMSPORT, April 30.—(AP.)—Manager Mike McNally has chopped the Williamsport Grays' roster to 16 by releasing Pitcher Lou Hepp and Catcher Larry Cicero, a younger brother of Joe Cicero, center fielder on the New York-Pennsylvania League team.

To the Sports Editor. I read how that doctor brought a dog to life in Berkeley, Cal. Well, maybe it was that California climate they talk about and which those of us who train out there know so well. Kidding aside, it'll take a long time to get used to that sort of thing except when it is used to revive victims of accidents.

There's a lot Honus Wagner of ball players who will be carting their pitching arms and batting eyes out to Berkeley.

You can't stop progress and scientific gents. Maybe they can bring back the Reds of 1869, who never lost a game.

BAER ARRIVES IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—Max Baer, arrived today from California to begin training for his heavyweight title bout with champion Primo Canero, June 14.

Grinning and affable, Baer alighted from a Chicago train to receive an affectionate embrace from his father, Jacob. Alongside his father and his brother, Buddy, who sparred with him on an exibition tour, the heavyweight challenger did not appear as large as he does in the ring. Both outweigh him some 50 pounds and tower inches above him.

Bear's training plans are not yet complete, but he probably will set up a camp at Atlantic City, where he prepared last year for his bout against Max Schmeling, the fight which put him

PITTSBURGH DISTRICT BUSINESS, FINANCE AND INDUSTRY

PROGRESS MADE IN EXPANDING BUSINESS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, April 30.—The actual experience of the first third of the year emphasizes the substantial progress that has been made in the last year in expanding the gross volume of business and employment.

Mr. Rukeyser

On the basis of the objective showing, confidence would be unbridled were it not for the synthetic aspects of the recovery. Business men, in seeking to make a fundamental appraisal, recognize that much of the progress was made on the initiative of the federal government, rather than of private business. The government in the emergency entered many new activities. The new problem is whether private business can expand rapidly enough to absorb the men released from public payrolls when the federal government demobilizes its civil army.

If, as President Roosevelt desires, the federal budget, ordinary and extraordinary, is to be balanced after the next fiscal year, private spending must be substituted for public spending to a large degree.

If the transition is to be successful, the government must shift its emphasis and concentrate on fostering business.

BUSINESS ON ITS OWN

As the guaranty survey, which expressed the views of William C. Potter, sagacious president of the Guaranty Trust Company, puts it: "Business must be placed in a position to generate its own recovery, if prosperity is to be restored and sustained." This spokesman for established business emphasizes the necessity for achieving "the solid foundation of the earning power of capital and the productive capacity of labor."

In case President Roosevelt's budgetry hopes are not fulfilled, there will, of course, be a survival of bureaucracy and state socialism, with their concomitants of heavy taxes and possible uncontrolled inflation.

Meantime, statistical indicators of industrial production continue to show a favorable trend. Steel and automobile output and electric power production continue favorable. The weakness in commodity prices was associated with ebbing hopes of silver inflation.

While the inexpert agitate for new forms of inflation, the Federal Reserve System is concerned with controlling the potential elements for inflation already in existence, primarily in the form of unprecedentedly large excess reserves of member banks. Alluding to this subject in the April bulletin, the Federal Reserve Board said:

"There would, therefore, still remain a surplus of reserves, and the question might arise as to how to prevent their use in producing speculative inflations."

LEGISLATURE HELPS

The New York Legislature has contributed to a restoration of the old order by legalizing drinking on one's feet while at public bars. The earlier rule requiring that all drinkers be sitters has been repealed. Thus, the former vested rights of an ancient, if not honorable, industry have been recreated. The incident is a symbol to remind business men that reforms, like speculation, have their bull and their bear periods.

The publication of the lists of silver speculators is symptomatic of the tendency to narrow the area of privacy in the United States.

We seem to be rushing headlong into a situation in which there will be no legitimate secrets.

Possibly this means that the millenium is just around the corner.

Arbitrary changes in wages and hours under the codes have stimulated anew the search for labor-saving machinery. This may give the needed stimulus to the depressed durable goods trades.

With the increasing public disposition to scrutinize business profits, there is a growing recognition of the importance of seeking profits through stepping up efficiency.

A spokesman for an equipment company, which addressed its appeal to business men, said:

"Already numerous manufacturers have found that one way to reduce costs is to seek profitable changes in their own manufacturing processes and equipment. That the right kind of changes pay is proved in hundreds of cases.

"Most worthwhile opportunities, however, are not obvious. They must be sought!"

As the psychology of recovery spreads, the idea catches hold that standing pat may be an unforgiveable extravagance!

Receivers Asked For Laclede Gas

ST. LOUIS, April 30.—A petition has been filed in Federal Court here by Joseph W. Zeller, of New York, asking for appointment of a receiver for the Leclede Gas Light Company. He states he is the owner of four of the company's $1,000 refunding and extension mortgage bonds, which matured April 1, last, but were not redeemed by the company.

CRITICAL LEVEL REACHED BY MARKET

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, April 30.—The stock market sagged a couple of points last week, and bonds also drifted lower.

The averages are now down two or three points from the April high, and have lost about half the creeping advance from the March bottom.

The present level is about at the bottom of the first dip two weeks ago after the early April rise. This is down to the level attained on the jump last January, when the dollar was "revalued" and the huge spending campaign announced.

Thus the market retains little of the stimulus given by those expedients. It is saying that government spending merely takes the place of normal business, and is offset by government debt. It is saying that "devaluing" the dollar is ineffective as long as no real standard is available through convertability of dollars into gold.

Chartwise, and judging by market action, this is a critical level. The averages are right down to the lower resistance level which must be held if the upward trend since March is to be maintained.

The action of the market during the next few days will, therefore, be watched closely, and further weakness here will suggest a retreat to the March low, which is two or three points down.

WATCH MARKET ACTION

I can get no clear feel of the thing. On the bull side one finds no volume or heavy pressure on the declines. There has been nothing that one could call a "buying climax." Furthermore, the bond averages have held well in the last two days. A good many new highs are recorded by individual stocks.

On the bear side, we find a persistent sagging in the majority of stocks traded in. There has also been a suspicious tendency for the volume to pick up on declines and fall off on advances. And for a whole week now, the 20 most active stocks from day to day have shown no net gains.

One should note that the motor stocks were among the most active last week and that they lost ground. These stocks, and the steel issues, which are largely depended on the motor business, have been the backbone of the rise insofar as it has depended upon the business outlook. The weakness in the steeel-motor issues is therefore important, and the indications of a letdown in automobile buying are to be noted carefully.

FEARS, HOPES REMAIN

But inflationary fears and hopes remain. In one way or another, we are going to have inflation, and many people who have bought stocks as a hedge will hold them through the reactions.

In fact, dips such as are likely to occur do not seem to be of much importance in the case of sound stock bought as an anti-inflation protective. The cheaper the good stocks which would benefit by inflation, the better the buying opportunities.

The issues which have shown earning power throughout the depression, and which would not be hurt by inflation, are O. K. If more inflation comes, they will rise; if not, they will pay out as ordinary good investments.

So, while the action of the market and the business outlook suggest increased caution in making trading commitments at this point, and mere speculators may well take a side-line position, a hedge position in carefully selected issues of the less speculative sort looks good. I would merely reserve buying power for a time in view of the possibility that any reaction here may enable one to add to holdings on more advantageous terms.

Exchange Tightens Bond Trading Rule

NEW YORK, April 30.—In line with its policy of restricting activities of specialists in stocks and bonds, the New York Stock Exchange has adopted a rule prohibiting transmission from the floor of names of firms bidding or offering bonds. Several months ago, the exchange adopted rules prohibiting specialist members from divulging information concerning the order books on various stocks.

Purchasing Power of Silver Compared With Farm Products

By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Review of Reviews

This chart affords a comparison between the purchasing power of silver and of farm products. In each case the price is taken and divided by the general price level (the index of wholesale prices of the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics) in order to determine the change in the relative buying power of silver and farm products. Both have been the objects of continuing and substantial attention by Congress—silver, partly because it was felt to be the means of raising the general price level, and farm commodities because they determine the welfare of a very substantial part of our population.

In the case of silver, the interest was only partly on account of the silver producers themselves; in the case of farm commodities, the interest of course was entirely on behalf of the producers themselves. The present weakness of these commodities is generally attributed by observers to the strong stand against further inflationary measures by the President.

The silver and farm groups had effected an agreement to push legislation which would help both silver and the farmers. This combination it was felt was so powerful that not even the President could resist it. Whether he is a good enough salesman to persuade the silverites and the farmers to await the further effect of the government's present monetary policies remains to be seen.

Bond Prices Reflect Securities Act

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

IS THE SECURITIES act really preventing the flow of capital into industry, or have investment bankers been exaggerating the effects of the new law? Some interesting information on this question is becoming available.

When the act was passed, a year ago, the investment bankers insisted that its provisions were so severe that new financing would be almost impossible. They declared that the indefinite liability provisions of the act made directors of corporations as well as members of their profession unwilling to take the risk of floating new issues.

They pointed to the fact that the amount of financing being done was negligible and asserted that this proved their contention.

The sponsors of the legislation asserted that little financing had been done in the year previous to the passage of the act and attributed the lack of financing to the poverty of investors and the general condition of the bond market.

* * *

Bond Prices Hit New High

WITHIN THE PAST few months, however, a situation has developed which constitutes evidence that there is a real obstacle to the flow of capital into industry and that it is not the condition of the bond market.

Prices of high-grade bonds have soared to the highest level since 1902. According to Moody's the average yield on 30 high-grade bonds has dropped to 4.05 per cent from 4.43 per cent in January and 5.75 per cent two years ago. Not in 32 years have bonds rated AAA so sold at prices to yield so little.

This appears to be a definite indication that there are plenty of buyers for good bonds. It indicates that there is a real shortage of bonds.

It would be natural for corporations to take advantage of this situation to secure new capital to pay off bank loans, to improve working capital or to improve plant facilities. Even if no new facilities happened to be needed and working capital happened to be adequate, they would take advantage of the situation to sell new bonds bearing low interest rates to retire old bonds issues on which they were paying higher rates.

Little of this has been done. In fact, corporations with maturing bonds have been compelled to secure the co-operation of the holders to agree to refinancing plans and extensions instead of merely selling new bonds to pay off the old obligations.

Accumulated Demand Reaches Big Total

THE NATIONAL INDUSTRIAL Conference Board has made a survey of the accumulated demand for new investment capital. It places the total accumulation of the past three years at four and a half billion dollars needed for producing and operating facilities.

From the all-time peak of 9.4 billion dollars in 1929, the total of new capital and refunding issues for domestic corporations floated in the American investment market dropped to 380 million dollars in 1933. Of the 1933 total, only 161 million dollars went into new capital issues, the balance being absorbed by refundings. New capital invested in a single month in any of the years from 1924 to 1929 was in excses of the value of new issues floated during the entire 12 months of 1933. Moreover, of the 161 million dollars of new capital issues in 1933, 83 million dollars was taken by the liquor and allied industries, revived by the repeal of prohibition. Thus, less than 80 million dollars was available for the extension of industrial and commercial enterprises in all other fields of activity.

The critical situation in the capital market in 1933 was foreshadowed by the behavior of refundings of maturing debt early in 1932, when for the first time on record the volume of refundings of matured indebtedness was in excess of the volume of new debt contracted. In April, 1932, new money raised by the flotation of stocks and bonds aggregated $15,070,000, while borrowings for refunding purposes reached a total of $33,124,000. This condition reasserted itself in five of the eight subsequent months of 1932 and in six months of 1933.

U. S. Stabilization Fund Position Switched

WASHINGTON April 30.—(AP.)—The Treasury formally created a $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund today, apparently depositing $200,000,000 with the Federal Reserve System for active use and holding the remaining $1,800,000,000 in reserve.

To accomplish the transaction of officially setting up the fund appropriated by Congress for guiding the dollar's course, the entire $2,000,000,000 was carried as expended on April 27.

Previously the $2,810,000,000 of profit on devaluation had been designated in the Treasury statement simply as "increment resulting from reduction in the weight of the gold dollar."

Treasury officials refused to discuss the step and said the daily statement must speak for itself. There was no indication whether the $200,000,000 given the Reserve System had been used.

What happened on the statement was this: A $1,800,000,000 "exchange stabilization fund" was entered as a liability against the gold stock of $7,755,670,740. Simultaneously the gold certificate fund of the Federal Reserve Board jumped $101,000,000.

This was interpreted by experts as indicating a Treasury deposit of this amount out of the stabilization fund. It was believed the other $99,000,000 previously was deposited in the same way. For some weeks the Treasury has been depositing with the Reserve banks more gold in the form of certificates than was received in actual metal.

The Treasury's gold assets were reported on April 27 at $7,755,670,740, an increase of $754,000,000 since devaluation on January 31.

Against this stock were carried as liabilities $4,779,398,089 of gold certificates, $156,039,088 of gold reserve against outstanding United States notes and treasury notes of 1890, $1,800,000,000 in "exchange stabilization fund" and $1,020,233,562 of gold in the treasury's general fund.

On April 26, before the stabilization fund appeared as a separate liability, gold in the general fund was reported at $2,921,398,272.67.

Since devaluation the gold profit has steadily increased as more hoarded gold came to the Treasury.

COPPER QUIET, TIN LOWER

NEW YORK, April 30.—The copper code, which became effective April 26, was marked by the fixing of a price of 8½ cents for so-called "blue eagle" copper eligible for sale under the code. Some improvement in orders through July was noted prior to adoption of the code. But business thereafter was spotty. A new development was the offering of "outside" copper at as low as 8.20 cents. This metal was described as copper derived as a by-product from other metals, and scrap in excess of quotas, largely for export purposes. Domestic fabricators hesitated to take such offerings because of its ineligibility for sale in finished products to any government project.

Tin lost slightly more than one cent per pound for the week in sympathy with declines at London.

Lead held steady with a good day-to-day business reported for April and May shipment. Battery manufacturers were among the outstanding buyers as a result of active demand for their product for new automobiles being produced.

Zinc became steadier, as pressure to sell from some sources failed to become general and steadiness of the ore market aided the tone of the metal.

BOND DEALERS PLAN SPRING MEETING

NEW YORK, April 30.—The regular spring meeting of the board of governors of the Investment Bankers' Association of America will be at White Sulphur Springs May 19 to 23, inclusive, Robert E. Christie, Jr., president of the association, announced today. In issuing the call for the meeting Mr. Christie asked the chairman of the association's 20 standing committees to hold committee meetings at White Sulphur Springs in conjunction with the board of governors' session. He said:

"The Investment Bankers' code has injected a new significance into the activities of all the committees of the association. It will be highly constructive to bring these committees together, in the light of the provisions of the code."

The association's committees have a total membership of 248, representing investment banking organizations in all sections of the United States and Canada. The board of governors numbers 39 and also is nationally representative of both countries.

Mr. Christie said that he also expected to see a large representation of past governors of the association at the spring meeting, which is customarily open only to members of the board, to past governors and to members of committees that are asked to hold meetings at the time of the board's sessions. The first two days of the five-day meeting will be devoted entirely to discussions in committees.

In his call for the meeting Mr. Christie said:

"I feel that the association and the investment bankng busness are on the threshold of a new perod which I hope will bring better things to this business."

Spring Maker Has Rail Order Share

The American Spiral Spring and Manufacturing Company of Pittsburgh has shared heavily in the orders for springs required for a portion of the 7,000 all-steel freight cars of different types the Pennsylvania Railroad is building. The construction of these cars is being financed by the Public Works Administration. As a result, 6,872 man-hours of labor has been created since March 5, by the fabricating of the springs covered by the contract.

I. B. A. Board Sets Spring Meet Date

NEW YORK, April 30.—The board of governors of the Investment Bankers Association of America will hold its annual spring meeting at White Sulphur Springs May 19 to 23 inclusive, President Robert E. Christie, Jr., announces. Chairmen of the association's 20 standing committees have been asked to hold committee meetings at the same place simultaneously.

Wants U. S. Cotton Held for 15 Cents

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Senator Smith, South Carolina, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, has prepared bills providing that the government retain its holdings of cotton until August, 1935, or until the price reaches 15 cents per pound, and authorizing the Census Bureau to make a count of all cotton which is not of a commercial grade.

Factory Payrolls Higher in March

NEW YORK, April 30.—Factory payrolls in March surpassed the previous months by 8.5 per cent and were 105 per cent higher than March, 1933, it was reported by the National Industrial Conference Board. The survey also disclosed an employment increase during March of 4.8 per cent over February.

U. S. Pipe Books Big Miami Order

NEW YORK, April 30. — The United States Pipe and Foundry Company is credited with having booked a total of 10,000 tons of cast iron pipe in the past few days. The orders include about 8,000 tons of pipe and fittings for Miami, Fla.

COMPANY SHOWS INCREASE

The statement of condition of the Manufacturers Casualty Company for the first quarter of 1934 is noteworthy evidence of business revival.

This company, one of the strongest in the casualty field, specializing in preferred risks for automobile insurance, not only reports a substantial gain in surplus, but also a corresponding increase in new business as compared with the same period of last year.

The statement for the period ending March 31, 1934, shows a surplus for protection of policyholders of $2,556,385, which is an increase of $337,815 over the surplus on December, 1933, even after setting aside a special reserve of $250,000. Still further evidence of the return of public confidence is reflected in the actual volume of new business written during this same period, the net premiums for the three months showing an increase of 49 per cent as compared with the same quarter of 1933.

Pennroad Trustees Deny Suit Charges

WILMINGTON, April 30.—Effingham B. Morris, William M. Potts and Joseph Wayne, Jr., voting trustees of the Pennroad Corporation, have filed answer in Chancery Court to the accounting suit filed against them, the corporation and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, denying that they, or the corporation, have been under domination and control of the railroad.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, April 30.—The market was due 1⅛ to 1⅜c higher, opened unchanged to ⅛c up and at 12:15 p. m. was up ⅛c.

The market closed unchanged to ¼ pence lower, based on sterling at 5.13¾.

AVOID THE NUISANCE OF BLOWN FUSES
Fuses have a way of blowing at the most awkward times. Then, there's either a wait for the service man or a trip to the basement and a search in the dark for the blown fuse. The Westinghouse NOFUZE Load Center eliminates all this inconvenience. Restoring service is just as simple as flipping an ordinary wall switch. A post card will bring you complete information.

HEALTH glows in the sun-tanned hue that nature gives at sea-side resorts... or that electricity gives indoors under the rays of these Westinghouse ultra-violet lamps. Denied the sunshine vitamin, often filtered out of ordinary sunlight by window glass or murky city atmosphere, children develop weakness of bone, impoverished blood, susceptibility to colds. Trade Now Looking to Congress

By B. C. FORBES

MEN OF AFFAIRS who help to make the wheels go round—and to fill pay envelopes—hesitate to go ahead aggressively until Congress reveals its attitude towards business.

Mr. Forbes

The prevailing hesitancy in influential quarters was plainly revealed last week by the daily sagging tendency in stock prices, by irregular weakness in commodities and raw materials, by fewer decisions to increase dividends immediately, by public warnings from important sources that Washington must co-operate with business industry and finance if recovery is to be expedited.

SPECIFICALLY, the demands made are:

That the securities act, which is strangling capital-raising by established enterprises, be substantially modified promptly by Congress.

That the so-called stock exchange regulation bill, which would greatly increase bureaucratic domination over corporations, be amended.

That Congress exhibit a disposition to keep down public expenditures in order that it may be possible for individuals and corporations to meet the gigantic bill to be faced.

That President Roosevelt, NRA, AAA, and other powers-that-be at Washington exhibit less readiness to introduce fresh experiments and greater consolidation for inspiring confidence among those upon whom the responsibility of mitigating unemployment must finally rest.

SOME ENCOURAGEMENT has been derived from an apparent tendency by NRA to allow different lines of business reasonable freedom to effect self-regulation. The truth is that various industries are deriving distinct benefits from code provisions banning ruinous price cutting and other flagrant trade evils. If ways and means acceptable alike to consumers, and to Washington, can be evolved to maintain prices adequate to meet higher wages, shorter hours, heavy taxes and rational dividends, America's whole economic picture would brighten impressively.

There is growing hope rather than confidence that this great objective, will, somehow, be obtained.

LATE LABOR DEVELOPMENTS have been reassuring, on the whole. Rumblings of trouble in the automotive country continue, but employers are sanguine that neither Washington, nor the American Federation of Labor will render satisfactory settlements impossible.

The compromise reached on rail wages, gradually restoring the 1932 ten per cent cut, is well received.

PRICE ADVANCES by manufacturers and retailers have excited more or less complaint, but, thus far, buying has not been materially discouraged. Latest trade statistics are reasonably encouraging.

The purchasing power of our agricultural population, thanks partly to governmental bounties and other largess expected to exceed a billion dollars this year, has been somewhat expanded. It remains to be seen, however, whether agricultural prices will keep pace with the rise in non-agricultural prices now being caused by various codes.

AUTOMOBILE SALES are running high. Electric power consumption has reached a new peak for the year. Railway traffic is not only almost 19 per cent above last year, but appreciably above two years ago. Steel operations are mounting—as are steel prices. Despite all restrictions imposed by many countries, our foreign trade shows real improvement over a year ago. Our banks are carrying the record-breaking total of $1,675,000,000 of excess reserves. Interest rates available in Wall street are so extremely low—1 per cent or less—that bankers find themselves under stronger and stronger pressure to find employment for their idle funds. This accounts for the advance in government bonds, and, recently, in many other bonds.

Bankers declare that there is still an acute scarcity of acceptable commercial borrowers.

STOCKS SLIDE IN ERRATIC TRADING

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP.)—Nervous and erratic price movements characterized trading in the stock market today and the trend generally pointed downward.

Mild irregularity and dullness was the rule in the first hour or so. Then there was a rather sharp selling flurry which dropped quotations in most categories 1 to 2 or more points. The ticker tape got behind floor transactions for several minutes. The relapse was comparatively brief, however, and liquidation dried up as some rallying tendencies appeared.

There was little news of an emphatic nature, and the majority of transactions were attributed to the so-called professionals. Rubber was a strong spot in the commodity structure, but silver sagged. Wheat responded to further crop damage reports with the gain of a cent or more a bushel, but yielded part of this later. Other grains and cotton were hesitant. Bonds were mixed. A number of prime investment loans improved, but the secondary groups were reactionary. International dollar rates were narrow.

Shares of Firestone, Goodyear, Goodrich and United States Rubber were up fractions to about a point at one time, although they subsequently relinquished the greater part of their advance. The utilities held relatively steady, as did the alcohols.

Rubber futures got up a cent or more a pound on overnight word from London of the signing of an international five-year agreement for the control of exports and production. Stocks of the rubber companies and tiremakers, however, were not especially strong at any time. Corporations with large inventories, of course, made the best showing, but opinions varied as to earnings under higher prices for raw material and the possibility that consumer resistance might enter into the picture.

Most market commentators, while taking an optimistic long-term view of equities, believed that, because of the open debate in Congress on the stock exchange control bill, complications surrounding various labor controversies, and indications that some industries will soon begin to show a seasonal lag, development of any important buying psychology is not likely at the moment.

Analysts continued to emphasize the selectivity of the market, as a whole. It was reiterated that "just now it is not a stock market, but a market for stocks."

COTTON PRICES HOLD STEADY

NEW YORK, April 30.—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 4 higher with trading quiet as operators generally awaited developments. May, 11.01c; July, 11.11c; October, 11.25c; December, 11.39c; January, 11.47c; March, 11.57c.

Orders were fairly well divided at the start with some selling of near months and buying of distant positions, but offerings increased slightly after the call and July worked off to 11.09 or about 2 points net lower.

Rallies in the wheat market helped to steady cotton during the middle of the morning and active months worked about 4 to 8 points net higher on covering and scattering demand.

The failure of wheat to fully hold its early rally and an easier turn in the stock market were contributing factors on the decline which carried July off to 11.02. The general market was about 7 to 10 points net lower at midday.

LIVERPOOL, April 30.—Cotton, 11,000 bales including 700 American. Spot moderate business done; prices one point higher; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 6.56; good middling, 6.26; strict middling, 6.11; middling, 5.96; strict low middling, 5.81; low middling, 5.56; strict good ordinary, 5.36; good ordinary, 5.06. Futures closed quiet. May, 5.69; July, 5.71; October, 5.65; December, 5.63; January, 5.63; March, 5.64.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

GEORGE HEARST, National Commander — LAWRENCE SHAW, National Director

By J. JAMES MOORE
Pittsburgh Wing Commander

Greetings, members! Today is the last chance to mail in your entries for the Junior Birdmen national motto contest! All letters bearing mottoes must be in the postoffice and postmarked by 12 o'clock midnight, tonight. That still gives you several hours to think up some good ones and get them in. And who knows but what you will be one of the lucky members to have your motto chosen and win one of the four train trips to Washington to be given by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Wing.

Then, too, you may be the winner of the grand prize, the 10-day coast-to-coast trip in a luxurious Pullman car. The thrilling transcontinental trip will certainly be one worth getting and telling your friends about if you are the lucky boy or girl to supply the Junior Birdmen with its official national mottoes. It will be one of the finest trips in the world. You only have a few hours remaining before the deadline for sending in your mottoes.

Get Busy Right Now

So get busy right now and send your mottoes in before tonight. If you are not a member, clip the coupon below, fill it out, enclose 10 cents for your wings and membership card and include your mottoes with the application. All members of the Junior Birdmen and all applicants for membership are eligible to compete. And, believe me, just about all members and hundreds of applicants for membership have taken that advantage.

In accordance with our rules, the two winning mottoes sent in by group "A" members and the two winning mottoes from group "B" members, will be announced in this column on Sunday. I will also publish, in Sunday's column, the names of the members of the committee who have been selected to judge the entries sent in by all the Junior Birdmen wings from which they will pick the grand prize winner and the motto which will thereafter be the official slogan of the J. B.

Here is a dandy chance for you to win both a trip to the nation's capitol and a train trip across the country and back with a day at the Chicago Century of Progress and two days in San Francisco as the guest of our local Junior Birdmen wing commanders. Tonight is you last opportunity to compete for these fine awards. Don't let this chance slip through your hands. Certainly you can think of several good mottoes. Get busy these last few hours and do your part!

Air Dictionary Number 4

I have received letters from hundreds of members commenting on our fine Junior Birdmen dictionary. I am glad to know that this is the type of feature that you boys and girls are looking for.

Here are today's 10 definitions for your aviation dictionary:

Airline—A system of passenger or freight planes flying on regular schedule between designated cities such as United Air Lines, Eastern Air Transport, American Airways, etc.

Air-minded—A term used in connection with a person who is interested in aviation and devotes some time to the subject as a hobby or in a more serious light.

Airplane (general)—A mechanically driven aircraft, heavier-than-air, fitted with fixed wings and supported by the dynamic action of the air.

Airplane (canard)—An airplane having the horizontal stabilizer and control surfaces in front of the main wings. In other words, the tail unit is in the front of the craft rather than in the back. This type of plane is practically obsolete today.

Airplane (pusher)—An airplane with motor and propeller in back of the main supporting wings.

Airplane (tailless)—An airplane in which the devices used to obtain stability and control (such as rudder and horizontal stabilizer) are incorporated in the wing. The craft has no controlling tail unit.

Airplane (tandem)—An airplane with two or more sets of wings of about the same area (not including the tail unit) placed one in front of the other and on about the same level. This does not include a plane with more than one set of wings above each other, which is a biplane or triplane.

Airplane (tractor-pusher)—An airplane with motors and propellers both in front and in back of the main supporting wing.

Airport—A tract of land or water which is adapted for the landing and take-off of aircraft and which provides facilities for their shelter, supply and repair. A place used regularly for receiving or discharging passengers or cargo by air, similar to airfield.

I should like to hear from more of you members about this air dictionary. It is being printed in such a manner that every one of you boys and girls, group "A" members and group "B" members, can understand what is meant. It is probably the easiest and most understandable air dictionary ever published. It will also have the most complete definitions of air terms, phrases and words ever printed. Be sure you keep each list in your scrap book.

Junior Birdmen Model Builder's Course

In tomorrow's column we were to start our model builder's course for beginners. However, due to the change in our plans for the vacation prizes being offered the motto contest winners, in accordance with your own wishes, I know you would like to hear more about the national trip. So, instead of starting our model builders' course tomorrow I will give you what you are looking for most, details of the coast-to-coast trip for the national winner. Our model course will begin in this column, however, in a few days. Be sure you watch for it for you will want to learn to build your own models in time to enter our first Junior Birdmen contest, which will be held in New York, and simultaneously in all Junior Birdmen wing cities, on Saturday, July 7. Complete details of this model meet will be published after we get our flight squadrons under way. We inaugurate our fight squadron plan next Monday, you know, so be sure you keep your eyes peeled for that good news, too, so that you can be one of the first Junior Birdmen to organize your own flight charter.

In the meantime, do keep in mind that today is your last opportunity to get your mottoes in. Don't delay! Be an active Birdmen! It will well be worth your while!

Happy landing!

A Cowl Neck Is Surprisingly Becoming

Pattern 1851

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

Have you ever worn a cowl neckline? It really is astonishingly becoming. You know who originated the first one—do you not? Madame Vionnet, the great French dressmaker—and it is one of the best things that wonderful woman ever sponsored. It is often extremely simple—just look at the sketch—but isn't it chick? And see the stunning way the yoke buttons down the back! Otherwise the dress is quite plain—but so well cut its plainness seems quite Parisian. A blue and white print with white yoke would be lovely—or it may be made entirely of one color.

Pattern 1851 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3¼ yards 39-inch fabric and ½ yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE LATEST EDITION OF OUR PATTERN BOOK features all the best seasonal styles for adults and children. Send for your copy of this interesting, helpful book and be chic. PRICE OF BOOK, 15 CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS.

Address orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

1—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.

Continue Razing Of Slum Dwellings

City officials today prepared to continue the razing of condemned slum dwellings, despite the lack of federal funds to aid in the work. City Council has set aside $3,000 to the slum clearance projects. Although the amount is meager, George E. Evans, superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection, said, it will be sufficient to maintain a gang of laborers for some time. Already 109 dwellings have been torn down, Evans said.

LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS

Complete Dolly's Spring Wardrobe

It's spring and to all of the feminine sex that means new clothes. Is it fair then to leave dolly out? Isn't it time to add a few dresses to her wardrobe so that her mother may be proud to take her along when she goes a-visiting? And probably nothing thrills a little girl more than to have dolly dressed in the same materials used for her own or her mother's clothes. So get out the leavings of those new dresses and let dolly shine in some frocks that are just as stylish as those made for the youngster who owns her. These dresses which come to you with a very cute doll pattern also fit the regulation 14-inch doll.

Pattern 687 contains a pattern for two dresses and a hat as well as a transfer pattern for a 14-inch rag doll; complete directions and yardage requirements for making the doll, the doll's haircomb and clothes.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

Mt. Lebanon Church Gets New Minister

The Rev. Dr. Ames Maywood, successor to the Rev. Dr. Fred Esenwein, will assume the pastorate of the Mt. Lebanon Methodist Episcopal Church tomorrow. Dr. Esenwein goes to the First Methodist Church of Jamestown, N. Y., formerly held by Dr. Maywood.

Dr. Maywood is a graduate of the Boston Theological Seminary.

French Pay Honor To Colonel Thaw

The French government yesterday paid its official respects to the memory of the late Col. William Thaw, wartime commander of the Lafayette Escadrille, when W. G. McKee, French consular agent, placed a floral wreath on the Pittsburgher's grave in Allegheny Cemetery. Col. Thaw died last week.

Shriners Entertain Orphans at Circus

The Shrine circus will open in Syria Mosque at 7 p. m. today with a second performance scheduled for 9 a. m. Shriners will be hosts to 4,000 orphans at the afternoon performance tomorrow. A 32-foot ring has been placed on the stage, across which entertainers and a large number of animals will parade when the curtain rises. When the procession has passed George E. Meyers, ringmaster, will give a signal which will start the circus into motion.

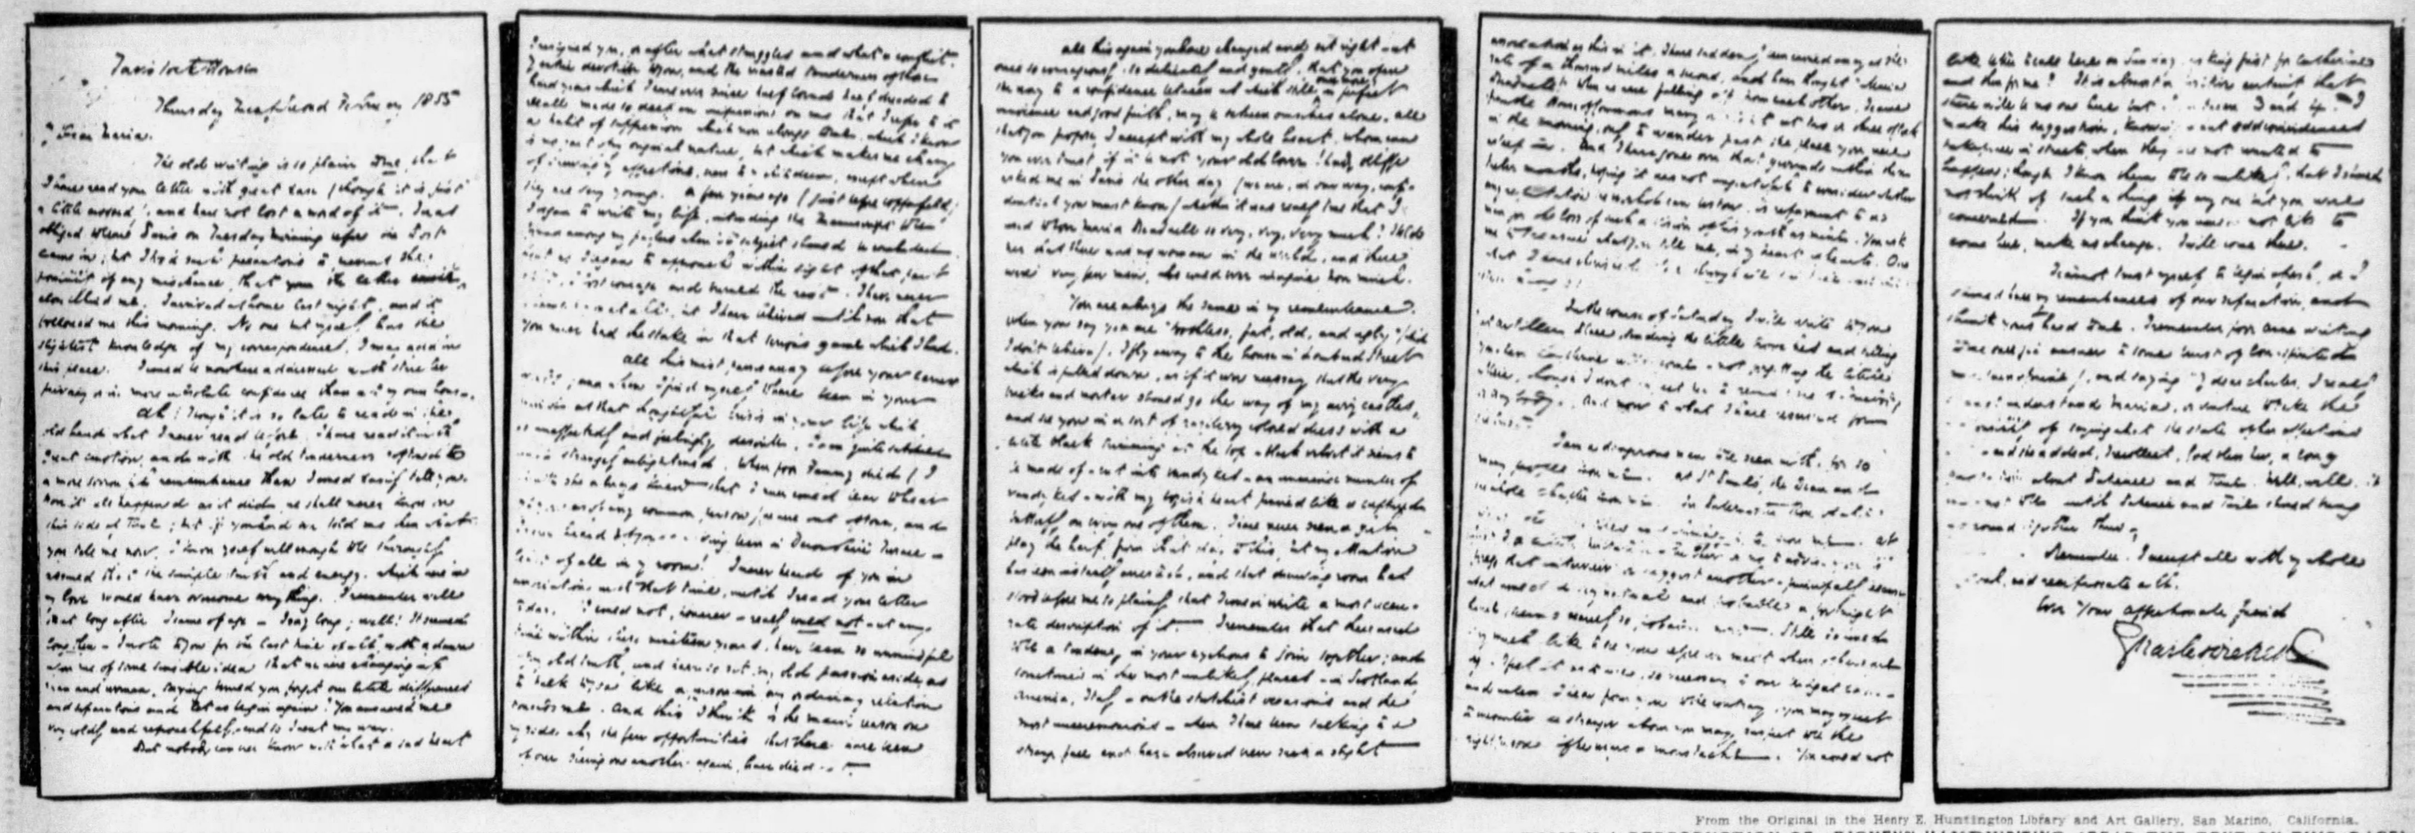
DICKENS WELCOMED PLAN TO MEET MARIA SECRETLY



A LETTER FROM CHARLES DICKENS TO "DEAR MARIA" . . . . . DATED "TAVISTOCK MANOR, THURSDAY, TWENTY-SECOND FEBRUARY, 1855" . . . . THIS IS A REPRODUCTION OF DICKENS' HANDWRITING (READ THE TEXT ON THIS PAGE)

CONVICTED MAN WINS BALLOT

Charles P. Betters, convicted in Federal Court in an election fraud case, was ordered restored to the voting rolls in a decision handed down in Common Pleas Court.

Betters appealed the action of the Pittsburgh Registration Commission in striking his name from the lists, following his conviction. His appeal from the conviction is pending in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

In his petition, filed by Attorney C. J. Margiotti, Betters charged the commission acted illegally in depriving him of the right to vote while his appeal in the criminal action was pending.

Judges Samuel H. Gardner, Elder W. Marshall and Thomas M. Marshall signed today's order reinstating Betters as a voter. They pointed out that the commission had filed no answer and that Betters' charges must be accepted as admitted.

Under the law persons convicted of election frauds are disfranchised for four years. Betters served as an election official in the Ninth district of the Third ward.

Mayor Quotes Bible In Single Tax Talk

Mayor William N. McNair talked about the single tax, supporting his theories by Bible quotations, at a community church service last night in the Knoxville Methodist Episcopal Church. Magistrate Howard B. McNutt, a trustee of the church, presided at the service, in which congregations of the First Methodist Protestant Church, the Knoxville Baptist Church and the Knoxville Presbyterian Church joined.

Start Work Upon New Church Today

Work on the St. Bernard's Catholic Church, Bower Hill and Washington roads, Mt. Lebanon, was to be started today. Plans call for construction of only the lower section of the building, completion of the remainder to be delayed for the present, William R. Perry, architect, said. When completed the church will seat 1,200.

Punchboard Seized In East End Raid

A punchboard and numbers slips were reported seized by police during a raid at 5148 Penn avenue last night. L. J. Melnick, 34, was arrested on a charge of keeping gambling devices and operating a lottery, according to police.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

GILROY, Cal., April 30.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Mrs. Rogers and I driving along from Fresno to San Francisco seeing all the ranches, run in at Willie Tevis' ranch (the champion endurance rider) and there at a barbecue was the Sultan of Jahore, the biggest game hunter of all the Indian royal pack and tremendously popular over there and a regular guy.

Will Rogers

Well, I got to tell you how I talked myself out of seeing his place and stable and horses. He is just out of Singapore. I came in on a boat from Hong Kong, going to take the plane the next morning for London, so was going to drive to his estate that afternoon, but I talked at the Rotary Club luncheon, and did I talk. I must have blathered for hours, bored the whole of Singapore and missed the palace of Jahore. That's one case in history where a long-winded speaker suffered in the long run more than his listeners. Yours, WILL.

'I Am a Dangerous Man to Be Seen With,' Dickens Wrote Maria in Agreeing To Meet Secretly

History records no more ardent, glamorous courtship than that of Charles Dickens, brilliant, but poverty-stricken London youth, and the beautiful Maria Beadnell, daughter of a banker. After three glowing years, Maria discards Dickens. Impulsively he marries Catherine Hogarth, dooming himself to many years of unhappiness. Twenty years after Maria again enters his life and so begins the astounding "Second Interlude" in the dramatic life of Charles Dickens. Receiving Maria's letter, Dickens responded ardently and made a point of providing Maria with a reason to write again. She did. At this time Dickens was forty-four and the father of nine children. Maria had married a staid, commonplace man named Winters and was the mother of two children. Now comes the greatest love letter ever written.

By H. H. HARPER.

CAN any one doubt that the following is one of the greatest love letters of all time! It was sent by Charles Dickens to some secret address Maria Beadnell Winter, his boyhood sweetheart had given him, where he could write freely. It will be noticed, that he says: "In the course of Saturday I will write to you at Artillery Place, sending the little brooches"—the commission she had given him to execute in Paris. Two days later he did write to her at her home, Artillery Place, but THIS letter did NOT go there.

Tavistock House,
Thursday, Twenty-second
February, 1855.

My dear Maria,—

The old writing is so plain to me, that I have read your letter with great ease (though it is just a little crossed,) and have not lost a word of it. I was obliged to leave Paris on Tuesday morning before the Post came in; but I took such precautions to prevent the possibility of any mischance, that the letter came close behind me. I arrived at home last night and it followed me this morning.

No one but myself has the slightest knowledge of my correspondence, I may add, in this place. I would be nowhere addressed with stricter privacy or in more absolute confidence than at my own house.

Ah! Though it is so late to read in the old hand what I never read before, I have read it with great emotion, and with the old tenderness softened to a more sorrowful remembrance than I could easily tell you.

How it all happened as it did, we shall never know on this side of Time; but if you had ever told me then what you tell me now, I know myself well enough to be thoroughly assured that the simple truth and energy which were in my love would have overcome everything.

I remember well that long after I came of age—I say long: well! It seemed long then—I wrote to you for the last time of all, with a dawn upon me of some sensible idea that we were changing into man and woman, saying would you forget our little differences and separations and let us begin again? You answered me very coldly and reproachfully and so I went my way.

But nobody can ever know with what a sad heart I resigned you, or after what struggles and what a conflict. My entire devotion to you, and the wasted tenderness of those hard years which I have ever since half loved, half dreaded to recall, made so deep an impression on me that I refer to it a habit of suppression which now belongs to me, which I know is no part of my original nature, but which makes me chary of showing my affections, even to my children, except when they are very young.

A few years ago (just before Copperfield) I began to write my life, intending the manuscript to be found among my papers when its subject should be concluded. But as I began to approach within sight of that part of it, I lost courage and burned the rest. I have never blamed you at all, but I have believed until now that you never had the stake in that serious game which I had.

All this mist passes away upon your earnest words; and when I find myself to have been in your mind at that thoughtful crisis in your life which you so unaffectedly and feelingly describe, I am quite subdued and strangely enlightened.

When poor Fanny died (I think she always knew that I could never bear to hear of you as of any common person) we were out of town, and I never heard of your having been in Devonshire Terrace—least of all in my room! I never heard of you in association with that time until I read your letter to-day.

I could not, however, really could not at any time within these nineteen years, have been so unmindful of my old truth, and have so set my old passion aside, as to talk to you like a person in any ordinary relation towards me. And this I think is the main reason on my side why the few opportunities that there have been of our seeing one another again have died out.

All this again you have changed and set right—at once so courageously, so delicately and gently, that you open the way to a confidence between us which still once more, in perfect innocence and good faith, may be between ourselves alone. All that you propose, I accept with my whole heart.

Whom can you ever trust if it be not your old lover! Lady Oliffe asked me in Paris the other day (we are, in our way, confidential you must know) whether it was really true that I used to love Maria Beadnell so very, very, very much? I told her that there was no woman in the world, and there were very few men, who could ever imagine how much.

You are always the same in my remembrance. When you say you are "fat, old and ugly" (which I don't believe), I fly away to the house in Lombard Street, which is pulled down, as if it were necessary that the very bricks and mortar should go the way of my airy castles, and see you in a sort of raspbery colored dress with a little black trimming at the top—black velvet it seems to be made of—cut into vandykes—an immense number of vandykes—with my boyish heart pinned like a captured butterfly on every one of them.

I have never seen a girl play the harp, from that day to this, but my attention has been instantly arrested, and that drawing room has stood before me so plainly that I could write a most accurate description of it.

I remember that there used to be a tendency in your eyebrows to join together; and sometimes in the most unlikely places—in Scotland, America, Italy—on the stateliest occasions and the most unceremonious—when I have been talking to a strange face and have observed even such a slight association as this in it, I have suddenly been carried away at the rate of a thousand miles a second, and have thought "Maria Beadnell!"

When we were falling off from each other, I came from the House of Commons many a night at two or three o'clock in the morning, only to wander past the place you were asleep in.

And I have gone over that ground within these twelve months, hoping it was not ungrateful to consider whether any reputation the world can bestow is repayment to a man for the loss of such a vision of his youth as mine.

You ask me to treasure what you tell me, in my heart of hearts. Oh, see what I have treasured there, through all this time and all these changes!

In the course of Saturday I will write to you at Artillery Place, sending the little brooches and telling you when Catherine will come—not forgetting the little niece, though I don't expect her to remind me of Somebody or Anybody. And now to what I have reserved for the last.

I am a dangerous man to be seen with, for so many people know me. At St. Paul's the Dean and the whole Chapter know me. In the Paternoster Row of all places, the very tiles and chimney-pots know me. At first, I a little hesitated whether or no to advise you to forego that interview or suggest another—principally because what would be very natural and probable a fortnight hence, seems scarcely so probable now.

Still I should very much like to see you before we meet when others are by—I feel it, as it were, so necessary to our being at ease—and unless I hear from you to the contrary, you may expect to encounter a stranger whom you may suspect to be the right person if he wears a moustache.

You would not like better to call here on Sunday, asking first for Catherine and then for me? It is almost a positive certainty that there will be no one here but I, between 3 and 4.

I make this suggestion, knowing what odd coincidences take place in streets when they are not wanted to happen;

MARIA BEADNELL AS MRS. HENRY WINTER IN MIDDLE LIFE

'No Man Could Know How Much I Loved You,' Author Wrote His Boyhood Sweetheart, Love Letters Reveal

though I know them to be so unlikely, that I should not think of such a thing if any one but you were concerned. If you think you would not like to come here, make no change, I will come there.

I cannot trust myself to begin afresh, or I should have my remembrances of our separation, and think yours hard to me. I remember poor Anne writing to me once (in answer to some burst of low-spirited madness of mine) and saying, "My dear Charles, I really cannot understand Maria, or venture to take the responsibility of saying what the state of her affection is"—and she added, I recollect, God bless her, a long quotation about Patience and Time, Well, Well! It was not to be until Patience and Time should bring us 'round together thus.

Remember, I accept all with my whole soul, and reciprocate all.

Ever your affectionate friend,
CHARLES DICKENS.

In tomorrow's installment will be revealed the "camouflage letter" that Dickens next wrote to Maria.

REPRINT OF FRIDAY'S INSTALLMENT

YOUNG CHARLES DICKENS was certainly of the opinion that Marianne Leigh, often called Mary Anne, plotted to break up the love affair between himself and Maria Beadnell. Her apparent object was to win Dickens for herself.

And so he wrote Marianne a masterpiece of studied sarcasm. Perhaps it was more cruel than she deserved, but the reader must remember that it was intended for the eyes of Maria, as well as those of Marianne. It read:

Dear Miss Leigh:

I am very happy to avail myself of the opportunity of inclosing your Album (which I regret to say, want of a Moment's time has quite prevented me writing in). To say a very few words relative to an observation made by you the other day to one of the Miss Beadnells I believe—and which has only, I regret to say, just reached my ears quite accidentally.

I should not have noticed it at all were it merely an idle gossiping remark, for one is necessarily compelled to hear so many of them and they are usually so trifling and so ridiculous that it w'd be mere waste of time to notice them in any way.

The remark to which I allude, however, is one which, if it had the slightest foundation in truth—w'd so strongly tend to implicate me as a dishonorable babbler, with little heart and less head, that in justice to myself I cannot refrain from adverting to it.

You will at once perceive I allude to your giving them to understand (if not directly, by implication) that I had made you my confidante, with respect to anything which (may) have passed between Maria B. and myself. Now passing over any remark which may have been artfully elicited from me in any unguarded moment, I can safely say that I never made a confidante of any one.

I am perfectly willing to admit that if I had wished to secure a confidante in whom candour, secrecy and kind honorable feeling were indispensable requisites I could have looked to no one better calculated for this office than yourself; but still the making you the depositary of my feelings or secrets, is an honor I never presumed to expect, and one which I certainly must beg most positively to decline—a proof of self-denial in which so far as I learn from other avowed confidantes of yours, I am by no means singular.

I have not hesitated to speak plainly because I feel most strongly on this subject. The allegation—if it were not grossly untrue—I again say tending so materially to inculpate me, and the assertion itself having been made (so far as I can learn at least, for it has reached me in a very circuitous manner) certainly not in the most unaffected or delicate way.

I hope you will understand that in troubling you, I am not actuated by any absurd idea of self-consequence. I am perfectly aware of my own unimportance, and it is solely because I am so; because I would much rather mismanage my own affairs, than have them ably conducted by the officious interference of any one, because I do think that your interposition in this instance, however well intentioned, has been productive of as much mischief as it has been uncalled for.

And because I am really and sincerely desirous of sparing you the meanness and humiliation of acting in the petty character of an unauthorized go-between that I have been induced to write this note—for the length of which I beg you will accept my apology.

I am, dear Miss Leigh,

Your &c.,
CHARLES DICKENS.

After reading all this Maria Beadnell replied immediately so that her letter reached him Saturday. Before returning the one he proposed to send to Marianne, she copied it carefully and thus it was fortunately preserved for posterity. She wrote that Marianne would probably blame her for the whole trouble; then after asking to see Marianne's answer she deigned to give him permission to write to

FIVE INJURED BY AUTOS

Rowe Gray, 28, of 219 Paulson avenue, a passenger in an automobile driven, police say, by Ulysses Bartlett, 32, of 230 Beverly road, Mt. Lebanon, was injured yesterday when the car crashed with another at Hamilton avenue and Fifth avenue extension. The other car, police said, did not stop following the accident.

Ike Klein, 52, of 1003 Vickroy street, was injured when he was struck by an automobile driven by Miss May Childs, 24, of 5453 Albemarle street, according to a police report. The accident occurred at Jumonville street and the Boulevard of the Allies.

Vito Lamamo, 10, of 1011 Webster avenue, was injured when he was struck by an automobile while roller skating in Frankstown avenue, near Blackadore avenue. According to the police, the automobile was driven by Gabriel Valotta, 35, of 6954 Upland street.

Two persons were injured when their automobile crashed with a street car in Bennett street, near Oakwood street. The injured were Mrs. Hilda Hoffman, 42, of 134 Julia street, and John Rolling, 35, of 23 Sycamore street. The alleged driver, William Roop, 55, of Blawnox, was arrested. The street car was operated by Jack Dyer.

Repair West End Road Fallen in Mine

Employes of the city Bureau of Highways yesterday filled in a section of Carnahan road, which caved in Saturday, causing injury to a race horse owned by James Reid, of 806 Hillgrove street. Reid's horse stumbled and fell at the brink of the cave-in, said to have been 25 feet deep and three feet wide. The section of the roadway is over an abandoned coal mine.

Babe Ruth, Cheap Gasoline, Circus Attract Natives

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Tide of tourists has turned. European vacationeers are now arriving in United States.

We used to go over there to poke sticks in their cages.

They will see plenty of things to laugh at. They will spot more things to amaze them.

Strange thing about a tourist. The more solemn and beautiful the sight the more he has to giggle.

All of our visitors want to see Niagara Falls, Radio City and Holly-o-wood. All a native American wants to see is the flea circus, cheap gasoline and Babe Ruth.

M'NAIR LOTS SPELL GRIEF FOR MANY

Mayor McNair's plan to give away houses and lots which was laid away so effectively in Council last week has brought to light some interesting opinions on the powers of Council and the Mayor in disposing of city property.

Authorities seem agreed that the gift of any public property by the Mayor or any of his department heads would place them in an embarrassing position under the law.

As for Council, it has the authority to appropriate money or materials, but not to private individuals unless the cause can be shown to be a matter of public welfare.

Council has the power to lease or sell city property and has the right to fix the price at what they believe to be proper.

The city owns a large number of city lots, many of them on hillsides so steep that a mountain goat could scarcely find foothold.

It was these lots which the Mayor planned to embellish with McNair Manors, constructed with city materials and by the labor of men of the Relief Works Administration or some similar federal agency.

Assuming that Council and the Mayor had the power to make free grants of these lots—and they do not—the recipient of the free lot might find he had been given plenty of trouble.

Titles to properties taken for city taxes are not perfect. In most instances, heavy county and school tax liens are filed against them.

It was this possibility of leading the destitute into a maze of trouble that last week caused Councilman P. J. McArdle and John J. Kane to take part in one of the most caustic tongue-lashings that a Mayor has received in Council chamber in many years.

There is every evidence that the Mayor is satisfied to drop the McNair Manor idea.

HIGH RATE PAID ON BACK TAXES

The City Treasurer's office is getting in delinquent taxes at a rate which, if continued throughout the year, may come close to putting the city back on its feet financially.

When the budget was closed this year, estimated collections of delinquent taxes for 1934 were placed at $1,550,000. Actual collections in the first three months of 1934 have been $812,969, according to City Treasurer James P. Kirk.

On April 15, the city was $408,499 ahead of the same period last year on delinquent taxes, including water rents.

Current tax collections for the first quarter, however, are $355,954 behind the same period last year. Part of that is caused by reduced real estate assessments.

A vigorous tax collection campaign is being carried on by the City Treasurer and law department, with the assistance of a special advisory committee of citizens appointed by Council.

City to File Suit For Park Rentals

City claims for back rentals on park concessions totaling $9,373, including $4,766 owed by Michael De Rosa, Republican chairman of the Twelfth Ward, have been turned over to the city solicitor for collection by Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston. Many of the concessions are to go to new tenants. Six stands are to be eliminated, including De Rosa's Washington boulevard barbecue.

Plan Celebration At Playground

The first anniversary of the Oakland playground, at Forbes and Boquet streets, will be celebrated by residents of the community tomorrow. A Maypole dance will be a feature of the program, which will open with a volleyball game at 4:15 p. m. The celebration is sponsored by the Fourth Ward Community Council, the Women's Club, Y. M. C. A. and the Y. M. & W. H. A.

SELLARS LOSES SLUM POST

The director of the city's slum razing program, Lee T. Sellars, has been ousted by the Civil Service Commission as supervisor in the Division of Housing and Sanitary Inspection.

Health Director Ray P. Moyer, after an unsuccessful attempt to get Council to set up a special job for Sellars, has announced that he will be compelled to drop him from the payroll.

Sellars came into the city service from the Pittsburgh Housing Association. He was first employed as a laborer, his work being to obtain releases from owners for demolition of substandard houses.

Director Moyer promoted Sellars, putting two supervisors on a pension to make a place for him. The Civil Service Commission has ruled that the appointees to the position must come from the ranks of the sanitary inspectors.

blood will tell—

ONE of the mysteries of life is how much care a man will take of thoroughbred animals—noting when they are "off"... and toning them back to the "pink of condition" to increase their daily usefulness—yet will shamefully neglect his own run-down condition.
Certainly, there is a pardonable pride in an animal's healthy appearance... but human beings are more important than animals. Yet some people just hope when "run-down" that they will "come around."
It is just good "horse-sense" to reflect and reason that your so-called "tired feeling" may come from a lowered red-blood-cell count and the hemo-glo-bin in these cells.
There is a remedy specially designed to bring back strength to weakened blood... and no one can be strong, healthy, happy, and full of vitality when in a run-down condition.
If you suspect an organic disease consult your physician... if you feel weak... lack vitality... if your skin is paleness appetite... if off-color... try S.S.S. as a part of your diet. Take it just before regular daily meals. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in appetite... your color should improve with increased strength and energy.
S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion as you should naturally.
S.S.S. value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal. It is truly a blood and body tonic. You will find it at all drug stores in two convenient sizes... the larger size is more economical.

LETTERS BARE OPPOSITION TO LEAGUE

The only plausible excuse for a nation to enter war is for self-preservation, Henry E. Weil, South Hills insurance man, states in a letter to the Sun-Telegraph, in which he expresses his approval of the stand taken by the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers in opposing entrance of the United States into the League of Nations.

In his letter, Weils states:

"I firmly believe that fighting forces need be maintained only for self-preservation. Self-preservation can best be guaranteed by the fulfillment of two objects. First, prepare a fighting force that is modern and complete so that we may be ready to defend ourselves and, second, stay out of foreign entanglements."

The expression of Mr. Weil is similar to that shown by thousands of other patriotic citizens who have signed the petitions being circulated by the Sun-Telegraph, protesting to Congress against efforts being made to force this country into the League of Nations and World Court.

More than 38,000 persons have signed petitions to date and several thousand additional petitions are still being circulated.

Mrs. Margaret M. Sauers, of Mt. Pleasant, is also heartily in accord with the stand of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and the associated Hearst newspapers. Along with a number of petitions, Mrs. Sauers writes:

"I wish to commend the Hearst papers for this most worthy effort to notify our Congress and federal government that the American people do not want Europe to run our country. If we are an independent nation as we claim to be let the law makers and we citizens show Europe we are independent and intend to stay that way."

Another woman, Mrs. Mabel E. Linnville, of Evergreen road, writes:

"Here are a list of names sent in protest against the United States entering the League of Nations. May they help in keeping this country out of all foreign affairs that mean war or anything else to the detriment of our people."

Many petitions are still available for any patriotic American who would like to help the cause. All that is necessary is to write to the League Court Editor, Sun-Telegraph for petitions, circulate them among your friends and neighbors and return the completed petition to the newspaper. Scores of volunteer workers already are busy circulating the petitions in Pittsburgh and several hundred others are doing likewise in other cities and towns in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

PETITION AGAINST PARTICIPATION In the LEAGUE of NATIONS and World Court

If you want to save America from European entanglements and keep your country out of foreign wars, and foreign wars out of your country, sign this petition:

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

We protest AGAINST the United States participating in the League of Nations or in the World Court of the League of Nations, with or without "reservations."

We petition our Federal Government to keep our United States "free from foreign entanglements," as the Father of Our Country wisely enjoined.

We urge our Congress at Washington to keep our government from meddling in foreign affairs, and to keep foreign nations from meddling in our American affairs.

As loyal American citizens, we ask our loyal representatives to keep our country out of foreign conflicts and complications and to keep foreign conflicts and complications out of our country.

MAYOR RECALL PLAN FAVORED

Headquarters for J. Boyd Euwer, candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination in the Forty-second District, have been opened at 12 West Stockton avenue, North Side. In a statement today Euwer said:

"The plank in my platform, which seems to have struck the most responsive chord, is a pledge for legislation for the recall of mayors when it is discovered, through experience, that the voters have made a mistake at the polls."

Euwer also is advocating revision of the Constitution to bring about elimination of overlapping and duplication in the costs of government.

WORKERS DUMB, VIEW OF DAVIS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 30.—(AP.)—United States Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, supreme dictator of the Loyal Order of Moose, said last night that the machine age "may be a scandal to civilization, but the workers themselves are in part to blame."

Senator Davis spoke at a banquet concluding a two-day conference of 800 Moose delegates from throughout Connecticut furthering the order's efforts for child welfare. The Senator said:

"Some years ago, with probably a 2 per cent assessment on their wages, the workers could have bought and controlled these great inventions that have thrown three out of every four in some industries out of work, but they didn't have sense enough to do so.

"I am not afraid of professors acting in advisory capacity on codes, but I am afraid of the bright birds who tell industries how to interpret the laws to their own advantage."

Russian Bishop Named Church Head

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—(Universal.)—Named as new head of the Russian Orthodox Church in the United States and Canada, Bishop Theophilus, of San Francisco, has received notice of his appointment in a telegram from New York.

FALL TEARFUL IN '1ST' TALK

ALAMAGORDO, N. M., April 30.—(AP.)—Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior in the Harding cabinet, gave way to tears here yesterday in his first public speech since his release from the Santa Fe Prison.

Human Side of the News

Buried Treasure Continues to Allure, and a Company Is Formed to Hunt for It

By Edwin C. Hill

NOT ALL the rumble and clatter of this machine age has overwhelmed the clear note of high adventure. Scanning the pages of the Sunday Chronicle, of London, my gaze fastens upon an advertisement of fascinating character. It is headed, in large letters, "Treasure Recovery Limited," and it invites the British public to contribute 75,000 pounds, a matter of some $375,000, to the enterprise of seeking buried treasure on Cocos Island, 16 square miles of forest, mountain and valley, an island dot in the Pacific Ocean off the coast of Panama.

The roster of directors of "Treasure Recovery Limited" is glittering. It contains the name of Rear Admiral Thomas John Spence Lyne. It includes Commander Frank Arthur Worsley, who was with Sir Ernest Shackleton at the South Pole. It names also Stratford Dowker Aird Jolly, a veteran treasure hunter, who got his hands on ancient Mayan gold down in Guatemala some years ago. And believe me, "Treasure Recovery Limited" is got up in style with all the trimmings.

Pure Speculation Public Is Told

ITS BANKERS are Heilbut, Symons & Co., Limited, of 88 Chancery Lane. It is legally advised by a firm of solicitors named Thorp, Saunders & Thorp, of 79 Salisbury House, London. And the purpose of the enterprise—and the public is frankly reminded that it is purely speculative—is clearly set forth. It is to arrange for the employment of the latest modern scientific equipment in the search for and the recovery of the numerous treasures which have in the past been secreted in various parts of the world.

The immediate object of the company is the recovery of the treasure from the Island of Cocos. And then the advertisement, a big double-column affair taking up nearly a quarter of a page, goes on to say that the directors have every reason to believe that enormous treasures of gold and jewels are buried on Cocos. For authority they have the historical section of no less than the Foreign Office of Great Britain. Two handbooks, issued by the Foreign Office in Downing street, state that the existence of treasure on Cocos is well established. And reference is made to three distinct treasures.

Pirate Hoards Buried in Cocos

THE FIRST is a vast plunder obtained by rifling certain churches and cathedrals in Peru. The second and third are also pirate hoards, of eleven and twelve million dollars in gold coin and ingots. And there are records, also, of 300,000 pounds weight of solid silver and silver dollars, 733 bars of gold and seven kegs of gold coin buried on Cocos by the famous pirate Edward Davis. So you see, there is much more than legends of the Spanish Main to back the belief that one of the richest treasure troves in the history of mankind awaits the lucky finder.

It's with that hope that the public will buy five-shilling shares in "Treasure Recovery Limited," and their ship will put out this spring from Thames River, to follow the old, old sea trail of Frankie Drake and Hawkins and Sir Henry Morgan. So once again Cocos Island will figure in the headlines.

Probably not one person in 500 knows the story of Cocos Island. It goes back some 250 years or more, to the days of one Capt. Edward Davis, as swashbuckling a buccaneer as ever drew a cutlass.

Davis has been overshadowed in histories by such red-handed rogues as Morgan, Hawkins, Benito Benito, and even the much misunderstood Kidd, but he was in fact, the essence of all that a schoolboy's pirate should be, as he stood on the after-deck of his rolling ship, stocky, sturdy, a cutlass at one hip, and pistols through his belt.

GANDHI SCOFFS AT ENEMIES

CALCUTTA, India, April 30.—(AP.)—The Mahatma Gandhi, undismayed by his narrow escape during an attack this week on his automobile at Buxar, said today he was willing to be killed if martyrdom would assist his campaign in behalf of the lowest classes.

Another mild demonstration against him occurred Saturday at Jashidi, but the little Nationalist leader was not hurt. Otherwise his tour of India in behalf of the Nationalist cause and the untouchables progressed peacefully.

DICKENS TRIED HARD TO WIN RECONCILIATION WITH MARIA

I NEVER CAN LOVE ANY BUT YOU, HE WROTE

her again, if he chose. There is no record that Miss Leigh ever answered his letter.

* * *

THE FOLLOWING "conciliatory note" is the last one in existence that he wrote at this period; it tells of his love as only he could relate it. It shows also how deeply Maria had wounded him, and that he had little hope of a favorable reply. The note read:

18 Bentinck Street,

Dear Miss Beadnell:

I am anxious to take the earliest opportunity of writing to you again, knowing that the opportunity of addressing you through Kolle—now my only means of communicating with you—will shortly be lost (Kolle was to marry Anne Beadnell) and having your own permission to write to you, I am most desirous of forwarding a note which had I received such permission earlier, I can assure you you would have received ere this.

Before proceeding to say a word upon the subject of my present note let me beg you to believe that your request to see Marianne Leigh's answer is rendered quite unnecessary by my previous determination to show it to you, which I shall do immediately on receiving it—that is to say, if I receive any at all.

If I know anything of her art or disposition, however, you are mistaken in supposing that her remarks will be directed against yourself. I shall be the mark at which all the anger and spleen will be directed—and I shall take it very quietly, for whatever she may say I shall positively decline to enter into any further controvery with her.

I shall have no objection to break a lance, paper or otherwise, with any champion to whom she may please to entrust her cause, but I will have no further correspondence or communication with her personally or in writing. I have copied the note and done up the parcel which will go off by the first Clapton Coach tomorrow morning.

And now to the object of my present note. I have considered and reconsidered the matter, and I have come to the unqualified determination that I will allow no feeling of pride, no haughty dislike to making a conciliation to prevent by expressing it without reserve.

I will advert to nothing that has passed; will not again seek to excuse any part I have acted or to justify it by any course you have ever pursued; I will revert to nothing that has ever passed between us—I will only openly and at once say that there is nothing I have more at heart, nothing that I more sincerely and earnestly desire, than to be reconciled to you.

It would be useless for me to repeat here what I have so often said before; it would be equally useless to look forward and state my hopes for the future—all that anyone can do to raise himself by his own exertions and unceasing assiduity I have done, and will do.

I have no guide by which to ascertain your present feelings and I have, God knows, no means of influencing them in my favor.

I never have loved and I never can love any human creature breathing but yourself. We have had many differences, and we have lately been entirely separated. Absence, however, has not altered my feelings in the slightest degree, and the love I now tender you is as pure and as lasting as at any period of our former correspondence. I have now done all I can to remove our most unfortunate and to me most unhappy misunderstanding. The matter now, of course, rests solely with you, and you will decide as your own feelings and wishes direct you.

I could say much for myself and I could entreat a favorable consideration on my own behalf, but I purposely abstain from doing so because it would be only a repetition of an oft told tale and because I am sure nothing I could say would have the effect of influencing your decision in any degree whatever. Need I say that to me it is a matter of vital import and the most intense anxiety?

I fear that the numerous claims which must necessarily be made on your time and attention next week will prevent your answering this note within anything like the time which my impatience would name. Let me entreat you to consider your determination well, whatever it be, and let me implore you to communicate it to me as early as possible. As I am anxious to convey this note into the city in time to get it delivered today, I will at once conclude by begging you to believe me, Yours sincerely,

CHARLES DICKENS.

DICKENS IN 1856 AFTER HE WROTE "DAVID COPPERFIELD"

REPRINT FROM SATURDAY

A great storm was sweeping over England on the 8th of February, 1855, and the white spirits of unrest were riding high in the blast, prompting uneasy souls to all sorts of strange impulses. It was then that Maria Beadnell Winter, longing for a word from that fond lover of long ago, whote him a letter.

It was a timid letter, with humble apologies, a bit of news of old friends—recalling long-cherished memories—congratulations on his great success—anything that might make a page or two, reminding him of his old love.

But little did Maria Beadnell realize that it was destined to open a floodgate of memories that have enriched Dickens literature far more than anything else discovered since his death.

MIND DISTURBED

Coming home from the office of Household Words, Dickens had dined with his family, and later found his favorite seat before the study fire, where he sat alone reading as the storm shrouded the city in a pall of drifting snow. His own words, written the following morning, constitute the opening chapter of the most surprising self-revelations that ever fell from his pen. The letter he wrote read:

Tavistock House,
Saturday, February, 1855.

My Dear Mrs. Winter:

I constantly receive hundreds of letters in great varieties of writing, all perfectly strange to me, and (as you may suppose) have no particular interest in the faces of such general epistles.

As I was reading by my fire last night, a handful of notes was laid down on my table. I looked them over, and recognizing the writing of no private friend, let them lie there, and went to my book. But I found my mind curiously disturbed, and wandering away through so many years to such early times of my life, that I was quite perplexed to account for it.

YEARS VANISHED LIKE DREAM

There was nothing in what I had been reading or immediately thinking about, to awaken such a train of thought, and at last it came into my head that it must have been suggested by something in the look of one of those letters. So I turned them over again, and suddenly the remembrance of your hand come upon me with an influence that I cannot express to you.

Three or four and twenty years vanished like a dream, and I opened it with the touch of my young friend David Copperfield when he was in love.

There was something so busy and so pleasant in your letter—so true and cheerful and frank and affectionate—that I read on with perfect delight until I came to your mention of your two little girls.

MEMORY CLEAR

In the unsettled state of my thoughts, the existence of these dear children appeared such a prodigious phenomenon that I was inclined to suspect myself of being out of my mind, until it occurred to me that perhaps I had nine children of my own!

Then the three or four and twenty years began to rearrange themselves in a long procession between we and the changeless Past, and I could not help considering what strange stuff all our little stories are made of.

Believe me, you cannot more tenderly remember our old days and our old friends than I do. I hardly ever go into the city but I walk up an odd little court at the back of the Mansion House and come out by the corner of Lombard street.

VISIONS CLEAR

Hundreds of times as I have passed the church there—on my way to and from the sea, the continent, and where not—I invariably associate it with somebody (God knows who) having told me that poor Anne was buried there.

If you would like to examine me in the name of a good-looking Cornish servant you used to have (I suppose she has twenty-nine great-grandchildren now and walks with a stick), you will find my knowledge on the point correct, though it was a monstrous name too.

I forget nothing of those times. They are just as still and plain and clear as if I had never been in a crowd since, and had never seen nor heard my own name out of my own house. What should I be worth, or what would labour and success be worth, if it were otherwise!

LETTER TOUCHING

Your letter is more touching to me from its good and gentle association with the state of Spring in which I was either much more wise or much more foolish than I am now—I never know which to think it—than I could tell you if I tried for a week I will not try at all. I heartily respond to it, and shall be charmed to have a long talk with you, and most cordially glad to see you after all this length of time.

I am going to Paris tomorrow morning, but I purpose being back within a fortnight. When I return, Mrs. Dickens will come to you, to arrange a day for our seeing you and Mr. Winter (to whom I beg to be remembered) quietly to dinner. We will have no intruder or foreign creature on any pretense whatever, in order that we may set in without any restraint for a tremendous gossip.

FATES ACCUSED

Mary Anne Leigh we saw at Broadstairs about fifty years ago. Mrs. Dickens and her sister, who read all the marriages in all the papers, shrieked to me when the announcement of hers appeared, what did I think of that? I calmly replied that I thought it was time. I should have been more excited it I had known of the old gentleman with several thousand a year, unaccountable grown-up children and no English grammar.

My mother has a strong objection to being considered in the least old, and usually appears here on Christmas Day in a juvenile cap, which takes an immense time in the putting on.

The fates seem to have made up their minds that I shall never see your father when he comes this way. David Lloyd is altogether an impostor—not having in the least changed (that I could make out when I saw him at the London Tavern) since what I suppose to have been the year 1770, when I found you three on Corn Hill, with your poor mother, going to St. Mary Axe to order mysterious dresses—which afterwards turned out to be wedding garments.

INVITES REPLY

That was inthe remote period when you all wore green cloaks, cut (in my remembrance) very round, and which I am resolved to believe were made of merino, I escorted you with native gallantry to the dressmaker's door, and your mother, seized with an apprehension—groundless upon my honor—that I might come in, said emphatically: "And now Mr. Dickin"—which she always used to call me—"we'll wish you good morning."

When I was writing the word Paris just now, I remembered that my existence was entirely uprooted and my whole being blighted by the Angel of my soul being sent there to finish her education!

If I can discharge any little commission for you, or bring home anything for the darlings, whom I cannot yet believe to be anything but a delusion of yours, pray employ me. [Was this an invitation to Maria to write again? Editor's note.] I SHALL be at the Hotel Meurice—locked up when within, as my only defence against my country and the United States—but a most punctual and reliable functionary if you will give me any employment.

PROMISES LETTER

My dear Mrs. Winter, I have been much moved by your letter; and the pleasure it has given me has some little sorrowful ingredient in it. In the strife and struggle of this great world where each of us lose each other so strangely, it is impossible to be spoken to out of the old times without a softened emotion.

You so belong to the days when the qualities that have done me mos good since were growing in my boyish heart, that I cannot end my answer to you lightly.

The associations my memory has with you make your letter more—I want a word—invest it with a more immediate address to me than such a letter could have from anybody else. Mr. Winter will not mind that. We are all sailing away to the sea, and have a pleasure in thinking of the river we are upon, when it was very narrow and little.

Faithfully your friend,

CHARLES DICKENS.

Maria could scarcely have expected such a long, cordial letter as this. She had mentioned the hope that they might meet to talk over old times and old friends, and he "heartily responded" to the suggestion. Facetiously he called her the "Angel of his soul" and the closing paragraph contained as poetic a touch as any fond sweetheart could desire.

40 U.S. CLIPPERS STILL SAIL

WASHINGTON.—(Universal.)—Relics of a day when the United States merchant fleet was without an equal, 40 stately clipper ships still sail the seas, a research of Commerce Department records revealed today.

The names of many clippers which wrote thrilling pages into the history of American history nearly 100 years ago are to be found in these musty records.

Here are found the licenses of the Flying Cloud, Flying Fish, Sovereign of the Seas, Westwood Ho! Glory of the Seas and others which vied in "clipper" days in the run to China to trade in furs and ginseng for cargoes of teas, silks and spices.

Manned by bold officers who carried sail spread both day and night through gales which held other ships under bar spars, these lofty and beautiful clippers built by Donald McKay made passages of 300 and 400 miles a day.

DOGS HAUL MAIL IN ALASKA

WASHINGTON.—(INS.)—The dangers and thrills of flying the air mail are only a part of the hazardous and exciting job of delivering the mail, according to a survey by the National Geographic Society.

The winter struggle against storm and ice, the report says, is shared alike by the mail pilot aloft, the Alaskan musher with his plodding dog team, and countless carriers on rural routes in western and mid-western states.

"In Alaska there is no federal air mail service. Through private enterprise some mail is carried by plane, but the winter service still relies upon dogs and sledges.

"One of the longest dog mail routes is the 6,500-mile run from Kotsebue to Point Barrow, Uncle Sam's northermost postoffice. The mail team leaves Point Barrow early in November, as soon as there is snow enough to travel, and is expected to complete the round trip of 1,300 miles by Christmas."

CWA for Farmer Applies to His Cow

PORTERSVILLE, Cal.—(INS.)—In an effort to thwart the decline in his business which forced him to sell his automobile, Henry Rose, a truck farmer, has instituted a "CWA" of his own.

CHICKIE'S DAUGHTER -:- By Elenore Meherin

CHAPTER LV.

"Are you still working?"

"Yes. Make a sandwich, will you?"

"Can you wait till I change my dress?"

She went to the door of her father's study and saw with shock he was alone.

She said with her voice flat; "What kind of a sandwich do you want? Would you like something to drink? Is Kevin gone?"

"Yes—we finished with the paper around 11. Kevin left then. He has to go to Los Gatos tomorrow morning—to the Carew's, you know."

"Oh!" said Pippin. "Well—I'll forage around and see what delicacies I can find."

Pippin made the sandwiches with great dispatch. She moved quickly to keep pace with the deep, gnawing ache in her mind. Spending Sunday with Jane Carew again! She was ready to weep because the light, tender movement when his lips whispered against her ear had meant so much.

That week she was very sweet to Gregg and she did not fight against the attraction Bill had for her. Every evening she went with him in the plane. Once he let her handle the wheel alone. When her eyes, beautiful with excitement, looked into his, he shouted "Like it? What did I tell you? You'll be good at it! You'll be great!"

On Thursday they sailed north, then eastward till they were over the valley and the rough, hulking mountains in the background of Livermore.

"Look out, Bill—all living color!"

He nodded. His face had a set, anxious look and he didn't take his eyes from the gauge.

"Engine's a bit hot. Don't worry!"

They came nearer. "Yes—an old road. I can make that!"

He came down slowly, gingerly, landing with a succession of jerks and bumps on the rough ground. He sat very quiet; then took out his handkerchief and wiped his face.

"Were you very frightened, Pippin?"

"No, I think I was sure you could handle it."

They climbed out of the plane into an utter unmurmuring, echoless silence. The field stretched seeming miles to the right of the road. On the left the hills rolled upwards, tier after tier, till they shut away the sky. Not a house; nowhere the sign of human habitation.

Oil Supply Low

But too much oil is lost. We can't fly back tonight. I think we better leave it — find some farm house before it gets too dark." He looked down into her white face: "Say something, Pippin—are you angry or what? It's really not my fault."

"I'm not angry at all. I'd like it, Bill. It's so all forgotten here. There's not a house in a thousand miles. I don't mind except for the fuss and all the explaining if we don't arrive till morning."

"I'll get you back before that. I saw some houses, I think I can find them. The field is newly plowed. Some one must live within a few miles. You don't want to stay here alone while I look?"

"Isn't that a house or a barn off there? Hurry!"

Bill took his flashlight, put his arm around Pippin and said encouragingly: "I really saw houses from the air, Pippin. They're around here somewhere."

The darkness grew into a thick, black wall that closed them in and except for the flicker along the road they might have been in the deep center of the earth. The road was filled with ruts, with great boulders and the snags of dead trees. Pippin kept stumbling.

But they went on. A twig snapped under her feet, then a little mound of pebbles scattered. The sharp sound cut a path of terror to her already overcharged mind.

CHAPTER LVI.

"We might have fallen down that!"

"Let's sit down for a while. I'm tired. It's dangerous going through this abysmal dark. Perhaps a moon may come up later."

Her teeth chattered as she sank down on the soft, loose earth of the embankment, glad for the comfort of Bill's shoulder and his arm about her.

She said with a faint, nervous laugh: "I can't even see your face. Just a white blur. It shines a little. Isn't the dark frightening?"

Bill took the flashlight and held it between them. "Now do you feel better? Your eyes look enormous. I can feel your heart thumping."

"You can rest for half an hour, Pippin. At 9 o'clock we start out again. By 9:15 I'll have you in a nice cosy farm house, eating ham and eggs. Won't that be savory?"

"You don't really think you're going to find a house tonight, Bill. It's a trackless wilderness. There are no houses anywhere."

"There only needs to be one. There has got to be one house somewhere near."

"Why do you say 'got to be?' I've ceased to care. My mother doesn't know of this. She's not worrying. I'm not going to break my neck falling down a cliff for anyone else. Just because people may wonder and doubt why I stayed out all night. I'm going to settle down and be comfortable. There's not a chance in the world of getting home tonight."

Bill's High Ideals

She felt that he looked at her sharply: "Tomorrow and the next day, Pippin, you won't feel so bold; you'll be bitter toward me. You'll think that, somehow or other, I should have mastered the situation, and I should. It's always a man's fault when a girl gets into a jam."

"Do you mean that girls are such poor sports they always say that?"

"No, it's what I believe. There's always a way to get out of a thing. It will really be my fault if there isn't a house within a reasonable distance."

Pippin gave a quick, bubbling laugh.

"I'd like to stay here with you in my arms just like this all night long, Pippin, but I wish a moon would come so I could see your hair and look in your eyes. I've hardly seen you at all and I'm here two weeks and have less than two weeks more."

"You've seen me almost every day, Bill."

"This is the first time, Pippin, that you've really seemed near to me. You like me a little, tonight, don't you?"

"I always like you, Bill."

"Love me a little, Pippin?"

"I'm not sure what love is, but I'm happy when I'm with you. I think you're quite dashing. I'm happy now."

"That's the highest compliment one person can give to another, to be happy with them, to be carefree with them."

He pushed back her helmet and ran his hand across her hair. "More than anything else, Pippin, I want the girl I love to be happy with me—want her to be glad I'm around."

Discuss Marriage

He slumped down until his cheek touched hers: "Why don't you want to get married, Pippin?"

"I don't know. Just the complete change—your whole life altered. Never to belong freely and entirely to yourself again. Marriage weaves your life so intimately, so binding into another life. I suppose it's grand. It must be, since it's so popular, but I don't want it today or tomorrow."

"If you loved a person you would want it, Pippin. You'd want your life, as you say, woven into another life. No matter how clearly you saw the chains, even though they were going to hurt you, you'd want them anyway."

"Oh, no! Not unless you lose all sanity. Bill, suppose you fall in love with a girl who doesn't like flying?"

"I'm not loving that kind of a girl."

"You might find out her prejudices too late. That makes most of the trouble. You marry a girl who will leave her hair in the comb and the top off the toothpaste. Life can be made miserable for trifles like that."

"I don't mind about the hair in the comb or the tooth paste. She can have her own, Pippin, don't you like to fly?"

"I love it."

Bill gave a deep chuckling laugh: "See!" Then he sighed and said, reluctantly: "We'll have to go on, now."

"It can't be half an hour, yet. It's getting blacker, Bill, and more still. There's not even a cricket chirping.

"Which direction will you take this time, Bill?"

"It's so cozy sitting here."

"If it were only Mars! Pippin, would you be very despondent if you found yourself on a desert island and only me for company for a long, long time?"

"I wouldn't mind it, perhaps, at all!"

He held her tight in his arms and kissed her and said with a soft laugh: "Then you love me, Pippin. You must!"

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LVII.

They stood on the top of a ridge in a darkness that billowed like a sea. Bill sniffed the air as though he could in some way scent human habitation.

After a moment he said slowly: "I think it's over that way."

"Did the spirits tell you, or what?"

She followed along, clinging to his arm and liking the dark mystery of the night.

"Look, isn't that a light?"

"It is a light! Down there. And there's another one to the right!"

Pippin said, excited: "Pricking like stars in a sunken world!"

Bill played the searchlight up and down the canyon. He said softly: "This is a trail."

They followed it. They could not see house nor fence, but just that light wavering through the dark.

Suddenly and startlingly near, dogs were barking. They were on a stone path leading to a small cabin. The dogs made a great commotion and a man's voice shouted: "Down, Mose! Who's there?"

A big, easy-faced fellow with hulking shoulders and a bald head stood framed in the door with the light from the room flowing about him.

No Telephone

"No, we haven't any telephone. Was that your plane circling about the field?"

A woman and a little boy now edged into the picture, excitedly watching the visitors. The man held in leash a ferocious-looking police dog, who made heroic efforts to sniff at Bill's shoes. The man scratched his bald head while slowly and dubiously appraising Bill.

"You can't get to Livermore tonight. It's 30 miles over a rough, narrow road. No, I wouldn't drive my car there and back in the dark for $100."

Pippin appealed to the woman who listened with the greatest of interest.

Finally she said to her husband: "Look here, Jim, the Mitchell boys might be glad to earn a few dollars. This girl doesn't want to stay from home all night. Go down and get Burt up and see if he'll drive them."

The big man scowled and sighed. Then he put on a pair of boots, a leather coat and a woolen cap as though he were setting forth on an Arctic expedition, and taking a swinging lantern, walked down the road with the dogs yapping at his feet.

The woman and the child, both greatly excited, followed. When they came to the fork in the road, the man stopped and flashed his lantern toward the darkness.

But the woman said indignantly: "Wouldn't you be ashamed, Jim, knowing you can't see a hand in front of you! Come along! We'll walk the way with them."

The little boy, bursting with curiosity, but entirely silent, trotted at Bill's side, listening eagerly as the man asked questions about the plane and the mishap which had forced them down.

They halted. Neither Bill nor Pippin saw anything but the shadows.

The woman said: "What will you pay to get to Livermore? It's a hard drive."

"Whatever it's worth.

She returned in a few moments: "Burt will do it for $20, paid in advance."

She took the money and with an air of triumph led them to the shed where the car was parked.

"You have a rabbit's foot!" Pippin murmured as Bill helped her into the small, rackity car, and the ranch woman said happily: "I'm glad. Now you'll get home. Burt knows the road. He's a good driver."

Burt must have known the road. He was a stocky, sunburned youth about 19, with a large mouth and small, sharp eyes. He went hurtling around curves and grinding over rocks at a pace that made Pippin's heart jump.

She said, nervous: "Quite an anti-climax to get killed now, after escaping the plane so neatly."

Bill leaned forward. "Please drive more slowly!

But the boy shouted: "Don't be afraid! I know every snag in this road ... driven it a thousand times. Never had an accident."

The shadows flew past; rocks scattered; pebbles dashed with sharp, rattling sounds against the fenders. Now and then the headlights flashed on the wild chams below them.

Arrive in Town

But they did finally reach Livermore and well before midnight.

They sat over the long deferred ham and eggs in a small and not very clean restaurant.

"Is your path always strewn with rose petals, Bill?"

"Where were the roses tonight?"

"We might not have found that cabin. And you mightn't have had the $20 in cash. I know plenty of fine fellows who never have more than a dollar or two margin."

Bill leaned across the table, his eyes laughing into hers.

"I'd say they were the lucky fellows. If we hadn't found the house and if I didn't have the money, you and I would still be out there in the dark wilderness. I could have said so many things! There might have come that mountain lion which I would have strangled with my bare hands and you would have loved me for being such a hero. I'm afraid I let the great opportunity pass!"

He regarded her happily. She looked a little pathetic. The wind had blown in her face on the 30-mile drive, leaving her eye-lids reddened and her hair filled with dust.

"Now that you've had a taste of adventure, Pippin, do you crave more? Dropping from the sky onto unknown planets and meeting strange human things who rattle you through black mountains 40 miles a minute! Or is it all too hazardous and perhaps not worth the pain?"

She said with an eagerness that made her whole face shine: "It's worth it! I'd like to have exciting things happen every day—blazing, romantic experiences. Some women have that kind of a life. Sara Bernhardt and Isadora Duncan. Yes, Bill, I want adventure."

Plan World Flight

"Then you must take up aviation! It's the most wonderful career in the world today. Magellan going round the world in a little sailing vessel that we wouldn't trust from her to the Farrallones. Flying is the only thing in history that parallels the incredible bravery of the old time mariners. Pippin, would you like to fly around the world?"

"I'd love it!"

"I'm going to do that, Pippin." He looked at her steadfastly, his mouth tight and strained, his eyes full of pleading. "I'm going to fly all around the earth."

"When?"

He reached over, took her hand, pressed it between both of his and looked a long while, seeking in her eyes: "I don't know. It depends. When would you like to start?"

The faint color deepened in her cheeks; her mouth trembled. He said with his lips but making no sound: "I love you!"

When they were settled in the rented car and driving to Palo Alto, he slumped down and sang in a happy challenge: "Die Lorelei."

He parked the car for a moment in the shadow of trees and said a little sadly: "I've got you home safely, Pippin. I could wish that I hadn't. I'd like to be out there in that dark with you—always."

She said unexpectedly, surprising herself: "It was sweet," and took his kiss with closed eyes, lingeringly.

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Pippin goes to a party with Bill, but after returning seems unhappy. She tells her father what she heard about her mother, and that she thought him responsible. David explains to her what really happened and Pippin is again happy. Chickie tells Pippin the real story of her life. Pippin goes on hikes with Gregg McClintock, senior at college. She then returns to college and has Vivian Drake as a room mate. Vivian's love affair with Sherry wanes. Vivian disappears and sends a suicide note. Kevin returns. Edward's family and Pippin disapprove of his choice of a bride. Kevin kisses Pippin while on skiing party. Kevin disappoints Pippin, but saves a man's life. Bill arrives home and takes Pippin on airplane trip. They're forced to land in desolate country.

Now Go On

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

No woman who doesn't point her toes straight ahead can walk gracefully, nor will her feet rejoice in strong muscles. Don't come down heavily on the heel when walking, that habit puts a strain on the arches. A buoyant step is good for the little dogs and for the spirits, too. Workers who sit at desks should have a daily walk of several miles, if feet are to remain in good condition, muscles resilient, tendons happy.

GEN. MERCER MORTALLY WOUNDED AT PRINCETON, N. J. (JAN. 3, 1777)

Washington, after capturing 1,000 Hessians at Trenton by his bold attack Christmas night (1776), slipped from the grip of the superior forces of British Gen. Cornwallis and January 3 attacked the British garrison at Princeton. Washington succeeded with a flanking movement, but too late to save his Gen. Mercer, who, unhorsed and refusing to surrender, was bayoneted.

Cornwallis moved in haste from Trenton to (New) Brunswick to protect the British ammunition stores; Washington withdrew with his exhausted troops to Morristown for winter quarters.

RADIATION-WAVE AND CORPUSCULAR THEORIES

Radiant energy was formerly thought to be vibration propagated by an elastic medium, the ether, which fills all space. J. C. Maxwell described (1873) radiation, also light, as electromagnetic wave disturbance propagated through space. The velocity was determined (Michelson, Newcomb) as about $3x10^{10}$ cm. (about 186,300 miles) per second. As different kinds of waves have different wave length, there must be so many waves per second that their length together should make $3x10^{10}$ cm.; hence wave length x frequency = $3x10^{10}$.

Radiation with shortest wave length and most penetrating power was called cosmic rays, believed originated by atomic disintegration in interstellar space.

Max Planck (1900) stated, radiating energy—as light—is not emitted continuously but in bundles, discrete atomic quantities (quanta or photons), each retaining its individuality until absorbed by some obstruction (corpuscular theory of light).

Albert Einstein reconciled the wave and corpuscular theories of light assuming that the electro-magnetic field has no energy in itself but only directs the photons—"acts as a ghost field." The intensity of the field at a given point is only a measure or probability of finding there photons. Above left: the different types of radiations characterized by the boundaries of their wave length and corresponding frequencies. Above right: the visible rays, consisting of all colors of the rainbow, are enumerated according to color, wave length. (Chemistry)

ANTHONY ORATES OVER MURDERED CAESAR—HIS SUCCESS, DEFEAT AT ACTIUM—JESUS' BIRTH

Courtesy of F. R. Niglutsch (Ellis: Story of the Greatest Nations)

Assassination of Julius Caesar (44.B.C.) drew Rome again into civil war. Octavian, Mark Anthony and Lepidus formed the Second Triumvirate; their armies defeated the republicans at Philippi, Macedonia, 42.B.C. Dividing the empire, Octavian ruled in Italy and the West, Anthony in the East, and Lepidus, until 36.B.C., in Africa.

The dissolute life of Anthony and his passion for Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt, brought him into conflict with Octavian, his brother-in-law. At Actium (31.B.C.) Anthony was defeated at sea, fled to Cleopatra pursued by the victor, who also dispersed his land troops. Anthony committed suicide; Cleopatra followed him. Octavian became sole ruler; in 27.B.C. he received the name Augustus (sacred).

During his reign "Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod, the King" (under Roman domination). Jesus' life, teachings and crucifixion have profoundly influenced all succeeding generations. (World History)

THE BIRTH OF "OLD GLORY"

After a Painting by J. L. G. Ferris

Upon request of a Congressional commission, Mrs. Betsy Ross prepared a flag "Old Glory," which showed 13 stripes, alternately red and white, and 13 stars arranged in a circle in a blue field. Congress, June 14, 1777, decided this to be the flag of the United States.

Previously the colonists fought under different standards, one bore a rattlesnake in 13 pieces: "Join or Die." Later the rattlesnake was coiled, ready to strike: "Don't Tread on Me!"

The first British surrender graced by the "Stripes and Stars" was at Saratoga (Oct. 7, 1777).

With the widening of the Union, the flag was somewhat changed. Congressional act (1818) ordered a star added to the flag for each newly admitted state. Today's flag contains 13 stripes and 48 stars.

RIGID AIRSHIPS—MACON, WORLD'S LARGEST

Inspired by the idea of David Schwartz, whose aluminum airships were destroyed, Count Friedrich von Zeppelin started to construct a rigid airship (1898) in a floating shed on Lake Constance, near Friedrichshafen, the present site of the famous Zeppelin works. His design was developed and finally proved itself reliable and airworthy.

MOLLUSCOIDEA—EIGHTH PHYLUM

Molluscoidea, molluse-like animals (about 2,000 species), have a tentacle-bearing ridge (lophophore) about the mouth. One class, the bryozoa, are small sessile animals, often forming a moss-like covering on rocks in water. Another class, the brachiopoda, have bivalve shells; they are important as fossils. Above: The Magellania lenticularis, one species. (Gen. Science) 65—III—5

There's Something About a Soldier

Bugs Baer

The Bug in the Bleacher Seats

We're going out to the baseball yard today. And we're parking the battered body in the bleachers.

That's where the real fan drydocks himself. You've got to have the sun on your back like mustard on a frankfurter.

They've changed the whole idea about the national pastime since it got into the big gravy. There was a time when it was a man's game. If you tried to perch in the shade a posse would give you 10 minutes to leave town.

The only proper attire for a baseball game is red suspenders and sleeves. We recommend a derby hat as a landing field for aviating pop bottles. It reduces the impact without lessening the argument.

People in luxurious steel and concrete grandstands are not the genuine fans. They loll back in cushioned seats yapping feebly like pups in a packing case. They are separated and protected from the action by heavy wire screens. It's like looking at life through a soup strainer.

The bleachers give you that personal contact that makes for rugged individualism. The lad on the rough pine board is your pioneer on the last frontier. Splinters arouse the sleeping brute in the effete man. When a bleacherite gets up on his rear wheels and yells wolf you can bet there ain't no white corpuscles in his conversation. When he swings a bottle it ain't his fault if there is no battleship there to dedicate.

The big league teams are fairly evenly balanced on the field. But the match making ain't so good in the bleachers. When the talk starts swinging its knuckles you usually find you have drawn a competitor who outweighs you by 60 pounds and two friends.

But that's sport. We are getting a trifle withered on the vine for active indulgence in Saturday afternoon elimination contests. We don't bounce like we used to. But you have got to fight back or be drummed out of camp.

The bleacherite has always resisted all peace-making efforts to take the fun out of sport. When he objects to a decision he steps on the scales with an anvil in his arms. Do you ever hear a yip from the grandstands? No. Those hoity-toity people couldn't let out a loud yell without bending their wax teeth.

If baseball is to continue as a major operation it will be the bleacherite who will be the fearless leader onwards. He may be rough, rowdy and spontaneous. But he loves baseball and hates to see the game growing curls.

For Commerce and Prosperity—A National Canal System

SOME weeks ago the Hearst newspapers pointed out that development of the nation's waterways ought to be carried on comprehensively as a major enterprise of the Public Works Administration.

At that time, we urged in particular that five major improvements, benefiting all parts of the country, should go forward simultaneously—these five being the St. Lawrence Seaway, and the Mississippi Valley, the Colorado River, the Sacramento-San Joaquin Rivers and the Columbia River projects.

Instead of pouring public money into sterile and often useless activities the government could add enormously and permanently to the national wealth by providing better channels of inland navigation and utilizing the great sources of hydroelectric power along these mighty streams.

* * *

IN FACT, however, the waterways program should be even more inclusive.

IT SHOULD INCLUDE AN ADEQUATE CANAL SYSTEM.

For example, the projected Florida canal, from Jacksonville to the Gulf of Mexico, needs to be made an actuality rather than a mere prospect.

The advantages would be two-fold.

In the first place, our immense sea traffic between the Gulf ports and the Atlantic would be spared the "long haul" around the Florida peninsula, with tremendous economies in time, in fuel and in transportation costs.

In the second place, the Florida canal is the "missing link" in the system of coastal inner routes which is being slowly developed on both the Atlantic and the Gulf shores, and which—like the Florida canal itself—ought to be completed as soon as possible.

* * *

IF ALL the Atlantic portions were in operation today, as the map indicates, a light vessel could start from Massachusetts Bay and navigate the entire distance into the Gulf of Mexico IN LAND-LOCKED PROTECTED WATERS.

Eventually, of course, the Atlantic-Gulf inland route should be continuous from Boston to the border of Mexico.

As the map shows, the Gulf portion is now being constructed from New Orleans west. In March of this year, the actual waterpath from New Orleans to the Sabine River, in Texas, a distance of 272 miles, was dedicated, and Army engineers are directing the construction of the second strip to Galveston.

The third section, from Galveston to the Rio Grande, offers an immediate field for useful public works employment.

* * *

BUT the Atlantic-Gulf coastal waterways are not the only canal routes to be developed.

Along with the Mississippi, Ohio and St. Lawrence River projects, supplementary canals will be necessary.

The thriving manufacturing center of Pittsburgh should be linked to the Great Lakes and the Atlantic.

One group of projects in the Pittsburgh region that should have commensurate Federal support comprises flood control in the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers, extension of the navigable stage in the Allegheny as far as Olean, New York, and connection of the Ohio River with Lake Erie by way of the Beaver and Mahoning Rivers and a new canal.

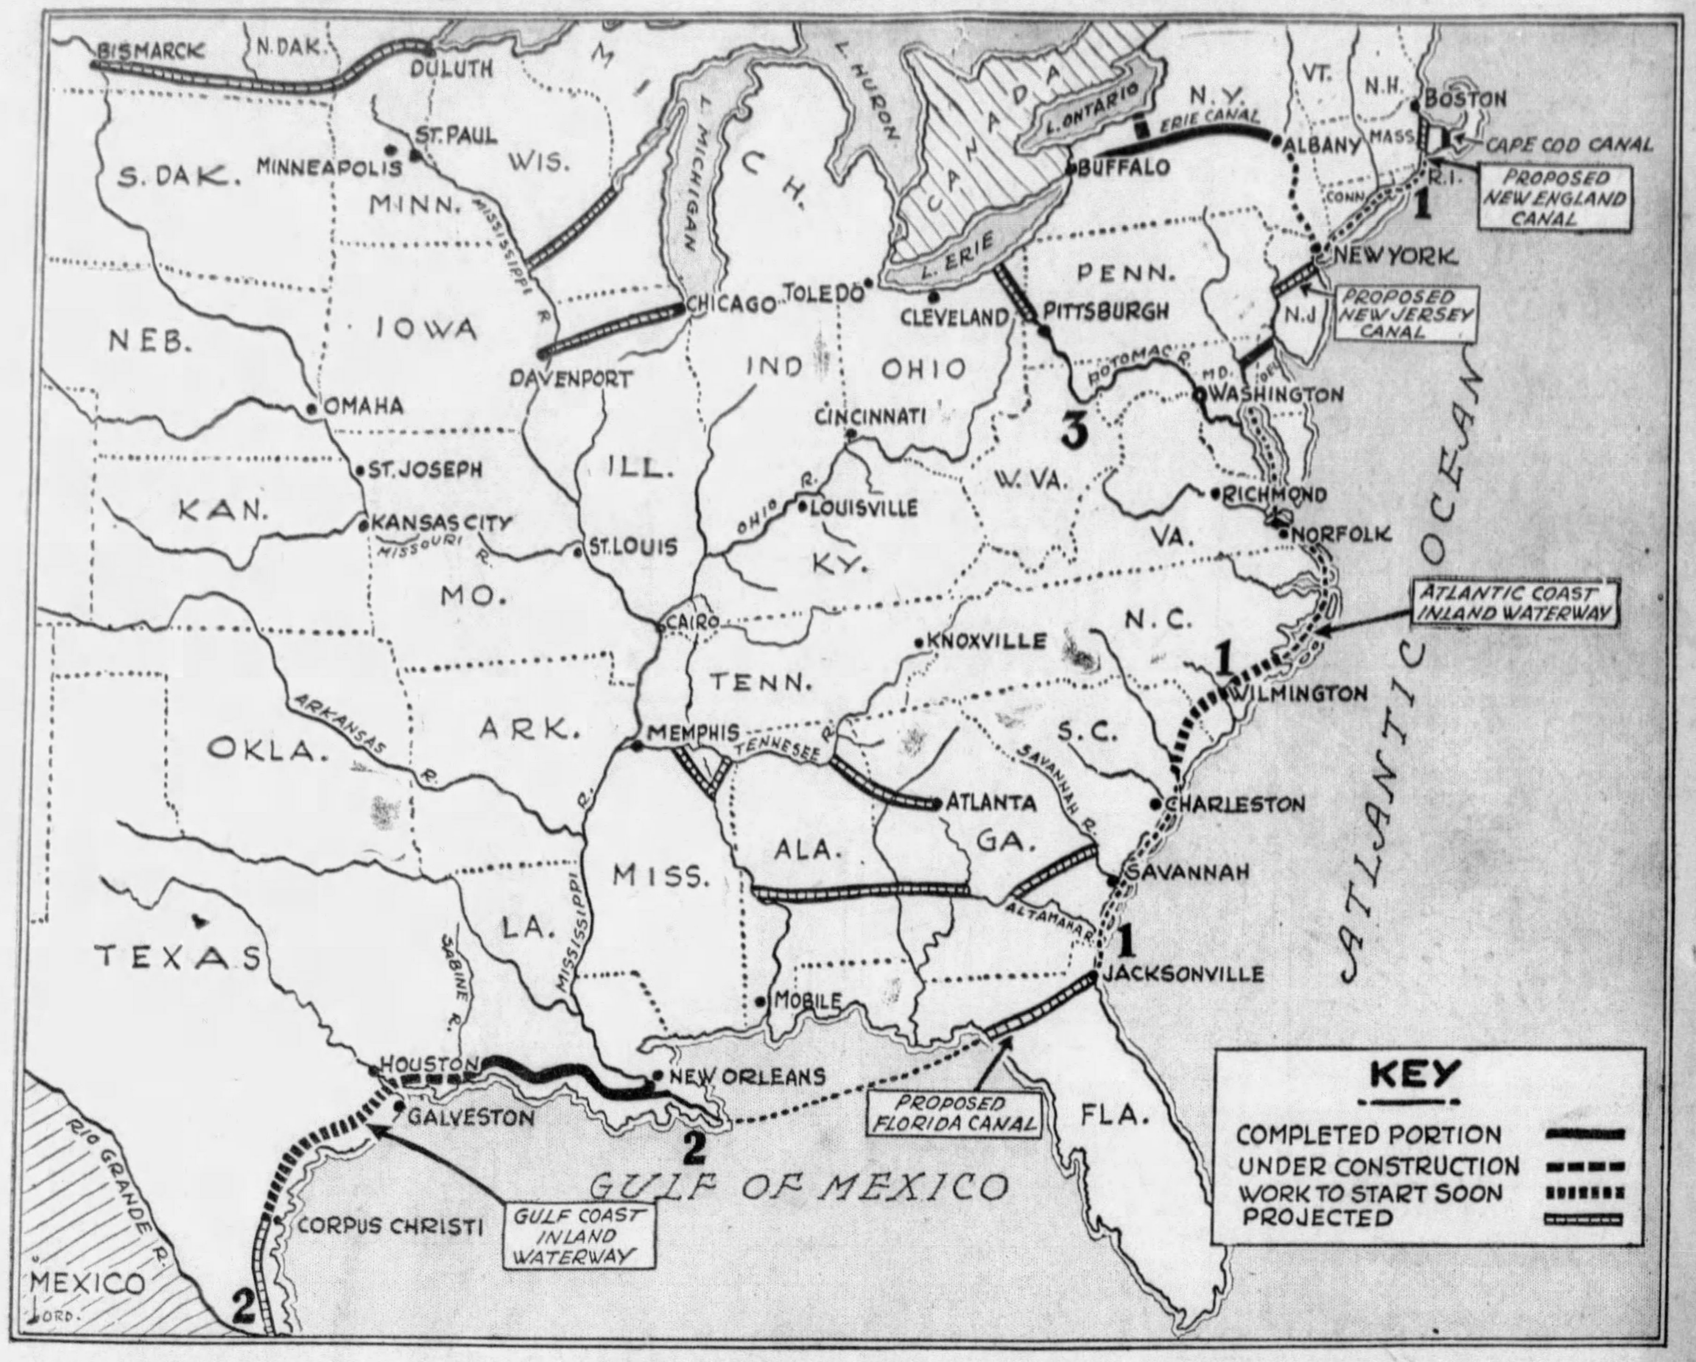
* * *

STILL other canal routes to be built or improved would benefit the Chicago area and the Northwest, and in the Northeast, New York State hopes to have Federal aid in further improving and extending its celebrated barge canal.



This map shows the major canal projects which ought to be developed or completed as a phase of the Federal public works program.

Project No. 1 represents the inland route along the Atlantic coast, starting at Boston and continuing through the proposed new Florida Canal into the Gulf of Mexico.

Project No. 3 envisages Pittsburgh and the Ohio River conneced with Lake Erie on the North and with the Atlantic by way of the Potomac.

Most of these old canals, however, were surrendered to the railroads in the post-bellum days, and THE RAILROADS PUT THEM OUT OF BUSINESS.

Concerning the disappearance of the old system of barge canals, a writer in the Philadelphia North American said, on May 3, 1908:

"The wanton destruction of the canal system was not only a crime, but a blunder, the magnitude of which is only now being realized . . .

"The canals, built by the people, fell first one and then another under the control of the great railroad corporations, which recognized that the cheaper means of transportation was a dangerous rival, but which did not foresee that the time might come when there would be TRAFFIC ENOUGH FOR ALL.

". . . The New York Central, IN COMPETITION WITH THE ERIE CANAL, was able to obtain A HIGHER AVERAGE OF RECEIPTS PER TON MILE than the railroads which were able to strangle the competition of the canals.

"In that case, the traffic naturally divided, the heavier and lower grades of freight going to the water route, while the classes of merchandise on which tolls were higher went to the railroad.

* * *

In that state, the Delaware and Raritan Canal was built in 1835, at the same time as the Camden and Amboy Railroad.

In 1870, the canal carried more tonnage than did the Suez Canal that same year, and its net return was $930,000.

And we read the sequel in a news dispatch of only a few days ago, dated April tenth, 1934:

"Acquisition by the state of the Delaware and Raritan Canal, extending a distance of 44 miles across the state, was recommended today to the Legislature by a special committee.

"The committee said it would be feasible to have the State Highway Commission operate the canal, WHICH WAS CLOSED TWO YEARS AGO BY THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

"It was suggested that, after acquisition by the state, the canal be offered to the Federal Government for any use, but with the recommendation IT BE USED IN CONNECTION WITH THE PROPOSED SHIP CANAL."

The route of this canal—put into disuse, and now needed—may be noted on the map. It forms an essential part of the Atlantic inland seaways.

And Calhoun's advice was never better than it is today.

Can They Be Trusted?

The Question Is Prompted by Candidates' Violation of the Law

What is to be thought of candidates for public office who brazenly violate the law?

The question is prompted by the illegal advertising signs that have been posted by, or on behalf of, some of those who are asking the people to vote for them in the primary election two weeks from tomorrow.

Every candidate has been personally notified by the Civic Club of Allegheny County that an act of the General Assembly approved March 10, 1903, prohibits the posting of such signs on public property, or on private property without the owners' WRITTEN CONSENT, under penalty of a fine of from $5 to $20.

Yet notwithstanding this notification, the signs of a number of the candidates are now posted on trees, telephone and electric light poles, walls and fences.

Those whose announcements are illegally flaunted in the public highways deserve no votes.

The Minor Judiciary

The Present System Is a Relic From Oxcart Days and Should Be Changed

Justices of the peace and constables of Western Pennsylvania have formed an organization to oppose the abolition of our present minor judiciary system.

They naturally would oppose it, for abolition of the system would cost many of them their jobs.

But it is in the public interest that it be abolished and an entirely new system set up. The present system is a relic from the days of the oxcart and utterly unsuited to present conditio..

Instead of an army of unnecessary squires and constables whose l[illegible] comes in fees, and who accordingly have strong incentive to [illegible]ent litigation, and are under temptation to be dishonest as we[illegible] as the many cases of crooked squires in Allegheny County should have a smar[illegible]recent years bear witness. Pennsylvania should have a small number of minor courts, presided over by men learned in the law and paid salaries.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Would Modern Miss Kill to Get 'Good Time?'

How far might a modern girl go to get her own way? How lawless would she be in order to procure the "good time" which she thinks is her right?

For surely she can't mean it!

"But I certainly do," asserts Mrs. Lownes. "I mean exactly what I say. I think our present social attitude toward individual rights' has brought many to the brink of murder."

Whereupon she produces her new book, "ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE" (Longmans, Green & Co.), to prove her point. There's a smart, pretty, charming, up-to-date young woman in that new book. Just such a delightful young woman as you and I meet every evening over some dinner table, at some bridge party or dance. Her name is Delia Seaton. There's nothing alarming about Delia. She's headstrong. She's "out for a good time." But what young thing isn't in these free and easy days?

Then suddenly Delia ups and kills!

Ugh! Horrible! However, of course if a novelist is going to make a study of criminal types—

"But that's exactly what I'm NOT doing," protests Mrs. Lownes. Delia Seaton is not 'a criminal type', except in the senses that million of modern women are becoming 'criminal types' in their ruthless pursuit of pleasure. She is a typical young married woman belonging to that section of society which is to be found in every civilized country in the world.

"There have always been frivolous women and girls who live only for pleasure. But what was true in the last generation of a few exceptionally selfish people is now true with regard to an immense number of both young men and young women. Such people honestly consider that they are entitled to what they consider 'a good time'. And now, more than ever, can what those three words stand for be acquired only with the help of money, and what is more, a great deal of money."

But Mrs. Lowndes does'nt agree.

"I AM CONVINCED THAT THERE ARE THOUSANDS OF YOUNG WOMEN WHO WOULD UNHESITATINGLY COMMIT MURDER BUT FOR THEIR FEAR OF BEING FOUND OUT. IF BY SO DOING THEY COULD SECURE THE KIND OF EXCITING LIFE WHICH SEEMS TO BE THE ONLY EXISTENCE THEY THINK WORTH LEADING. As to why this is, I suppose in a measure the barriers which used to surround a girl have completely broken down. Indeed. public opinion admires the woman who dares."

An awful picture. But it is an untrue or an impossible one? Is this where we're heading, with our modern frenzy for pleasure and power—BACK AGAIN INTO THE BLOODY DARKNESS OF THAT JUNGLE FROM WHICH WE SO SLOWLY, SO PAINFULLY CAME?

If so, what's YOUR answer? If YOU were running society today, what would YOU do about these ruthless women who must "have a good time, regardless?"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 30.—Diary: Betimes and askitter through the town, hailing Ivy Lee, Joseph Stransky and Thyra Winslow along the highway. And hearing of a new magic shop in Forty-fifth street, set out for there, but could not find it. So stopping in to loaf with Leonard Bergman, the theater fellow, awhile.

Working most of the afternoon and with my wife to Bronxville to say goodby to the Frazier Hunts, off for London, and we walked over to see Sinclair Lewis, who had gone to the city. On the way home we came upon a Tony with his performing bear, but my dog in such a frenzy over the beast we could not stop.

To dinner with Courtney Ryley Coopers at their penthouse, and Cooper did for us the long, dance and monolog he used to perform with repertoire ter-twent-thirts, vastly comical. Then walking down the avenue and past the gloomy Otto Kahn house and to bed late.

Few buildings have encompassed and sustained so much glamor as the Flatiron, among the first skyscrapers, although today a pygmy among surrounding spires. On nights when a fog blows up from the harbor it seems an heroic ship ploughing through the vastness. In early days it housed most of the New York correspondents of outland papers, such as Herbert Corey, James Murray Allison, etc. Also a number of foreign staff men. At noon they lunched at the old Fifth Avenue, where Senator Platt likewise held forth in the famous Amen Corner.

Foes of Preparedness Out To Wreck U. S. Defense

By James T. Williams, Jr.

CONGRESS is under increasing pressure from organized agitators for unpreparedness to abandon our traditional foreign policy and further weaken our national defense.

These agitators have adopted what they call a "foreign policy program," which includes the following mischief-making proposals:

Entrance of the United States into the League of Nations through its back door, by the immediate ratification of the League Court protocols.

Proclamation by the Roosevelt administration of the terms on which it would be willing to take the United States into the front door of the League by accepting membership in all departments of the League.

Investigation of the munitions industry in this country, presumably for the purpose of popularizing the French scheme to make this country wholly dependent in peace time upon government manufacture of arms and munitions of war.

Adoption by the Congress of an arms embargo resolution which would in effect give power to the President to make war without awaiting a declaration of war by Congress.

Abandonment of any further naval construction until after the next naval conference on the limitation and reduction of armament, in spite of the fact that our Navy has sunk to third place among the navies of the world and our Army to seventeenth place among the armies of the world.

Entanglement of the United States in a European-made treaty that would further reduce our military air force and subject all American aviation—commercial, naval and military—to foreign supervision and control.

* * *

Congress Abets Unpreparedness

BY FAILING to appropriate for the upbuilding of the Navy to equality with the strongest, as we are pledged by treaty to do, Congress is aiding and abetting this anti-American program of unpreparedness.

By refusing to build up our Army to the strength authorized by the national defense act, Congress is aiding and abetting this sapping expedition to undermine our national defense.

By adopting a fatuous resolution to investigate what is left of our munitions industry, by threatening to take up and ratify the League Court protocols, the Senate is encouraging these agitators of unpreparedness to press their campaign to abandon our traditional foreign policy and further cripple our defense establishment.

The American people have repeatedly repudiated at the polls all proposals to take the United States into the League of Nations through the front door of its covenant or the back door of its court.

They have declared year after year their faith in the wisdom of George Washington's maxim that "to be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace."

These popular mandates the present Congress will flout if it continues to surrender to the organized pressure of agitators of unpreparedness who are striving to cripple our national defense and to scrap the traditional foreign policy bequeathed to his people by the father of his country in the Farewell Address.
